SCIENCE TALKS OF MANKIND AND MANY PROBLEMS

Progress and Love and Golfers.

Mankind's progress through evolution; nebulae rushing through space at 1,300 miles a second; the Russian revolution; the imp that makes you lose and makes you commit suicide; relativity; bacilli; education; why the kid boy becomes a successful man; how the moon makes the buzz in your radio; what makes the difference between the star golfer and the dub; why men invent things; why the nice, quiet boy often turns criminal; how and why the stenographer differs from the private secretary; how poetry relies on mathematics; why girls go wrong; the earth's big race course; dusk; where backbones started and why bungalows are. These and other problems were discussed by science, represented in half a dozen conclaves in various parts of the country, yesterday.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Peaceful evolution is the great goal of modern science. This thread of thought is found throughout the tangled skein of papers and addresses presented today at the sessions of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Perhaps it should be described as a chain, for its links are found in the atomic changes and order found by the astronomers, in the transcendant laws which physics glimpses in the electronic world, in the greater comprehension of hereditary factors, and in the better ordering of social environment.

Success Means Survival.

"Cultural evolution and biological evolution are basically the same things," Dr. Hornell Hart, professor of social economy at Bryn Mawr college, told one section of the association today.

"Both occur because combinations which prove successful tend to survive, while failures tend to be eliminated. Recent studies of mutations have shown that they result from accidental rearrangements of the germ structure by electron bombardment.

"Since cultural evolution is merely a higher development of the processes involved in biological evolution, our view of cosmic development must include the two under one general formula.

"The same evolutionary processes which have produced more and more intricate, sensitive, powerful and purposeful animals, are producing more and more intricate, sensitive, effective, and satisfying cultural devices.

"Those organisms have survived which on the whole and in the long run were best adjusted to themselves and their environment. Those culture elements will tend to survive (barring social catastrophes of civilization) which on the whole and in the long run best fulfill cravings and ideals of men and best fit them to live together in increasingly effective coöperation.

Purpose Important Element.

"But modern cultural evolution has the immense advantage that intelligence, purpose and imagination can be used to expedite and short cut the slower processes of biological and cultural evolution. To this end two kinds of measures are required.

"First, the process of invention needs to be further expedited by increasing the effectiveness of intellectual communication and by the cultivation of the creative atttudes. Second, the public which makes the choices between good, bad and better culture traits, should be given more important information as to the real effects which the alternatives will have upon their own happiness and upon the welfare of their children, their friends and their community."

Russia in Process of Change.

The Russian revolution is viewed in the light of social evolution by Prof. Leslie A. White, of the University of Michigan.

"The Russian revolution was a cultural mutation," he said. "The present situation is a stage of evolutionary development. It is not the realization of an idea that happened to come to the mind of some eccentric radical, nor is it an experiment. It is the result of centuries of cultural development just as mammals are the product of eons of organic development.

"The tremendous significance of the revolution lies in the fact that it has ushered into the world a social order which is an evolutionary successor of capitalist society. Its five year program may fail, or the capitalist states may set upon her and dis-

HOOVER'S RAIL MERGER MOVE FACES A FIGHT

Arouses Opposition in Congress.

NEW YORK—Railroad shares advanced $2 to $6 on reports of the railroad merger plan. The news also strengthened the general list.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Prospects for early consolidation of eastern railroads into four major systems appeared remote tonight despite President Hoover's announcement that he had secured an agreement along this line from officials controlling the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, and Van Sweringen lines, the four focal points in the proposed new lineup.

The President's statement revealed that he had initiated the conferences leading to the consolidation agreement, and he gave his personal indorsement to the scheme as a means of assisting business recovery, providing needed employment, improving railroad service, and eventually reducing rail rates.

Mr. Hoover stated that the agreement was virtually complete except for one point which was being arbitrated. It was presumed that as soon as this one unnamed controversy was settled, formal consolidation applications would be filed with the interstate commerce commission.

Long Delays Ahead.

Immediately after the White House announcement, however, opposition developed in congress. It was also disclosed that extensive hearings will have to be held by the commission before approval can be given to the merging of the scores of eastern railroads into the four systems. Indications were that lengthy investigations by congressional committees also would develop, and the opinion here tonight was that the consolidation could not be effected in time to help much in alleviating the existing unemployment.

Has Bill to Block It.

Senator Couzens said he expected to press for final action on his resolution for suspension of the interstate commerce commission's authority to approve railroad consolidations until a further study of legislation on this subject has been completed. The Couzens resolution has been passed by the senate and is pending in the house.

The railroad brotherhoods are supporting the Couzens resolution, in the belief that mergers would aggravate rather than improve the unemployment situation.

"I doubt whether such a consolidation as described by President Hoover will go through during 1931," said Senator Couzens today. "Unless the plan proves to be more in the public interest than those previously proposed, notably the attempted merger of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads, I will act for the passage of my resolution more vigorously than ever. The statement that such a consolidation would lower rates is contrary to the statements of the railroad presidents made before the senate interstate commerce committee."

Wheeler Also Skeptical.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.], a member of the interstate commerce committee, also was critical of the plan.

"If this is of the type proposed in the Northern Pacific-Great Northern merger I would oppose it," said Senator Wheeler. "It is up to the railroads to prove that their plan is in the public interest and that they would take care of the railroad employés."

Representative James S. Parker [Rep., N. Y.], chairman of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, approved the consolidation proposal, saying that she thought it would benefit both the railroads and the public.

Representative Sam Rayburn [Dem., Tex.], ranking minority member of the committee, was noncommittal but criticized the method through which the proposed consolidation was worked out at the instigation of the President.

The Principal Conferees.

The executives who represented the various systems in the negotiations were President Daniel Willard and Vice President George M. Shriver of the Baltimore and Ohio, President W. W. Atterbury and Vice Presidents Elisha Lee and A. J. County of the Pennsylvania, President P. E. Crowley

RULE VETERANS CAN BORROW 425 MILLION ON DEFERRED BONUSES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Veterans of the world war, with the sanction of legislative action taken in 1924, and without any further action by congress at the present time, may borrow $425,000,000 on deferred payment bonus certificates from the government during 1931, according to a statement made today by Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs.

Gen. Hines' statement was made with a view of clearing up "considerable misunderstanding which appears to have developed in view of the current discussion with reference to cash payment of bonus certificates."

As most of the certificates were dated Jan. 1, 1925, Gen. Hines states that the total loan value of the 3,395,000 outstanding will be about $725,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1931. He estimates, however, that by that date about 1,600,000 veterans will have availed themselves of the loan privilege to the extent of borrowing $300,000,000, or about $225 apiece. The loan value of the remaining certificates outstanding, therefore, will be about $425,000,000, which may be borrowed during the year by holders of the certificates.

EFFIGY TO HARD TIMES BURNED BEFORE HIS DAY

Libertyville last Saturday started a state funeral which was to announce the end of the business depression as far as the local residents were concerned. A straw man, dubbed Old Man D'Pression, was placed in a casket and carried to a small park on the main street. The procession was composed of all of the business men and most of the school children.

Old Man D'Pression was scheduled to lie in state there until next Saturday, when the village band was to lead another procession to the tune of "Happy Days Are Here Again," and a public cremation was to be held.

Some residents considered the likeness too realistic and protests were heard, claiming the display frightened tourists on Route 21 and was gruesome.

Adoption Makes Boy, 3, Brother of His Mother

Through adoption proceedings a 3 year old boy yesterday became the brother of his mother. The child, Robert Charles Fesler, is the son of Norman E. and Charlotte Kirchhoff Fesler, who were divorced in 1927. He was adopted by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. August Kirchhoff of 3334 North Ridgeway avenue, as their son. The adoption papers were signed by County Judge Jarecki.

A Democracy Dances to Tune of a Jazz Band

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The son of an orphan boy from West Branch, Ia., tonight danced with a girl whose distant ancestress once hung her week's washing in the room where the ball was held.

With them danced the sons and daughters of ambassadors, ministers plenipotentiary, senators, relatives of Supreme court justices, the children of admirals and generals and of Washington's social leaders. To the young couple, these all rendered honor.

Presidents in Background.

For the boy was Allen Hoover, son of the 31st President of the United States and the girl was Miss Fanny Homans, great, great, great granddaughter of John Adams, second President of the nation, and a great, great granddaughter of John Quincy Adams, the 6th President.

The room was the east room of the White House, where Abigail Smith Adams trod the minuet with George Washington when she and her husband, John, were the first occupants of the new executive mansion in the new capital city of Washington.

Served on Forbears' China.

At the seated supper, served at midnight in the state dining room, to which she was escorted by the President's son, the cake eaten by Miss Homans was brought to her on a plate which had been used by President Adams during his administration. This plate, together with other pieces of the Adams china, were presented by Mrs. Homans to Mrs. Hoover last year for the collection of White House china started by Mrs. Roosevelt and continued by all the first ladies who have succeeded her in "the President's house."

Mrs. Hoover received with her son in the east room, where the guests began arriving promptly at 10 o'clock and soon were dancing to the music of a jazz orchestra which furnished the dance music for the Christmas dance last year.

Tunes Give Modern Flavor.

The jazz music was in strange contrast to the stately tunes which have inspired the dances in the east room in the past and to which many generations of Adamses have trod. For besides the two Presidents, Miss Homans' family included Charles Francis Adams, candidate for vice president, ambassador to Great Britain, and Henry Adams, writer and friend of Presidents.

Charles Francis Adams, present secretary of the navy, is her uncle and the son of John Quincy Adams of Boston, who declined a cabinet post proffered by President Cleveland.

President Hoover did not join in the merrymaking tonight, remaining in his study on the second floor, to which he retired immediately after dinner, which was served in the small dining room with only members of the family house party present.

BANDITS USE VICTIM'S AUTO IN NEXT HOLDUP

Adam Valer, chauffeur for George A. Eddy, 1235 Ridge avenue, Evanston, president of the Goss Printing Press company, Chicago, was robbed of $14 and the Eddy automobile early this morning by three armed bandits. The robbery took place in front of the Eddy garage. The chauffeur had just left Mr. and Mrs. Eddy at the entrance to their home.

Later the three bandits, driving Eddy's machine, forced Ashley M. Brand of 1512 North State parkway, Chicago, into the curb at Winnetka avenue and Fuller lane, in Winnetka. Brand and his friend, Miss Katherine Dudley of 414 Warwick grove, Winnetka, were forced out of the car at the point of guns and robbed. From Miss Dudley the bandits took a leopard skin coat valued at $200 and a pair of earrings worth $50, and from Brand a watch. The bandits left Eddy's machine and drove away in Brand's car, a Cadillac.

DRUGGIST, LONG MISSING, BARES IDENTITY IN JAIL

Harry Crawford, 58 years old, sold his drug store at 23d street and Ashland avenue for $20,000 in 1925, bought another and failed. He disappeared and nothing further was heard of him until yesterday.

An unshaven, shivering man without an overcoat, walked into the grill of a downtown hotel in St. Louis. He first ordered a bowl of soup; then ham and eggs, a double order of fried potatoes and hot biscuits, and finally a T-bone steak. After he had finished this and downed his fourth cup of coffee, he leaned back and beckoned to the waitress.

"Call the cops," he said. "I just wanted one square meal. I'm broke. I've been living in flophouses with bums and drinking denatured alcohol."

So the police took him to the workhouse, where he revealed his identity.

ALCOCK PLEDGES FEWER 'USELESS' ARRESTS IN 1931

Fewer arrests and better treatment of prisoners were two pledges for the New Year made yesterday by Acting Police Commissioner Alcock. The reduction in the number of arrests, he explained, will be made by eliminating "useless" arrests, while continuing the fight against crime.

"In 1930 there were 352,000 arrests made in Chicago," said Commissioner Alcock. "Of that number only 25,000 were convicted, leaving over 90 per cent that were needlessly arrested. I am going to eliminate from the force those policemen who make an arrest, throw their prisoner in a cell for the night, and then the next morning decide that they have nothing on the prisoner and charge him with disorderly conduct."

Agents Enter Granada and Lincoln Town

Two of Chicago's de luxe night clubs and restaurants, one the haunt of the bright light crowd of the north side and the other of the south side, were raided early this morning by federal agents under the direction of J. F. J. Herbert, federal prohibition administrator for the Chicago district. The raids were regarded as an indication of what New Year's revelers may expect tonight if they try to become too bibulous.

The places raided were the Lincoln Avenue Town club, 4806 Broadway, and the Granada café, 6800 Cottage Grove avenue. In each of the cafés more than 150 men and women were dancing and dining when the federal agents appeared and announced their identities.

Crash of Glass.

Immediately there were crashes of glass all over the rooms as bottles were hurled to the floor. The raiders, however, announced that no one would be arrested and quiet was quickly restored. The agents went from table to table and confiscated all bottles that had not been broken.

The raid on the Granada was in charge of A. E. Hamilton, deputy administraor. In that place the orchestra of Paul Whiteman was pounding out jazz as the raiders appeared and halted the gayety, but within a few minutes everything was as lively as before. The Broadway club is operated by Jack Huff, who also owns the Lincoln Tavern on Dempster road. The Granada is operated by Al Quadbach, long well known to the city's night life.

It was said the seized liquor probably would be used as evidence in padlock proceedings.

RAID BOOZE NEST

A well furnished apartment, apparently a central office for a booze gang operating in the south side territory dominated by Edward [Spike] O'Donnell and Frank McErlane, was raided in the Highland block, 79th street and Ashland avenue, by a police squad last night. The raid led to the arrest of nine men, the seizure of five revolvers, some of them loaded with dumdum bullets, and of a half dozen shotgun shells hidden in a golf bag.

The apartment was equipped with two telephones. Hours after the raid the telephones jingled constantly, and orders poured in for one to five cases of various liquors and beers. One effect of the police visit, it appeared, would be to disappoint many New Year celebrants dependent for their exhilarants on this particular source. The calls were answered by policemen.

Liquor Supply Headquarters.

The police were convinced from the orders that the apartment was a central office, and suggested that the nine prisoners might have been employed to serve as guards for the various consignments.

It was shortly after dark that Sergts. Thomas Torpey, Paul Johnson, Timothy Regan, and Robert Griffin entered the apartment building and rapped on the door of suite 306. There was a confused bustle inside before the raiders were admitted.

Search of the place disclosed three

LYLE'S BACKERS OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR MAYORALTY

BY PARKE BROWN.

Opened for the first time in the morning, the Lyle mayoralty headquarters in the Hotel La Salle were crowded all day yesterday. Visitors were so numerous that an extemporized staff was unable to analyze and classify all the calls, but the crowd was considered proof of a high public interest in Judge Lyle's candidacy.

In spite of the confusion it was learned that among the visitors were three men formerly identified more or less prominently with the Deneen organization which has indorsed Ald. Arthur F. Albert for mayor. One was William W. Wilson, former congressman, who was on the Deneen slate last year. Another was Herman Vandenberg, regular committeeman from the Eighteenth ward. The third was Henry F. Schulz, president of the Deneen Tenth Ward Republican club, who led in a delegation to say the club had swung to Lyle.

John L. East Takes Charge.

Pending the establishment of a headquarters staff by a business men's committee, John Leonard East, committeeman for the Fifth ward whose organization the night before had indorsed Lyle, took temporary charge of the new headquarters in the La Salle. He was so swamped with visitors that when he spied Congressman Wilson in the crowd he drafted him to help.

The sight of Wilson in any primary headquarters except Deneen's aroused curiosity, and Wilson was questioned about his new activity.

"I'm trying to help out here," he said, "because I'm with Judge Lyle for mayor. And I'm with him because I have known him and his family for many years.

Recalls Early Struggles.

"He went to work for me in 1902 as a stenographer while he was working his way through school in preparation for law school. Since then I have been in constant touch with him in the same church, the same lodge and the same political organization. I was instrumental in bringing him out as a Deneen candidate for the legislature the first time he ever ran for public office.

"I'm with him because I know him and know all about him. He comes from a very fine family, one of the oldest in eastern Tennessee, where his father and his grandfather owned large plantations and beautiful homes and were leaders in the business and social life of that section of the state. His family, because of its Union sympathies, was driven out by bushwhackers, who killed both his grandfather and grandmother.

"That was the reason the boy was working his way through school here in Chicago, but the fine home training of that family showed in the boy then and it shows in the man now."

James J. Cullen, Deneen ward leader in the Thirtieth ward although not the regularly elected committeeman, left the faction's banner during the day and announced that he would support Charles V. Barrett, the first candidate to announce in the now four cornered race. He is a west park commissioner. He predicted Barrett would carry the west side.

Deneen Issues Statement.

Senator Deneen during the day issued a statement giving his side of the argument over the dissolution of the conference of the Republican alliance and his group's indorsement of Ald. Albert for mayor. In his statement Senator Deneen said:

"I attended a series of conferences on invitation, the purpose of which was to unify the elements in the Republican party in Chicago which are opposed to the administration of Mayor Thompson. The conference agreed upon rules which should be followed in these proceedings:

"First, that no action would be taken without unanimous approval.

"Second, that requests were to be made to the various elements who would participate in the movement to submit names of available candidates for the nomination for mayor.

"Third, that the press of Chicago should be sounded as to the candidates submitted and a request made for an indication of those who would be opposed and those who would be supported among the names submitted for consideration and that only those persons should be considered against whom there was no objection by the elements which would unite in a common cause.

"Among those whose names I submitted on behalf of the group which I represented were Ald. Guernsey, Massen and Albert, together with the names of Col. Noble Brandon Judah and Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago. The name of Judge Lyle was submitted among others by representatives of other groups.

"The city newspapers were canvassed as to their attitude towards Judge Lyle among others of the candidates submitted, and it was learned that there was strong opposition to Judge Lyle for reasons which I assume will be stated as the campaign unfolds. I understood that the newspapers would support Ald. Albert, Prof. Merriam and George E. Q. Johnson, the United States attorney.

"Col. Judah, Prof. Merriam, and Mr. Johnson announced that they would not be candidates. Mr. Snow, among others, was unwilling to proceed on the policy of considering those only upon whom general approval as outlined above could be had. The common understanding which brought the groups together being abandoned the conference adjourned.

Gives Views of His Group.

"I think it is fair for me to make a statement to the Republicans of Chicago of the views of those with whom I have been associated for so many years. Their opinion is that the leaders who have supported Mayor Thompson had felt for some time that the mayor's health was such that he would not be a candidate for reelection and that these leaders had begun to make plans to prolong their influence by substituting another leader or leaders for the Thompson group.

"Charles V. Barrett, who had been one of Mayor Thompson's strong supporters for years, announced his candidacy. Another group of the mayor's followers favored the nomination of Judge Lyle, who had been associated with Mayor Thompson for many years and up to within a few days.

"It is apparent that those who supported Judge Lyle wished to foreclose other nominations so that with the candidacies of Mayor Thompson, Mr. Barrett and Judge Lyle, whichever would be nominated, the outcome would prolong and perpetuate Thompsonism in Chicago, and this opinion has been confirmed by the action of Mr. Snow, who was elected chairman of the Republican county committee by the Thompson leaders by the advice of Mayor Thompson.

Forecasts Divided Support.

"As the campaign develops it will become manifest that the Thompson leaders will divide their support among the Thompson candidates and already suggestions are made for one or more of them to withdraw at a suitable time.

"The argument against other candidacies is hypocritical and insincere. If there were any basis for it Judge Lyle should not have announced his candidacy but have permitted the campaign to be waged between Mayor Thompson and Mr. Barrett.

"The leaders with whom I have been associated have opposed Mayor Thompson for nomination at the primaries each time he was a candidate for mayor. Ald. Albert, whom they submit to the consideration of the Republican voters, has been a member of the council for ten years and has been the outstanding opponent in the city council of Thompsonism. His record and his character are his platform and as these are presented to the people during the campaign we feel that those who are opposed to the policies of Mayor Thompson and Thompsonism will approve the candidacy of this intelligent, experienced, courageous and honest public official."

File Petitions Today.

This is the first day for filing nominating petitions for mayor, city clerk and city treasurer at the office of City Clerk Smith. It has been admitted for several years that there is no longer any element of chance or luck in the manner in which the ballot order of the names is determined. Therefore if Thompson's name lands in first place it will be understood that Clerk Smith is with Mayor Thompson for reelection.

The Brundage group will meet today to determine its attitude in the four man race. It is believed they will vote to support Judge Lyle.

BOB COMPANIES RECEIVER FINDS FRAUD EVIDENCE

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—An eighty page report of the financial activities of Charles V. Bob and the companies he promoted was submitted to District Attorney T. C. T. Crain and the United States attorney's office today, according to Francis D. McGarey, attorney for Christopher C. Mollenhauer, receiver for Metal and Mining Shares, Inc., and Metal and Mining Founders Shares, Inc., two of the Bob companies. The report charged juggling of finances.

His report charges that "wash" sales were made between Bob's companies, that Metal and Mining Shares, Inc., an investment trust, purchased large blocks of stock in mines that Bob was promoting, that dividends were paid to investors out of the capital of his companies and that Bob "diverted millions of dollars of cash or marketable securities or the proceeds thereof to his own use."

The published report of Metal and Mining Shares, Inc., included a book profit of $110,609.25 from sale of securities to Metal and Mining Founders Shares, Inc., Mr. McGarey said, but did not mention that the latter company lost $259,054.17 when it sold these same securities.

PAVE 36.6 MILES OF ROADS IN COOK COUNTY IN 1930

A total of 36.6 miles of highway in Cook county was paved during 1930, according to a report made public yesterday by President Cermak of the county board. In addition, 41.5 miles of pavement has been contracted for and will be constructed in the spring of 1931. In 1930 highway programs provided for the construction of 75.5 miles of pavement.

Of the seven bridges and four grade separations listed in 1930 program, four of the bridges are now under construction and the other three bridges and four grade separations will be started in March.

The 1931 program calls for 86 miles of new pavement, 11 bridges and nine grade separations. About 18 miles of pavement included in this program has already been contracted for and an additional 36 miles will be ordered within a few weeks.

JUDGE FREES UNION AGENT.

Because police raided his home at 4134 North Damen avenue without a search warrant, Michael Kohlmayer, business agent for the bakers' union, was freed yesterday by Judge Leon Edelman. Kohlmayer had been charged with responsibility in the death of William Hasselberger, a janitor, who died from drinking poisoned liquor.

COURT AND HIS CAMPAIGN GIVE LYLE BUSY DAY

Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor, retired to bed last midnight remarking that he had done "a fair day's work." A weary reporter, assigned to cover the judge's doings, kept a chronological record of the day and evening.

At 9:30 o'clock in the morning the judge ascended the bench in the Felony court. A few moments later he was invited to appear before the grand jury. He talked to the jurors about his war on crime and the "public enemies" for forty-five minutes.

From 10:30 o'clock to 1 o'clock the judge disposed of more than 50 cases. Three alleged murderers appeared before him. The other cases involved charges of almost every kind known in the criminal courts. The judge passed on the case of a gangster charged with vagrancy.

Works on Campaign Plans.

After 30 minutes in his chambers for lunch, Judge Lyle began hearing more cases, continuing until nearly 6 o'clock. In the evening, at the La Salle hotel, the judge concentrated on his plans for the political campaign. He has insisted that his workers leave him free to conduct the business of the Felony court during the day. After the first of the year he will conduct an extensive speaking campaign each evening, he announced.

When Judge Lyle emerged from the grand jury room after his appearance before the jurors two jurors reported to newspaper men that they had issued the invitation in order to congratulate the judge on "his work in keeping crooks in jail."

"We wanted to congratulate him on the constant stream of gunmen and gangsters whom he is sending before our body and on his efforts in keeping criminals in jail," they said. "We have congratulated him on his ability to think for himself. Here is a man on the bench who is not going back to ancient law to make his decisions and who is trying to keep menaces off the streets of Chicago."

Arraigned as a Robber.

Howard Bonahan, 28 years old, whom police suspect of the murder of Paul Tulupan, manager of the Claridge grill, who was slain Dec. 13, was held to the grand jury by Judge Lyle on five charges of robbery. A number of witnesses identified Bonahan as the man who had held them up with a revolver.

Bonahan later was reported to have been indicted by the grand jury for the murder of Tulupan. Two witnesses were reported to have identified the suspect as the gunman who shot the restaurant man.

Howard Lee, a member of the Shelton gang of East St. Louis, was arraigned before Judge Lyle on a charge of murdering Louis Heisler, whose body was found at Harlem road and 50th street in August, 1929. Lee was accused of taking Heisler for a "ride." The gangster was held without bond. Assistant State's Attorney Frank Mast asked for a delay until Jan. 21 in order to bring in more witnesses.

Accused of Killing Sweetheart.

Jack Antrim, a barber, was arraigned and charged with the murder of his sweetheart, Miss Mary Judkins, who was found strangled to death in their flat at 627 York place. With Antrim was Miss Ora May Harmon, 23 years old, charged with being an accessory to the murder. It is alleged that Miss Harmon had planned to run away with the barber. The hearing was continued to Jan. 13 pending the completion of an inquest on Jan. 9.

Patrick [Paddy] Sullivan, 38 years old, former bodyguard for Joe Saltis, public enemy, asked for a jury trial when arraigned on charges of vagrancy. Sullivan's record showed that he had been arrested 14 times and found "not guilty" 13 times in the last four years. He was granted a jury trial.

Judge Lyle's attitude in the general crime drive was shown when a Negro defendant charged that police had beaten him.

"If that's true I don't like it when a poor man is involved," Judge Lyle said. "If the police want to work out a little on these well dressed gangsters who appear before me, that's a different matter."

Postpones Gun Toting Cases.

Gun toting charges against Joseph Joblonski, Tony Grecco, and Nick Dianno who were seized by police from the state's attorney's office near the south side home of Al Capone on Dec. 7, the day of the wedding of Capone's sister, Mafalda, were continued for the third time yesterday. The delay was allowed by Justice of the Peace Frank Synakiewicz of Blue Island, because the prosecutor was engaged elsewhere. Jan. 12 was set for the next hearing.

GIRL, 20, KILLED, 3 OTHERS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

A young woman was killed and three other persons were injured, one seriously, yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a motor coach at 63d street and the west drive in Jackson park. The dead woman was Miss Ethel Oman, 20 years old, 6324 Blackstone avenue, a waitress.

Her injured companions are Miss Eldora Lanner, 25 years old, 6324 Blackstone avenue, who received a fractured shoulder and internal injuries, and Earl Seleiz, 25 years old, 6201 Blackstone avenue, and Nathan Rosen, 26 years old, 5100 Kenwood avenue, both of whom were cut and bruised.

Miss Oman's death and two others raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 1,122. The victims:

Jeremiah Fitzpatrick, 60 years old, 8413 South Sangamon street, a barn foreman for Armour & Co. at the stockyards. Killed almost instantly after leaving a Racine avenue street car at 47th street by an automobile driven by John Buckard, 28 years old, a restaurant owner at 3140 West 47th street. Buckard was held.

DEMOCRATS BAN BIPARTY DEALS ON SPEAKERSHIP

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Prospects of a deadlock over the speakership when the legislature meets at Springfield on Jan. 7 led Cook county Democratic members yesterday to make formal avowal that they will not enter any bipartisan deals or trades with any Republican group to elect a speaker. At a caucus at the Sherman hotel scouts reported that the city hall had offered the support of some 20 Thompson-Small local legislators to put a Democrat in the chair, and that some downstate anti-Emmerson members were talking of bolting the Republican caucus on the night of Jan. 6.

Michael L. Igoe, Democratic national committeeman, was the unanimous choice of the local Democrats for speaker. Mr. Igoe was not at the meeting, being absent in Iowa, but he was quoted as declaring against any deals, saying he would prefer not to be speaker rather than to be tied down by any bipartisan alliance.

The Democrats' Position.

The membership of the house stands: Republicans, 81; Democrats, 72. The general position taken by the Democrats is that, as the minority party, they do not want the speakership. They hold it would cramp their style at Springfield and furnish the Republicans with an alibi in case the session does not produce constructive legislation.

They take the view that if a Democrat were elected with the aid of Republican votes, especially Thompson votes, it would impair the Democratic mayoralty campaign. Looking still further ahead, they hold it would be tied up with the governorship fight two years hence.

Reports were current in the corridors that 15 or so downstate Republicans are lined up in support of Gustave J. Johnson of Paxton against David E. Shanahan. Mr. Johnson is a former chairman of the Republican state committee. Others are said to be lining up for Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago, who, however, is friendly to Mr. Shanahan and says he would not "go out to fight Dave." The opposition to the reelection of Mr. Shanahan is regarded as more anti-Emmerson than anti-Shanahan.

At the Republican caucus on Jan. 6 the governorship of 1932 is expected to be at the back of some jockeying. As the Democratic meeting viewed it yesterday, when the house starts to elect a speaker no group may have the required constitutional majority, and a deadlock may ensue. Some of Mr. Shanahan's friends, however, hold that the usual honey pots will bring about harmony among the Republicans.

Back Legislative Program.

The caucus yesterday picked Senator Thomas J. Courtney as its candidate for president pro tem. of the senate, and pledged its members to united action behind legislation embodying the program in the mayoralty platform of Anton J. Cermak, county chairman. It includes:

Consolidation of overlapping governments in Cook county.

Reduction of either the state tax levy or the state's receipts from special taxes.

Reapportionment as ordained by the constitution.

Repeal of the state prohibition act was given first place on the program in a resolution put in by Representative Thomas J. O'Grady and the Cook county Democrats, as announced last week, made passage of their program a prerequisite of their support of any other legislation or state appropriation bills. They propose, if possible, to tie up the legislature until the program goes through.

HEADACHE JOB HUNTERS GIVE BOSS AN ACHE

92 Apply, but None Is Chosen—Yet.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Forty-two persons appeared at the Research and Educational hospital of the University of Illinois, 1819 Polk street, yesterday as applicants for a job, the only requisite for which is a genuine splitting headache of a variety known as migraine. Forty-nine others applied by telephone, and one by letter.

"I've questioned all of them, with the result that I have such a headache myself I can't think," said Mrs. John Millikin, laboratory technician at the hospital, where a subject is wanted to assist research regarding the causes and possible cure for migraine.

Hoboes March on Hospital.

The first onslaught of applicants consisted of West Madison street hoboes who were so anxious for the job that they answered "yes" to all questions, some of which should have been answered by "no." Moreover, the breath of many of them was heavily laden with liquor, which convinced Mrs. Millikin that their headaches, while legitimate, were not caused by migraine.

Other persons who called said they had headaches then and there, which was a mistake, since if they had had migraine headaches they would have been home in bed, Mrs. Millikin said.

"Of course, they had headaches, but most of them were unemployment headaches," Mrs. Millikin said. "Naturally, you'd have a headache if you hadn't eaten much lately."

Applicants Are Tested.

Those applicants lucky enough to have what she considered a rattling good case of migraine submitted to blood tests and X-rays to determine if they had any other diseases. The subject of the experimentation must have migraine and migraine only. Applications will be received until the perfect headache subject is encountered, Mrs. Millikin said.

She then outlined what kind of job the successful applicant will have. He will have evenings and Sundays off, but must eat his meals at the hospital, submit to several blood and skin and other tests weekly and deliver a good migraine headache at least once a month.

"I know this is one thing I qualify for," said Herbert Grossberg, 22 years old, 1026 East 50th street, son of a lawyer and a student at the University of Michigan for the last three years. "I've had migraine headaches all my life, and my father has them. They're heriditary, you know. Lots of old boys like Heinrich Heine, the poet, have had migraine."

A Few Likely Candidates.

He was the only applicant who already has a job. As migraine is usually suffered by persons described by Mrs. Millikin as "temperamentally nervous individuals, brain workers in particular," many of the candidates did not appear to have first class hereditary cases.

However, there was Mandel Wishner, 1812 Turner avenue, who has had migraine headaches on one side or the other of his head for most of 63 years. He was classified by Mrs. Millikin as a likely subject.

C. B. Morgan, 53 years old, 3043 Lexington street, gave a vivid description of just how pain-racking his headaches were. Robert Roms, 26 years old, 4532 North Racine avenue, and Alex Martin, 1606 Lake street, were others who were hopeful of qualifying.

GETS 1 YEAR FOR SHOOTING.

Charged with assault with a deadly weapon because he fired his revolver at a neighbor's lace curtains, Theodore Petryszak, 40 years old, 1832 North Paulina street, was sent to the House of Correction for a year yesterday by Judge Alfred O. Erickson.

JOFFRE SINKING; DOCTORS STATE DEATH IS NEAR

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Dec. 31 (Wednesday).—(AP)—An official statement at 7 a. m. today by Marshal Joffre's physicians said:

"Notwithstanding a few respiratory spasms, the night was calm. The patient, who remains conscious, is visibly weakening. The pulse is increasingly rapid and the tension is falling."

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 31.—[Wednesday.]—Marshal Joffre's death is a question of but a few hours, according to physicians who examined him shortly before 4 a. m. today. The 78 year old fighter's chief physicians, Prof. Le Riche and Dr. Boulin, left the hospital at 11:30 p. m., but were summoned to return by telephone at 1 a. m.

"He is gradually growing weaker," they announced after a long stay in the sickroom of the Hospital of St. Jean de Dieu. "He can't live much longer. His breathing is irregular, though he is conscious. He may die within the next three hours."

Family at Bedside.

Up until midnight Marshal Joffre had thrice entered a death coma and emerged each time after doctors administered hypodermics of camphor and salt.

"It is superhuman force—a man 40 years old would not have resisted so long," Dr. Boulin said yesterday.

Early yesterday Marshal Joffre again awakened. He asked for food, saying he was hungry. His nurse let him sip milk, but the stricken soldier took the glass in his own hand and drank slowly.

"I am going to die," he muttered thickly.

A few minutes later the crippled Gen. Gouraud, whose right arm was blown away by Turkish shrapnel at Gallipoli, entered the room.

"Remember me, marshal? I was with you in Timbuctoo—I was your soldier," the general whispered into the stricken man's ear.

"I am going."

Mme. Joffre has remained stoically at her husband's bedside, refusing to leave except to catch a wink of sleep. The doctors—a half dozen are in attendance—stand idly by, their skill exhausted, unable to reinforce the vigor of the veteran's constitution in a struggle against the inevitable.

Wants Simple Funeral.

There is considerable speculation over the character of the funeral for Joffre in event of his death. His intimates, including officers attached to his staff, claim the marshal's last will and testament insists on a private burial without the pomp that marked Marshal Foch's rites.

It is reported that Mme. Joffre is in accord with her husband's wishes and will demand they be carried out regardless of the desire of the government and the nation to mark the death of the war hero with a fitting commemoration.

500 CHICAGOANS 'MOB' HOOVER IN EFFORT TO SHAKE HANDS WITH HIM

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—A group of 500 Chicagoans, most of them school teachers from the metropolitan area, gave President Hoover and his secret service men a thrill today when they suddenly rushed the President in an effort to shake hands with the chief executive, after he had posed with them for a photograph.

The President was completely surrounded and caught up in the rush momentarily before surprised secret service men extricated Mr. Hoover and escorted him over to another group awaiting an opportunity to pose with the President of the United States. Although taken somewhat unawares by the eagerness of the Chicago group, the President was obviously pleased by the warmth of the reception accorded him.

Representative Carl Chindblom [Rep., Ill.] arranged for the Chicago party's trip to the White House. The photograph was taken on the south grounds.

End Arguments on $45,000 Suit Against Peck Estate

Closing arguments in the suit of Mrs. Arline Peck Warwick to collect $45,000 from the estate of her father, Ferdinand W. Peck, pioneer Chicagoan, were made yesterday before Probate Judge Horner. A decision is expected today.

JEWS OF NATION BACK RABBIS IN WAR ON RACKET

Church Rulers Pledge Aid to Local Council.

Orthodox Jews throughout the United States and Canada yesterday expressed their approval and promised their aid in the fight of the Chicago rabbinate to drive racketeering from the shoetim, organization of kosher poultry killers. State's Attorney Swanson's office likewise promised coöperation to drive out present officers of the union, with special attention paid to Joe Etkins, business agent, for whom a warrant has already been sworn out, charging assault and battery.

In a telegram from New York received at the offices of the Chicago council of rabbis, 3600 West Roosevelt road, officers of the rabbinate of America, consisting of 400 members and ruling the American orthodox church, complimented Rabbi Menrahem Sacks and other council members on their action.

Pledge Moral Support.

The telegram stated that, beginning this morning, Jews throughout America will be exhorted to give moral support the fight.

[illegible]ant State's Attorney Donald [illegible]pson, member of the racket bureau, who has been dealing with racketeering among the shoctim, promised full coöperation.

"If necessary," the prosecutor said, "we will issue a call to a special election of the shoctim, conduct it ourselves, and provide protection. The Shakespeare avenue police hold a warrant for the arrest of Joe Etkins on an assault charge. If he is arrested we will see that he is also booked for assault with a deadly weapon."

Etkins Attends Union Meeting.

Noah Greenberg, a shoctet, or poultry killer, said to have been slugged on the orders of Etkins, was seriously injured and is a secret patient in a Chicago hospital. Members of his family fear that he will be intimidated.

An all day meeting of the shoctim, held in the Douglas auditorium, Ogden and Kedzie avenues, yesterday was attended by Etkins.

PERSONALTY TAX IS SO POOR NONE WILL DO IT HONOR

Malone Finishes Hearing on Reassessment.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The state tax commission will decide next Saturday whether it will order a reassessment of all personal property in Cook county for the tax year of 1929. This announcement was made by Chairman William H. Malone at the close of the hearing yesterday at which the opposition took most of the three hour session.

The association of real estate taxpayers again pressed its petition for the reassessment. Its spokesman, John M. Pratt, asserted without challenge that real estate pays 85 per cent of the taxes, and that this share is unfair.

No one defended the present assessment of personal property. The opponents of the reassessment criticized it more severely than the advocates of the reassessment.

Strawn Tells of Danger.

"But," argued Silas H. Strawn of the citizen's revenue committee, "a reassessment of the personal property cannot be completed in time to permit the collection of the 1929 taxes on April 1 next, as scheduled. "If taxes are not then collected, the tax anticipation warrants outstanding cannot be paid. That will destroy the credit of the city and other local governments. New tax warrants cannot be sold. No cash can be obtained. The salaries of the policemen, firemen and school teachers cannot be paid."

"The present personal property assessments could not be made worse," said Harry S. Cutmore who appraised all of the real estate in Cook county. "In my opinion, it would take six months to make the reassessment, after you have gathered a competent staff. And how would you get that?

"My head man on building appraisals has quit and it is rumored that a ward committeeman has been found who will fit perfectly into the place. I know the ward committeeman, and is appraisal work he doesn't know a brick from a bale of hay.

"My head man has been offered $4,000 a year by a large insurance company, and I could not pay him more than $5,000. If you order a reassessments of personal property for 1931, you will create chaos and later make the tax bills higher."

Advocates New System.

John O. Rees, executive director of the joint tax commission, said that in Cincinnati and Cleveland personal property pays 25 to 30 per cent of the taxes, while in Chicago only 12 or 13 per cent is paid by that class of property. Those cities operate under a uniform property tax requirement such as applies in Illinois. Mr. Rees urged legislative enactments to permit a system which would bring in more personalty taxes while waiting for a change in the state constitution that would allow a modern taxing system.

Douglas Sutherland for the Civic federation said that the proposed reassessment "would indefinitely postpone tax collections, create a worse financial muddle than the last one, and greatly increase real estate taxes by necessitating huge interest payments for borrowed money." He asserted that the plan proposed "would drive investing capital and business out of Chicago."

New Basis Law Needed.

As counter constructive suggestions he urged a constitutional convention to provide for the submission of more than one revenue amendment to the people at a time, so that a modern tax system could be set up.

"If you tax uniformly money and industries," said Thomas Rhodes, a real estate owner, "you will drive both out of Chicago. Labor will follow to obtain employment. Then what will become of the values in local real estate?"

George O. Fairweather, head of the joint tax commission, and Dr. Edmond Jacobson, who is connected with the University of Chicago, also spoke.

Claim Point Is Proved.

Mr. Pratt, in reply to the opponents of reassessment, argued that substantial inequalities in the local taxes have been shown and that no evidence against that contention had been produced. Then he read from an annual report of the state tax commission in which it was stated:

"The tax commission has only one course of action open to it when substantial inequalities are revealed."

Mr. Pratt continued:

"The whole opposition is based upon grounds of public policy. No one contends that the present assessment is valid or defensible."

William Castleman, Bernard Hodes, also urged the reassessment.

Malone Attacks Spenders.

During the hearing Chairman Malone caustically commented upon the tax assessment system. At its close he added: "I promised a thorough and uncontrolled investigation, which you have had. Real estate is carrying more than its share of the tax burden. Unless there are drastic changes in the administration of the assessing machinery, we will not fairly and honestly meet the issue.

"The big fault in the situation is the criminally wasteful spending of public money. The indecent conditions prevail in most of our principal local governments. What should be done is to close the city hall for a month and clean it out."

Among members of the association of real estate taxpayers present were Leo J. Lesser, James Bistor, and Thomas D. Collins.

B. B. Lipsner Appointed Member of Aero Board

Benjamin B. Lipsner, who has been mentioned as a possible opponent of Ald. John A. Massen [48th], in the aldermanic election, was appointed a member of the Chicago aero commission yesterday by Mayor Thompson. Thompson also reappointed Preston Bradley and Joseph D. Bibb, editor of the Chicago Whip and a lawyer, as members of the public library board.

CLARKE URGES CITY TO COMPLETE RELIEF FUND EARLY IN 1931

Philip R. Clarke, who heads the campaign for relief funds started by Gov. Emmerson's commission on unemployment, announced yesterday that his office will be open and his staff at work on New Year's day to carry into 1931 the drive for $5,000,000 deemed necessary to care for Chicago's jobless this winter. As the old year wanes the fund has reached $3,102,257, representing about 62 per cent of the quota sought.

Yesterday's subscriptions totaled $29,095. Among donors were: John Sexton & Co., and employés; $2,500; S. S. Kresge Co., $2,000; employés' committee of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Co., $2,000; A. C. McClurg & Co., and employés, $1,800; Compressed Industrial Gases, Inc., and employés, $1,489; A. Fingl & Sons Co., and employés, $1,000; Popular Mechanics Co., $1,000.

"Several important business concerns of the city have refused to adopt our pay deduction plan for employés," said Mr. Clarke, "and others feel that in taking care of their employés they are doing their full duty in this emergency. These concerns must realize that they have a mass obligation in this matter."

He urged that employers and employed aid in finishing the drive for funds early in the new year.

FEARS OF ONE OF 2 SLAIN SISTERS ADD TO MYSTERY

Her Dread of Tragedy Told by Friends.

Officers were told that Jessie had been apprehensive as to her safety for weeks. They were attempting to learn the identity of the person she was reported to have told friends had "shawdowed" her all fall.

The story of her dread was told by friends at Norman, Oka., seat of the University of Oklahoma, where Jessie Griffith was supervisor of music in the public schools.

One Sister Raped.

Jessie Griffith was raped, and County Attorney Bruce Potter here expressed the belief that mistreatment of the girl was the only motive for the slayings.

The sisters were shot to death near Tonkawa early Sunday, while driving back to their school work after spending the Christmas holidays with their parents here.

Friends said Jessie had refused to travel here for the Thanksgiving holiday to visit her parents because she was afraid "something might happen." At Christmas time she did not want to come home. She expressed apprehension because the new motor car in which she was to ride could be recognized easily. Friends said shortly after Jessie purchased the car a man who knew her bought one exactly like it and often drove past the McDermott home.

Tells of Telephone Calls.

Mrs. Hugh McDermott, wife of the University of Oklahoma basketball coach, at whose home Jessie lived in Norman, said the girl received many telephone calls in recent weeks and persistently refused "dates."

County Attorney Potter said he was convinced Earl Quinn, alias Earl Howard, former Missouri convict, was the slayer.

Potter said Quinn was in Tonkawa the night before the crime and that "evidence was very damaging against him." Quinn has not been seen since.

JUDGE MACK TO ADDRESS ZIONIST DINNER ON JAN. 8

Judge Julian W. Mack, honorary chairman of the Zionist Organization of America, who recently returned from his second visit to Palestine, will address Chicago Zionists at a dinner in the Covenant club, 10 North Dearborn street, on Thursday night, Jan. 8.

Judge Mack will describe conditions in Palestine and the outlook for the future. He also is expected to tell details of recent negotiations between the Jewish agency and the British government.

Judge Harry M. Fisher is president of the Chicago Zionist organization and will preside at the dinner. He has appointed Miss Pearl Franklin as chairman of the committee on arrangements, which includes 35 members.

RECALL IROQUOIS FIRE IN HOSPITAL MEMORIAL RITES

Describe Scene of the Theater Tragedy.

Memories of the Iroquois fire, which took the lives of 575 persons 27 years ago yesterday, were recalled at the annual meeting yesterday of the Iroquois Memorial association in the Iroquois Memorial Emergency hospital, 23 North Wacker drive.

"I was a private on engine 13 at Dearborn and Lake streets," said Michael J. Corrigan, who in 1927 was made fire marshal, in addressing the meeting. "It was a cold day, about like this, but not sunny. A fellow came along and rapped on the window of the fire station and said, 'There's a fire at the Iroquois.' I said, 'Captain, let 'em out,' meaning the horses.

"We tore to the Iroquois. I remember taking the people out of the top balconies, where they were packed in; burned as they sat upright in their seats, many of them. We got 40 or 50 out before the balconies began to fall."

Tells of Aiding Injured.

John E. Traeger, former sheriff, was coroner at the time of the fire. He described the scene at the theater.

Dr. W. A. Evans of THE TRIBUNE told of his experiences in caring for the burned and wounded. He said the Iroquois hospital, built eight years after the fire, and greater safety in theaters were benefits that grew out of the tragedy.

Mrs. S. H. Ragensburg, Windermere hotel, whose 14 and 16 year old daughters lost their lives, said she hoped that Chicago would make the Iroquois hospital a perpetual memorial. Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel also spoke.

Describes His Escape.

"Eddie Foy was on the stage, dancing, and a woman was suspended by a steel belt to invisible wires in the wings, getting ready to sail out over the audience to scatter roses," recalled Lester M. Livingston.

"I was a boy of 10, with my 8 year old sister, in the second row," he continued. "I heard this woman scream and look up, fascinated. Then the flames broke out of a switchboard and I was still watching, wondering if they'd let her down, when the curtain went up in flames and her clothes were ignited. Then I turned. All the people had fled and were piled up in the center of the house and at exits. My boyish curiosity had saved me. I found my sister and, escaping the rush, got out."

COUNCIL ORDERS INQUIRY ON MILK AND BREAD PRICES

Ald. John Toman [23d] yesterday sponsored an order in the city council for an investigation into the prices of milk, bread, and some foodstuffs in an effort to relieve the distress of the unemployed. The council ordered its committee on unemployment to make the investigation.

The retail prices of foodstuffs have dropped from 10 to 14 per cent, according to Ald. Toman, as compared with prices of a year ago, while the prices of bread and milk have remained about the same as during the World war. It is desirable, he said, that retail prices of foodstuffs and other necessities conform to reduced wage scales.

In another resolution introduced by Ald. Toman, the unemployment committee is directed to investigate the feasibility of providing free text books, food and clothing and free street car, elevated and motorbus transportation for school children from the homes of the unemployed.

CHICAGO TO VOTE ON AMENDMENT TO ELECTION LAW

Under a city ordinance which became effective yesterday Chicago voters on Feb. 24 will decide on the adoption of a legislative act providing for contests of disputed aldermanic elections.

The lack of any provision for challenging the proclaimed results of such elections was discovered three years ago, and Urban Lavery, at that time attorney for the election board, drafted the new statute and the city ordinance to cover the defect.

Hold Inquest Today on Death of Dentist's Son

A coroner's jury today will investigate the death of Merle Hinckley, 21 years old, invalid son of Dr. Carl Hinckley, south side dentist. The son was found dead in his father's arms last Saturday. The father had turned on the gas in their home and tried to die with the son.

JACK FROST VISITS SOUTHERN FLORIDA; COLD TO STAY, TOO

Miami, Fla., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Frost as far south as Moorehaven, on the shores of Lake Okeechobee, was reported to the United States weather bureau here today.

That area is the south Florida truckling belt, but no mention was made regarding the extent to which crops suffered.

Pall Hides California's Sun.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Los Angeles today experienced its tenth consecutive day of heavily fired smudge pots. The constant smudge fires from tens of thousands of outdoor oil and coke burners are fighting frost and inroads into the tender orange crop.

The smudge pall left several outlying towns in midnight gloom at noon, with street lights operating. Three were killed in a Pomona crash when an interurban train struck an automobile on a crossing.

SIFT MYSTERY, DEATH OF NAVAL AID TO HOOVER

Settle Found Dead in Office Building.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—District of Columbia police today began an investigation into the death of Lieut. Bruce Settle, junior naval aid to President Hoover.

The district officials suspect there is some connection between the death of the navy officer, who was found dead in an office building in the navy yard yesterday, and a hit and run automobile accident the night before in which four persons were injured.

Police Impound Auto.

The lieutenant's automobile was impounded by the police. It answers the description of the one which crashed into a crowd on a crowded city street and sped away. The fender was smashed, a headlight broken, and the radiator damaged.

It was toward seven o'clock Saturday night when an automobile ran through a street car safety zone on Connecticut avenue without halting afterwards.

Employés of the apartment house where Lieut. Settle lived were questioned by police. They said Settle was pale when he passed through the lobby about 7 o'clock. He told them if any one inquired for him to tell them he had been there since 6:30.

Lived with Another Bachelor.

Settle went to the apartment where he lived with another bachelor officer and was not seen again, so far as any one knows, until Monday morning when his body was found in the navy yard building. Police investigation indicated that he had been killed in a fall from a mezzanine balcony to the main floor.

It was reported that Settle had been arrested for reckless driving on Christmas eve.

Final Report Friday.

A navy department board of inquest is considering the case. The board expects to conclude its deliberations tomorrow and make a final report on Friday. The report will then go to the department. At the naval hospital an autopsy is in progress. The naval physicians have declined to make public any of their findings, saying that their report must go to the inquest board.

Lieut. Settle was graduated from the naval academy in 1921, and after sea service was assigned to instruction work at the navy yard. Last fall he was given the additional assignment of junior naval aid at the White House.

TWO FINED FOR BEATINGS.

Fines of $25 each were levied against William Clemens, 21 years old, 2511 Foster avenue, and Joseph Murphy, 24, of 2106 Belle Plaine avenue, by Judge Leon Edelman yesterday. The two were accused of beating several nonunion workers of the Superior Photo Engraving company, 215 West Superior street.

OVER 2 BILLIONS SPENT IN CHICAGO STORES IN YEAR

Census Bureau Compiles Figures for 1929.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—More than two billion dollars was spent in Chicago retail stores during the calendar year 1929, the census bureau disclosed today in a preliminary Chicago report of distribution figures collected as a part of the decennial census last April.

The report not only demonstrated by official statistics the vast buying power of the Chicago trade area but showed, by comparision with a preliminary census for 1926, a steady and healthy growth in the city's retail business during the three year period. It also singled out Chicago as one of the strongholds of the chain store system.

There were in Chicago at the close of 1929 a total of 43,625 retail stores which did an aggregate of business that year of $2,153,626,553. The yearly pay roll was $275,136,560 and the full time employés numbered 171,749 men and women. The total number of employés does not include those working part time, although the pay roll of part time employés is included in salaries and wages. Merchandise in stock for sale at the end of 1929 showed a cost value of $267,072,881.

During the three years between 1926 and 1929 the number of stores increased 2,381, total sales increased $172,486,153, and the pay roll mounted $12,007,969.

Comparisons Show Vast Trade.

Some idea of the enormity of the foregoing figures may be gained from comparisons. The 1929 Chicago retail sales exceeded the wealth of each of ten states of the Union and approximated one-half of all expenditures of the federal government. They would have paid the annual interest on the public debt three times over. Given a frontage of fifty feet each and placed side by side, the 43,625 stores would stretch along a mythical street reaching from Chicago to New York of approximately 900 miles.

The census of distribution, from which the Chicago statistics were derived, was made in 1930 on a nationwide scale for the first time, the 1926 survey having been conducted as an experiment in only eleven cities. It is expected to present to the business men of the country for the first time a comprehensive survey of trade conditions so that comparisons can be made between cities, classes of stores, and periods of time.

Robert J. McFall, chief statistician for distribution, and John Guernsey, in charge of retail distribution, prepared the Chicago report which was made public by W. M. Stuart, director of the census bureau.

Details of Statistics.

The 43,625 stores in Chicago include 34,947 single store independents, 2,018 units of two store multiples, and 744 units of three store multiples.

There are eleven utility operated stores and twelve stores of local branch systems. Of the chains, there are 2,311 units of local chains, 1,400 units of sectional chains, and 2,000 units of national chains, 65 units of leased department chains, and 65 units of manufacturer controlled chains and sales branch agencies.

"Single store independents report 50 per cent of the total retail business of Chicago, a proportion considerably smaller than that found in any of the cities completed by the bureau up to this time," the report states.

"Including the two store and three store multiples, the total is only 61.11 per cent. This compares with 31.46 per cent for the five types of chains referred to above, or 29.8 per cent for the local, sectional and national chains alone."

Chain Systems Grow.

Only 18.5 per cent of the total sales of Chicago's variety, 5 and 10, and to a dollar and general stores are single store independents, the report showed. The percentage of sales by such stores of other varieties are: Grocery, 44.5; drug, 57.9; filling stations, 59.8; department, 26.7; women's ready to wear specialty, 42.7; shoe, 28.7. Thus, only in the drug and filling stations lines do the single store independents still predominate over the chain system competitors.

From the standpoint of all business transacted, the general merchandise group takes the lead in Chicago, with the food group second, and the automotive and apparel groups nearly tied for third place. These four groups alone account for two-thirds of the entire retail business of the city.

Summarizing the statistics for the various groups of establishments the report stated:

"The general merchandise group, which includes department stores, dry goods stores and variety, five and ten, and to a dollar stores, reports $505,782,704 of sales in 1,492 stores, employs the full time services of 49,319 people and pays out $63,312,206 annually in salaries and wages. Stock on hand for sale amounts to practically $70,000,000 at cost. Of this group's total sales 72 department stores sell $395,956,023, which is 78 per cent of the group and 18.4 per cent of the total retail business of Chicago.

Department Store Figures.

"Of the department store business, 26.7 per cent is reported by 38 single store independents, 41.6 per cent by local multiple unit organizations, approximately 22 per cent by sectional and national chains, and approximately 10 per cent by mail order distributors. Five hundred and eighteen variety and general stores report sales aggregating $36,672,958, of which more than 75 per cent is sold in 147 units of sectional and national chains.

"Food stores are more numerous, by far, than the stores in any other group, aggregating 15,966, or 36.6 per cent of the stores, but handling only 19.85 per cent of the sales volume. They employ 20,242 full time people, and pay out $35,314,187 annually in salaries and wages.

"Grocery store sales alone total $202,517,996, and meat markets sales, $111,292,904. There are 7,275 grocery stores, of which 1,600 have fresh meat departments in addition to the 3,212 meat markets.

"The automotive group, with $252,380,068 of sales, or 11.7 per cent of the city's total, shows 3,540 stores, garages and filling stations employing 16,148 full time people and paying $31,404,412 annually in salaries, wages, and commissions.

Apparel Stores and Shop.

"There are 5,280 stores selling men's and women's apparel and furnishings, using the full time services of 18,265 employés to sell $244,742,402 of merchandise at a pay roll cost of $35,880,395. Women's apparel shops report sales in 965 stores of $68,675,512, followed closely by sales in 1,152 men's and boys' stores of $68,397,280.

"Restaurants and other eating places are fifth in importance in order of sales, and second in number of employés. A total of 4,474 eating places is shown, with $129,814,537 of sales."

STATE TAX RATE FIXED AT 39 CTS. ON $100; NO RAISE

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Following an all day session, the state tax levy board announced that the state tax rate for 1930 will be thirty-nine cents on the hundred dollar valuation. This rate is the same as for the previous year. The board is composed of Gov. Emmerson, State Auditor Oscar Nelson, and State Treasurer Omer N. Custer. The rate is divided as follows:

General revenue	.15
State school purposes	.12½
Soldiers' bonus bonds	.03½
Illinois waterway bonds	.01 2-3
University of Illinois	.03 1-3
Blind relief	.01
Total	.39

It generally was expected the rate would be given a slight boost, but the board decided that the rate of last year would bring sufficient revenue to conduct affairs for the coming year.

Convicted Robber to Ask Supreme Court Rehearing

Notice was filed with the clerk of the Illinois Supreme court yesterday of the intention of "Big Joe" Moran, serving a sentence for robbery, to ask for a rehearing of his case. IMPROVING

MME. MARCELLA SEMBRICH.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Friends of Mme. Marcella Sembrich, former opera prima donna, learned today that a recent severe illness which had kept her abed for a week was abating. She passed a restful night at her home at 151 Central Park West. Dr. Charles G. Taylor, her physician, visited her today and said she showed improvement. "The physician denied that she was "seriously ill."

Mme. Sembrich, who is 72 years old, is suffering from intestinal trouble. All her engagements have been canceled for the present, including those with her pupils, a few of whom she teaches during the winter.

Mme. Sembrich was stricken with a similar attack last fall but her recovery was prompt and she was able to resume teaching after a lapse of a few days.

JACK GUZIK GETS 5 YEARS IN CELL AND $17,500 FINE

Jack Guzik, No. 2 power in the Al Capone gang, was sentenced to five years and a day in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $17,500 by Federal Judge Woodward yesterday on charges of evading income taxes. The sentence was the heaviest so far imposed in United States Attorney Johnson's war on tax dodging hoodlums and politicians and one of the most severe ever imposed for tax evasion.

Guzik was found guilty by a jury six weeks ago of willful attempts to evade $230,000 in taxes on a total income of more than $1,000,000 for 1927, 1928, and 1929.

Johnson Praises Sentence.

The government prosecutors, Cassius Poust, Dwight H. Green, and Jacob Grossman, expressed satisfaction over the sentence and District Attorney Johnson established a precedent by issuing a statement.

"The sentence of Guzik," Mr. Johnson said, "should certainly help the fight on Chicago gangs, for two reasons: It breaks the morale of gang leadership. It destroys the faith of the gangsters in those who boast they can protect or fix the cases of those who seem to have enjoyed immunity for years.

"If the fight is waged as relentlessly in the future the gangsters and their ilk will leave Chicago. Judge Woodward has struck a blow that will have a far reaching effect."

The district attorney's advocacy of quick justice and stiff sentences as a means of deterring crime was paralleled by a passage in Judge Woodward's written opinion: "The court must also take into consideration the example which punishment in one case will have on others and thus insure voluntary obedience to the revenue laws."

After his motion for a new trial was denied, Defense Attorney William F. Waugh contended that the sentence for Guzik should not be "out of line" with others imposed in similar cases. He cited the sentences of Ralph Capone, three years; County Assessor Gene Oliver, eighteen months; and Frank Nitto, alias Nitti, another Capone gangster, eighteen months.

Waugh declared that the heaviest sentence ever imposed in a tax case was five years, and that the defendant, a woman, was convicted of aiding and abetting movie stars to cheat the government on their income taxes.

"The good faith of counsel in presenting the defense has not been impeached," said Judge Woodward. "Counsel conducted the defense very ably and in a dignified manner. These offenses touch the good order, safety, and existence of the government, and punishment therefor, while not necessarily severe, should be certain and substantial."

Sentenced on Three Counts.

Guzik was sentenced to two years in prison on each of two felony counts and one year and a day on a third. He was fined $7,500 on each of the first two counts and $2,500 on the third, the sentences to run consecutively and the fines to be cumulative.

The defendant plans to appeal his case and a writ of supersedeas was granted. The government hopes to dispose of the case in the Circuit Court of Appeals by April.

The prosecutors said that if the Appeals court rules with them and the Supreme court declines to review the case, Guzik should be on his way to Leavenworth by next fall.

Guzik will receive eight days a month for good behavior, which means that he will not have to serve more than three years and eight months, even if he is not paroled.

THOUSANDS FLEE BRITISH INDIA IN "TAX REVOLT"

Abandon Homes Rather than Pay Levies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 10.—[By courier and mail to escape censor.]—"Let the other people do what they like, but we are not going to pay a cent. We have taken this vow after a full realization of the hardships and misery that may result therefrom, and now there cannot be anything to deter us from the firm stand we have taken up. Let our fields be sold, let our property be attached and let even our houses be given away to others. Oppressed, we have left our dear homes and migrated, and we do not wish to return to our villages until the mahatma [Gandhi] and other leaders direct us to pay up the revenue and return to our homes."

These words of defiance were hurled by a delegation of India's "tax rebels" at Commissioner Garret, a revenue collector, who asked refugees in the village of Rupiapura to pay their taxes and return home.

Thousands Quit Homes.

The tax revolt for home rule of India continues to grow. Thousands of farmers and their families in Gujerat, a part of British India, have migrated into states ruled by native Indian princes, leaving behind their homes, their farms, their crops and even many of their personal belongings. They have given up all rather than pay taxes to Great Britain.

The sacrifices made by these "tax rebels" is thrilling all India. The suffering which they are undergoing presents such a serious problem that a special investigation was recently ordered by the Indian Merchants' chamber of Bombay. The report has been presented to the Bombay government by L. R. Fairsee and J. K. Mehta, who investigated in the Bardoli and Borsad districts of Gujerat.

Report Tells of Suffering.

After declaring that the committee of the merchants' chamber does not uphold the campaign for nonpayment of taxes, the report describes the poverty and helplessness of the refugee farmers and the conditions which prompted them to desert their lands.

"We went by motor car to the village of Kural, in the Baroda district, to which several hundreds of agriculturists from the British villages have migrated to escape the oppression exercised on them by the revenue and police authorities," the report says. "These villagers have not paid land revenue for 1929, and many of them not the additional amount for 1928 fixed by the Broomfield committee.

"The agriculturists here said they would have nothing to complain against if the ordinary process of law for the recovery of the land revenue were applied against them. What they bitterly complained against was the beating and abuse and general ill treatment to which they were continuously exposed and the wholesale confiscation of lands and crops under the land revenue code.

Live in Open Sheds.

"They live in three sided sheds made of bamboo poles covered with grass. There is no privacy and no protection against the noonday heat or the cold dews at night. During the last rains, when there was water everywhere, sometimes reaching the knees, men, women, and children huddled together in their beds exposed to the rains and the wind.

"Several of the flimsy abodes gave way, permitting bedclothes and meager food stores to become soaked, and they were thrown on the charity of the village people among whom they had settled."

It was in Kural, the report said, that British police came over the line and abused and assaulted the refugee farmers.

Find Villages Deserted.

"From Kural we went to villages like Waghel and others, which were entirely deserted and in a desolate condition," the report continues. "Not only agriculturists, but traders and working men and women, who had no land and consequently no revenue assessment to pay, had gone away also. The reason why even people who had no tax to pay have fled is the danger of thieves and their fear of the police."

The investigators estimated that half of the population of 88,000 in the Bardoli district had fled to Indian state territory, while half of the agriculturist population of Borsad had also fled.

"We then went to Ghata, 50 miles from Navsari, in a swampy, unhealthy district of Baroda state," the report said. "Hundreds of farmers and adjoining villagers of British India have settled here in the same sort of huts we saw in Kural. The recent rains inflicted untold hardships on them and owing to the malarial nature of the region, about 100 people are now suffering from fever."

Exact Revenue Ahead of Time.

The government in British India, the report said, was exacting new year revenues in advance of the prescribed time for their collection.

"The official revenue year begins on July 31, and revenue payments have to be made between the following January and March in two installments," the report says. "Notwithstanding this, the farmers were called on, both in Bardoli and Borsad, to pay up in November. The people were harassed and tyrannized over for not doing this.

"We are informed that in several cases money was forcibly taken from neighbors or friends of the assessees and credited to the land revenue assessment of the latter.

"It is a great tragedy which we have witnessed. Agriculturists are the very prop and pillar of any state, and if the farmers have chosen to leave their land and homes, for which they have a proverbial passionate attachment, to migrate to an adjoining non-British territory and to live under conditions which cannot be adequately stated here, it means that something is at fault. The situation, we fear, is not going to improve. On the contrary, it will be considerably worse unless steps are taken to meet it in a statesmanlike and considerate spirit."

Parley Hits New Snag.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—The problem of a franchise for a federal parliament for India was tackled today by the franchise committee of the round table conference, which immediately found itself up against one of the most difficult snags yet faced. Adult suffrage has been practically agreed on for the provincial legislatures and a large body of the Indian delegates want the same for the federal legislature.

Others point out, however, that any effective touch between the members of parliament and the constituents is impossible with such a vast electorate unless the chamber becomes so large as to be unwieldy. The population of India is 320,000,000, of which half might be counted as adults for electoral purposes. This would mean that in a legislature of 500 members each would represent more than 300,000 electors.

ILLINOIS COAL MINE OPERATORS REFUSE TO CUT WORKING HOURS

The Illinois Coal Operators Labor association last night announced that it could not agree to a reduction in working hours, proposed by union miners as a means of alleviating unemployment. Through its president, Joseph D. Zook, the association explained that a cut in hours was economically unsound and would lead to worse conditions than those it purposed to change.

"The union scale in Illinois is the highest in any coal field in America," Mr. Zook said. "Our operators are doing all they can to rotate present work and in many cases are employing men not actually needed to alleviate unemployment. Coal from other fields, where workers receive 50 to 75 per cent less and work longer hours, is already swamping our markets. If the Illinois industry were to be burdened with further production costs it could no longer survive. Such a condition would aid no one, would greatly increase unemployment, and result in disaster."

The statement was sent to Harry Fishwick, president of district 12, United Mine Workers of America, who last week proposed a meeting of operators and miners to consider a change in work hours.

Group Collecting Cash 'for Jobless' Is Investigated

Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller, in charge of the prosecution of racketeers, sent out detectives yesterday to investigate the "American Army," which has been soliciting contributions for an alleged unemployment fund. Robert Golden, 41 years old, 1651 Dayton street, was arrested for soliciting funds. He told Judge Leon Edelman he collected an average of $2.50 a day, of which he was allowed to keep half. The rest, he said, he turned over to headquarters at 16 East Superior street. Mueller said the organization had no standing.

BRITAIN FACES BIG NEW YEAR STRIKE OF 320,000 MEN

Deadlocks Tie Up Cotton and Coal Industries.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Twenty-four hours remained at the end of today's hurried negotiations to patch up an agreement to prevent a strike of 120,000 miners employed in the South Wales collieries.

At the same time Great Britain faces a strike in another great industry—cotton weaving. Spokesmen for 200,000 workers in this industry today delivered an ultimatum at Manchester that the men would walk out on Jan. 5 unless the employers abandon their plan to double the number of looms for each worker. The employers, during long negotiations, have refused to budge from their plan.

Two Conferences Fail.

The new crisis in the coal industry sprang up at the termination of double negotiations today at London and at Cardiff. Both failed. The makeshift day by day agreement under which the miners are working in the Welsh fields expires tomorrow. Unless a new agreement is made a New Year's day walkout is inevitable.

The deadlock was precipitated in the British fields on Dec. 1, when the new coal mines act took effect. The law provides for a flat seven and one-half hour day unless the owners and the miners' federation agreed to a spreadover of 94 hours fortnightly. The owners threatened pay cuts under the reduced hours and the federation withheld approval of the spreadover.

Pending further negotiations, the Welsh miners have been working eleven eight-hour days each fortnight. It is this agreement which ends tomorrow, with nothing to replace it. The miners claim they are losing one day in each two weeks and at the meetings with the owners today they flatly refused to continue under such conditions.

Government Has Proposal.

The owners had nothing to offer, so both sides quit. The sole recommendation was a suggestion by the national coal board, created by the government. It suggested working seven hours and 36 minutes for five days and seven hours on Saturday or seven hours and 40 minutes for five days and six hours and 40 minutes on Saturdays. It is understood that the owners reviewed the board's terms before they met the miners, but declined to accept these terms.

Train Jumps Track Near Elgin; Passengers Shaken

Passengers on a Chicago bound train from Dubuque, on the Illinois Central railroad, were shaken yesterday when the engine left the rails at Bowes station, six miles west of Elgin. A wrecking outfit had to be called from Freeport to clear the track. The passengers were transferred to another train after a few hours' delay.

The sergeants decided to wait. Several minutes later there was a series of raps on the door. George Larson, 7921 South Wood street, who has a record as a holdup man, entered. He was armed with a pistol.

Within the next hour five other men, all giving the same signal raps, entered and were seized. They are Thomas Larkin, 7950 Loomis street, who also has a robbery record; Thomas Green, 934 Edgecomb place; Thomas J. Shaw, 1211 West 79th street; Ed McDonald, 1210 West 79th street, and Joe Cainsky, 804 West 50th street, described as a pal of "Midget" Fernekes, who once was under death sentence for murder.

POSSE KILLS 1, CAPTURES 2 IN EXTORTION PLOT

Clintonville, Wis., Dec. 30.—(AP)—One youth was killed and two others captured as a sheriff's posse engaged in a gun battle with the three in a wild wooded section near here tonight, frustrating a $10,000 extortion attempt upon Dr. W. J. Finney, 52.

Dr. Finney received a letter Monday directing him to place $10,000 at the base of a fence post marked by a red flag on the highway near here. He was warned not to notify officers.

Tonight, an hour prior to the appointed time for delivery of the money, 15 Waupaca county residents, armed with rifles and shotguns, hid in shrubbery back of the flag decked post.

At 10:30 p. m. an automobile halted. Three youths got out and walked toward the post. A sudden movement back of the post startled one of the trio and he fired. An answering staccato of rifle fire killed Gordon Pope, 15, and Douglas Parfitt, 17, and Howard Hustermark, 18, were captured.

GUN GIRL LEAVES WILLIAM IN A HAPLESS PLIGHT

William T. Williams, Yellow cab driver, was robbed of $17 and forced to disrobe in the rear seat of his cab in Grant park last night by a girl who pointed a pistol at him while her male companion drove.

The couple entered the cab at State street and Jackson boulevard and ordered Williams to go to the outer drive and turn south. At 7th street the man pressed a pistol into Williams' back and forced him to exchange seats.

The girl then took the gun and, sitting beside Williams, made him take off first his shoes and then his trousers, which she threw out the window after emptying the pockets.

At Soldiers' field the couple met another car in which they escaped.

ITALY AGAIN CUTS PRICE OF BREAD IN ECONOMIC WAR

Wields "Big Stick" on Defiant Merchants.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Dec. 30.—That Fascism's sensational program of jacking down the whole economic machinery of the nation in order to resist the current world economic depression has weathered its first month's trial with considerable success was demonstrated by two items in the Italian press today.

The first item announces that the price of bread will be decreased 10 centissimos [about one-half a cent] on the first of the year. It has already been reduced 20 centissimos, or one cent, since Dec. 1, making a total decrease of about 14 per cent of the original price. This decrease is not due to the law of supply and demand, or any other economic factor, but simply because the government decided that the price of bread should be cut.

War on Defiant Merchants.

The other item is a sequel to the first and tells the relentless war Fascism is waging against small shop owners who are holding out against ordered price cuts. It is significant that this campaign is successful and one which Dictator Stalin with all the force of the cheka and the bolshevik steam roller has been unable to achieve in Russia.

This price reduction program in a sense is equivalent to the Russian five year plan. It is a direct antithesis to the American challenge to hard times, which is based on the determination to keep up salaries and buying power at all costs. Premier Mussolini's solution, when confronted with the same problem, was to tell Italy to take a couple of notches in its belt.

So far no great results are evident. When the government ordered 12 per cent reduction in the salaries of state employés, there was no trouble. Even when the government ordered organized labor to take similar cuts, the pill was swallowed because the government has the unions under its thumb.

Inspectors Visit Ships.

But when the government began to employ a corollary ruse to make living prices drop to salary levels, that was another story. The landlords tried to balk at cutting rents, but when the government swung the Fascist "big stick" and they faced deportation to prison islands, the landlords yielded.

Inspectors are visiting defiant shopkeepers and are checking up to make sure they are keeping the price schedule "voluntarily."

Merchants caught boosting prices or selling inferiods good are haled off to jail and their shops are closed. Penalties vary from simply hanging up a sign "closed by the authorities" for a couple of days to the payment of a heavy fine. Some merchants are being sent to penal islands.

POLICE OUT AS DRY ENFORCERS IN BAY STATE

Cannot Act Under U. S. Law, Is Ruling.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Massachusetts state police have no authority under the federal prohibition act to enforce its provisions, Attorney General Joseph E. Warner ruled today. Despite the fact that every officer of the commonwealth takes an oath to support the federal constitution, Warner said, the oath "does not of itself impose a duty to enforce a federal enactment, such as the national prohibition act, which itself authorizes only federal officers to act thereafter."

As authority, Warner cited a United States Supreme court decision and an opinion rendered six years ago by a predecessor.

State Dry Law Repealed.

Warner's opinion was requested by Alfred F. Foote, commissioner of public safety, as the result of a situation created last fall when the state prohibition act was repealed.

The attorney general stressed that in the absence of a state law prohibiting transportation of intoxicating liquor it would be impossible for state officers to prosecute such acts except through powers derived from federal laws incorporated in the national prohibition act. The absence of the law against transportation would necessarily preclude any possibility of obtaining a warrant, he said. The transportation phase, as well as that of manufacturing, importing and exporting, were included in the state prohibition act.

Magistrates Can Act.

"State police officers," the attorney general said, "have no authority by virtue of the terms of the national prohibition act to enforce its provisions, nor have state police officers, as such, any power at common law to arrest without a warrant for any violations of the national prohibition act, even such violations as were constituted felonies by the Jones act.

"Certain state magistrates may, however, if they choose, issue process for the apprehension of violators of any federal act, and state police officers have, of course, the powers derived from such process.

"There is no authority to arrest without a warrant except that persons keeping or exposing liquor for sale may be arrested without a warrant if they are detected in the act, and held until a warrant is secured under the Massachusetts search and seizure act relating to the sale of liquor as a nuisance."

APPEAL BRIEF FILED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The government today lodged with the supreme court a brief of its argument against the ruling of Federal Judge William Clark in New Jersey, holding the eighteenth amendment invalid.

The department of justice required little space to summarize the contention that Justice Clark had erred.

Solicitor General Thacher filed a motion to advance the case "for hearing at an early day." He reported himself ready to argue it at any time.

"The decision," said Thacher, "has received wide publicity and has produced uncertainty regarding the validity of the prohibition laws which, unless promptly settled by this court, is likely to encourage disregard for those laws and will hamper the government in their enforcement."

Brief but Eighteen Pages.

The government's brief, written by the solicitor general and Assistant Attorney General Youngquist, in charge of prohibition, with the aid of four other attorneys, filled only 18 pages, most of which were given over to quotations from other laws and rulings. Its summary of the case said:

"Article five of the constitution provides that amendments shall be valid when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states, or by conventions in three-fourths of the states, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by congress.

"It was held by the court below [Judge Clark] that the generality of this language should be modified by 'principles of political science' and that an amendment such as the eighteenth amendment could be constitutionally ratified only by conventions in the states.

"We submit that the language of article five is clear and entirely free from ambiguity, and that there is no room for the construction adopted by the court below. This court [Supreme court] has said: 'The language of the article is plain and admits no doubt of its interpretation.'"

The brief added that in previous decisions the Supreme court has determined that the eighteenth amendment, 'by lawful proposal and ratification, has become a part of the constitution.'"

Gunmen Herd Eight Into Back of Cafe; Take $3,800

Three gunmen at noon yesterday held up the Zonenblik coffee shop, 316 West Van Buren street, and obtained $3,800, most of which was to be used to cash pay checks of garment workers in the neighborhood. Maurice Zonenblik, one of the owners; his father, Louis, and six patrons were forced into a rear room while one of the men took the small sum in the cash register. The elder Zonenblik then was forced to reveal the hiding place of the remainder of the money.

SENT TO PRISON

Galesburg, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Convicted on a charge of extortion, Helen M. Carr, 32, Knox county's first and only woman justice of the peace, and her uncle David Farrell, 49, Burlington railroad engineer, today were sentenced by Circuit Judge George Hillyer, to serve from one to 20 years in the penitentiary at Joliet.

They were found guilty several weeks ago by a jury here of obtaining $25,000 from Dennis Sullivan, 70, a retired Burlington engineer, under threats against his life. Sullivan charged that Miss Carr and her uncle, after luring him to the girl's home at midnight, forced him at the point of a knife to sign a note for $25,000. Later he declared they told him the note was destroyed, and he thought so until it was put in judgment in Chicago.

The girl said Sullivan gave her the money in her justice office to start her in business in Chicago, where she bought an interest in a chain of hamburger lunchrooms.

Judge Hillyer granted a stay of 90 days to allow the pair to apply to the Supreme court for a writ of supersedeas.

Miss Carr was elected justice here at the age of 28. She won considerable notoriety when she was married to George Lewis, who had been brought into her court and fined a few days before on a bootlegging charge. They were divorced.

LOOK TO RADIO, TALKIES TO MAKE US TALK RIGHT

Experts on Speech Meet at U. of Chicago.

Educators and speech experts of the radio and talking pictures gathered yesterday in Mandel hall on the University of Chicago campus to talk about what is being done to make Americans speak better English. Because speech is best taught by example, the experts agreed that all hope in that direction rests with the radio announcer, the teacher, and the stars of the talking pictures.

The talkie and radio representatives conceded that there is wide room for improvement in the diction of those who perform before the camera and the microphone. They sighed over the fact that intelligence and a well modulated voice are not always found in the same person.

Dr. Henry Bellows, vice president of the Columbia Broadcasting system and a former teacher of English, deplored the fact that radio announcers are compelled to read from "canned" copy prepared by advertising copywriters, because they are unable to make announcements extemporaneously.

Contrasts British Announcers.

"British program announcing," he said, "is a good deal better than ours, because their announcers are all honor graduates of Oxford and Cambridge. When all American announcers are college men and women of high standing we will be able to allow them to speak for themselves.

"Radio is doing 17 hours a day what hitherto has been done by the pulpit, and it is doing it far more effectively. Radio announcers and speakers are providing models for speech which, right or wrong, are bound to be imitated. We have pretty much eliminated vulgarism and inaccuracy in radio speaking."

Vida Ravenscroft Sutton, of the National Broadcasting company, explained what was being done to cultivate the voices of radio announcers. She said the profession is "on the way to a cosmopolitan pronunciation."

He Speaks for Variety.

Such pronunciation did not seem to concern John H. Muyskens, professor of general linguistics at the University of Michigan, who addressed the same audience earlier at a meeting in the Stevens. Differences in speech and dialects, instead of being blights upon the national culture, are charming, he said.

E. F. McDonald, representing the motion picture interests, brought the news that England is alarmed over the fact that American speech through the movies, is affecting the children of London and other English cities. Parliament, he said, is planning to take action. He assured his hearers, however, that the film actors are gradually eliminating their mistakes.

The evils of speech in America arise from the mixture of races and the lack of pride in a "borrowed language," in the opinion of Superintendent of Schools Bogan, who also spoke. Members of the National Association of Teachers of Speech made up the most of the audience.

Cigaret and Soda Taxes May Be Used in New York

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—A new tax of one cent on every package of cigarets and one cent on every ice cream soda or bottle of soft drinks sold, or a boost of the gasoline tax from two to three cents a gallon are being seriously considered by the state's financial experts as the means of enabling Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt to present a balanced budget to the legislature on Jan. 15. The budget requests are said to total 315 million dollars, exclusive of the $30,000,000 for public buildings from bond moneys, and the controller had estimated the state's income at 290 million dollars.

WIFE SUES OIL MAN'S FIRM, SAYS BOSSES MADE HIM DRUNK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Ruth Wheeler, wife of Joseph C. Wheeler, former district manager for the Shell Oil company, today filed a $250,000 damage action against that company, while the company filed a petition for a writ of prohibition, seeking to restrain the Superior court from trying her case.

Mrs. Wheeler asserted, on behalf of herself and two minor children, that the Shell company and its officers required her husband to use intoxicating liquor, as a result of which he became habitually intemperate to their detriment.

The defendant corporation in its petition denies that the officers of the Shell company oppose the Eighteenth amendment, the Volstead act or the Californa enforcement act, or that they required or suggested that Wheeler drink liquor.

The defendant also contends Mrs. Wheeler's suit is based on an unconstitutional statute—Section 20 of the Volstead act. This section provides that any one injured by an intoxicated person shall have right of action against those providing the liquor.

REVISE WAR DEBT PLAN, GERMANY'S NEW YEAR 'WISH'

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—In New Year's messages today, German political leaders sounded calls for a revision of the Young plan under which Germany is now paying millions annually in war reparations to the victorious allies.

All the leaders agree that they expect tremendous developments in politics in Germany during 1931. An outstanding leader of the German Centrists, a prominent Catholic prelate, Ludwig Kaas, says:

"The coming year must bring revision of reparations payments and general evolution. The thesis of status quo is a graveyard thesis. Europe will come back to health and thrive only if Germany's vital needs are considered by others, and she be given equal rights with those of other nations. It will be a hard road until we reach this goal."

Dr. August Weber of the state party, heretofore one of the strongest supporters of the Young plan and its full enforcement, in his New Year's message calls for its revision.

"We must prepare for it in the same manner a general staff prepares for a great battle or business prepares for the sale of a new line of goods," he declared. "To do this we must straighten out our finances and forget our differences."

Dr. Rudolph Breitscheid, leader of the Social Democrats, another group which so far has advocated the fulfillment of the Young plan, hopes that in 1931 "others beyond Germany's borders will wake up to the fact that Germany's payment of obligations must be reduced, not only in the interest of Germany, but for the world, and must end in a much shorter time than prescribed in the Young plan.

"May this goal be achieved through the policy of mutual understanding without threats of violence, and may the victorious nations realize the consequences entailed for Europe if they fail to fulfill the obligation to disarm imposed on them in the Versailles treaty and the leage of nation's covenant."

VALUES WEALTH AT 25 MILLIONS IN RUM CASE BOND

Michael Espert of the Alexandria hotel, an old man whose worn overcoat was fastened with a safety pin, appeared in United States Commissioner Walker's court yesterday to sign a bond of $2,000 for a friend charged with violating the prohibition laws. As bailor he was required to make an affidavit, assuring the government of his worth as a risk. When he came to the line "and I am worth" in the form, he swore, "at least $25,000,000." Mr. Espert scheduled only one piece of property, 3 East Austin avenue, on which a three story brick building is located, housing two manufacturing concerns. But when Commissioner Walker saw the $25,000,000 figure, he accepted the bond without question. Mr. Espert listed his occupation as president of the Monarch Refrigerating company.

NO CLEMENCY FOR ORIGINAL 'LIFE FOR PINT' VICTIM

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Fred Palm, Lansing man, famed as the original victim of Michigan's old "life for a pint" law, will receive no further clemency from Gov. Fred W. Green, who retires Wednesday, the executive disclosed today. Palm's sentence was commuted a few months ago from life imprisonment to a term of seven and a half to fifteen years in line with the modification in the law adopted by the 1929 legislature.

Palm was given a mandatory life term under the old law when he was convicted of possessing a pint of gin. It was his fourth felony and made him subject to the then newly adopted habitual criminal act.

Hold Husband as Woman Dies of Yule Party Injuries

The engineer's viewpoint was presented by Prof. H. F. Moore of the University of Illinois, in a discussion of education.

"Why should we call uncultured?" he asked, "a man who knows thoroughly and broadly the philosophy of the heat engine, but is ignorant of the music of Brahms, while we hail as cultured the musician who knows the field of harmony but who is contemptuous of the applied science of the pipe organ?

"There is no basis for complete discipline of the moral nature if you leave out the work and methods of thought of applied science. I do not believe that Plato is a complete guide for living and working.

"No phase of life is unworthy the attention of the scholar. As absolute perfection is never reached in the chemical or mechanical world, so there are limits of perfection beyond which effort in the social and ethical world would be ineffective, and these limits are not fixed but vary from age to age.

"Not infrequently the development of abstract ideas may come as the result of daily work on the job.

"The engineer should be regarded as the sacristan of the temple of civilized society. Fine arts and tastes may develop amid hunger, cold and poor housing, but these are handicaps."

Discuss Education Goal.

Prof. Frank N. Freeman, professor of educational psychology at the University of Chicago, declared that the scientific method is the ultimate, complete method in education.

"The philosophy of education, when it is pursued as an alternative to science," he said, "consists in thinking about the problem of education instead of going out to investigate it at first hand. It separates thinking from observation, statistical study and experimental investigation. Thinking about educational problems should rather be joined and made an intimate part of such first hand investigation."

What may be done in an environmental way with children is shown in the report of Prof. Edward A. Lincoln of Harvard and Prof. F. J. Shields of the Connecticut College of Women, on the age scale for measurement of moral judgment. Experiments with 1,300 children were summarized.

BACTERIA BATTERY

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 30.—(AP)—An electric battery made of living bacteria at Johns Hopkins university was described to the Society of American Bacteriologists today.

The battery was made up by Dr. Barnett Cohen of the medical school to illustrate the existence and effects of self-produced electrical currents in the growth of bacteria.

Each "cell" of the battery is made of a little more than two teaspoonfuls [two cubic centimeters] of bacteria culture material coupled with a sterile control. Through 300 ohms of resistance this cell discharged about one one-hundred-thousandth of an ampere a minute.

With such cells Dr. Cohen made a battery furnishing a current of about two thousandths of an ampere at 35 volts.

To obtain electrical results of such magnitude the bacterial were first treated with certain chemicals. Their normal electrical output is less, but it exists and is connected with the energy production in growth.

AN IMP DOES IT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—A mysterious little imp that lives in the back of our minds without paying room rent is responsible for such irrational occupations as our falling in love, spending long periods in day dreaming, committing suicide, forgetting appointments, nagging and any number of other things.

The imp, according to Dr. Leland E. Hinsie, professor of clinical psychiatry at Columbia university, is an unconscious inner mental life which guides our activities to a larger extent than active mental forces. Dr. Hinsie told a convention of the Association for Research in Mental Diseases here today that the existence of this unconscious mental life is unsuspected by almost every one.

"Young people who fall in love with each other without being able to explain the phenomenon even to themselves," said Dr. Hinsie, "may be surprised to learn the explanation is that the individual upon whom their affection is centered possesses some attribute which their mothers had and which is indelibly recorded in their unconscious mind from childhood."

In rare cases, said the doctor, the individual will fall in love with some one who possesses exactly the opposite attributes that his mother had. Unhappy childhood is responsible. If you take a violent dislike to a person on first sight it is because the "imp" associates that individual with some one you disliked very much in early life.

"The unconscious gathers together all of the experiences of our past that have been forgotten or repressed but which continue to exercise a very vital function in determining our careers," Dr. Hinsie explained.

WHY YOU "DUB" GOLF SHOT

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The same sense of muscular activity that leads a golfer to dub his shots can make the college athlete the scholastic champion of his class.

The difference between the duffer, though, and the athlete-thinker lies in the balance between brain and muscles, Dr. Herbert S. Langfeld of Princeton university, president of the American Psychological association, told 350 members of the organization here tonight.

Ultimate perfection in golf, as in all learning and doing, he said, comes from so training the muscles that one can forget all about them.

The secret in golf, as in typewriting, learning to read, or in doing anything, comes from being clearly conscious of the thing to be done and not the way to do it. Thinking about yourself and your muscles makes you a poor golfer, or, in Dr. Langfeld's words, "a systematic introspectionist on the links would be a poor golfer and a poor psychologist as well."

Body Functions Not Indexed.

Experiments tending to contradict the theory that control of body functions is localized in various parts of the brain were described today at the convention.

The experiments, conducted by two University of Iowa scientists, Lee Edward Travis and R. Yorke Herren, were conducted on 91 rats, whose reflex actions were observed in both the brain and the calf of the leg.

Reflex activity was induced by striking the "Achilles" tendon in the heel of the rat, which produces a reaction similar to striking the muscle below the knee cap and causing the leg to jerk.

A system of reducing to mathematical figures one's appreciation of poetry was explained by Prof. Thomas H. Howells of the University of Colorado.

W. S. Dysinger of the University of Iowa discussed results of a study of emotional response of children to motion pictures.

Dysinger found that scenes showing near-tragedy with a happy ending or pseudo-tragedy with conflict and accident aroused much more intense emotional responses in the child than in the adult.

Child Behavior Misleading.

The scientists today brought forth evidence to support popular condemnation of the "mother's darling" who won't join the gang in a raid on an apple orchard.

Dr. Erich Lindemann of the University of Iowa Psychopathic hospital said that the youngster who is overscrupulous about details of his dress, food, or sleeping habits is in danger of encountering social difficulties in later life.

Dr. F. L. Wells, Boston psychiatrist, said that the "independent" child who refuses to associate with his fellows but prefers to sit quietly at home may break out later in some form of misbehavior, he said.

Advice to Stenogs.

The difference between a stenographer and a private secretary lies in personality, Paul Moser of Chicago, president of the National Federation of Commercial Teachers, told the group today. The stenographer masters the mechanics of typing, shorthand, bookkeeping and filing, but her ability ends there, he pointed out. The private secretary has or should have, in addition, a social background so that she may also have poise and good judgment.

Moser said the model private secretary should be able to adjust herself to every whim of her employer, must be sympathetic and admire him but not love him, and, above all, must be able to handle his wife.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Man's first visual evidence of the earth's curvature, a photo which "saw" 320 miles, was exhibited to the American Association for the Advancement of Science tonight.

The distant horizon line of the pampas bent slightly downward at one end, like a photo of the curving edge of the moon.

Dr. C. E. K. Mees of the Eastman Kodak company said that there is a science in photography not yet realized even by most scientists.

The earth's curvature photo was made possible by photographic plates sensible to rays of light invisible to the eye. The picture was taken by Capt. A. W. Stevens, U. S. A., who pointed his camera in the direction of the mountains which he could not see. One snap of one-fiftieth of a second recorded a panorama exceeding some states in size.

The often heralded reading of coming storms through radio signals has been reduced to workable rules by Prof. Robert Cameron Caldwell, University of West Virginia, for the area between Morgantown and Pittsburgh, using signals from station KDKA, Pittsburgh. If the weather is fine and the day signal drops to less than half the strength of the night signal a storm is approaching. If the weather is either stormy or fair, an even ratio indicates that the same kind of weather will continue.

If the day signal is twice as strong as the night signal fair weather is approaching.

ANCIENT SPORT

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Ancient Rome borrowed its chariot races from Lydia in Asia Minor, where what is believed to be the first race course for this sport was unearthed, Prof. George W. Elderkin of Princeton university told the American Archaeological institute at its annual convention here today. Tombs at the end of the chariot course point to the fact that the first races were held as part of funeral ceremonies.

The game of backgammon had a predecessor in ancient Palestine, said O. R. Sellers of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, Chicago, who reported the finding of a game played with cones and pyramids on a board like that of the modern diversion.

As deep as half a mile beneath the surface, investigators are studying the ancient life of the American southwest at Chetro Ketl, N. M., Edgar L. Hewett of the School of American Research, said. He reported the discovery of a room thought to have been the religious sanctuary in a home of about nine hundred years ago.

EINSTEIN AND STARS

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Great stellar systems like the milky way, rushing away from the earth at 7,300 miles a second, offer a problem to Dr. Albert Einstein.

Southern California scientists have this problem ready for the German author of the principle of relativity, who will reach here tomorrow. They likewise have a problem for his wife, Frau Elsa Einstein.

Frau Einstein will decide just what sort of a California bungalow she likes best to house them here. Dr. Edwin Hubble, Mount Wilson astronomer, today told something of the problem for the author of relativity.

Dr. Einstein will meet a companionable group here. Uhysicists, mathematicians, and astronomers who understand and have been working to practical results with his principle of general relativity are ready to greet him.

TAKES POISON BY MISTAKE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Henrietta Little, 54, of 2207 Wisconsin avenue, was taken to the County Emergency hospital tonight after she had taken poison by mistake in attempting to relieve a headache. Her condition was not regarded as critical.

C., B. & Q. CHIEF TELLS PLIGHT OF RAILROADS

It's Future, Not Present, That Worries Them.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

It is not the present business depression that is worrying the railroad executives of the United States. It is the possibility, if so mild a term may be used, that when prosperity returns the railroads will not share in it; that the icrease of traffic that must accompany the upturn will go to competing forms of transportation.

This was the expression of the railroad men's attitude by F. E. Williamson, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, in an interview yesterday.

Mr. Williamson does not overlook the fact that the railroads might, if the measures they are now taking or planning fail to overcome the conjunction of unfavorable conditions which have already slowed down their gross business until it is no larger than it was a decade ago, go back to the flat wheels, the lumpy rights of way, and the poor schedules of forty years ago.

Seen as Public Hardship.

In his opinion this would be more than an inconvenience to the public; it would be a real hardship.

Mr. Williamson enumerated four forms of transportation that have been making inroads on the freight traffic of the railroads. They are the air transport lines, the inland waterways built and building, the motor truck and motor bus, and the pipe lines. The first and second are actively aided by the federal government with original investment or subsidy, the third with government money used in the construction of roads, while the fourth is being promoted by private capital.

"There is undoubtedly a trend toward these new and active forms of transportation," Mr. Williamson said. "The railroads can expect no favoritism, nor do they want any. They desire to see the full play of correct economic forces. But we are so closely regulated and our competitors so completely free of restraint that an impossible situation has been set up.

Hits "Artificial" Waterways.

"The great lakes furnish a waterway that is efficient and we do not complain of any traffic it carries. The people of the lake cities are entitled to use it as they see fit and so are the owners of the boats that ply on it. We do object to the building of artificial waterways.

"As for the truck business, that should be regulated in the interest of the public.

"Trucking rates, in fact, are as disorderly and unfair to the shipper as rail rates were in the days when every shipper had one made for him individually. The railroad must take whatever is offered it for shipment. The truck will choose and take the cream of the business.

Urges Truck Regulation.

The railroad must continue to exist to take care of the heavy materials. It can't do that at the present rates if the cream of the business goes to competitors not governed by economic law. We can't and won't ask the truck be eliminated. We only desire that truck lines be compelled to make rates that are the same for everybody and that they be regulated.

Some freedom from "galling regulations" should be given the rails themselves, Mr. Williamson added. What railroad men know as fourth section relief is one of these. Such relief would permit the railroads running between Chicago and the Pacific coast, for instance, to make rates to put the manufacturer in Chicago on a shipping quality with the one on the eastern seaboard and enjoying the benefits of the Panama canal, and would not compel the rail carriers to lower all rates proportionately. The present law forbids a higher price for transportation to any farther point than to one on the way.

Cites Cut Fare Plan.

"The railroads have made nearly all the important improvements they can," the Burlington president said. "Between 1929 and 1930 they saved a billion dollars by economies. They are striving to hold and to get back their traffic by every legitimate means. They are reducing passenger fares in day coaches as an experiment. The results are not easy to forecast."

HOOVER'S RAIL MERGER MOVE FACES A FIGHT

The new proposal for four main railroad systems in the east varies in many particulars from the suggestions embodied in the plan announced by the interstate commerce commission in December, 1929, for the grouping of all railroads of the United States into 19 American owned and two Canadian systems.

The commission's plan, which it had no authority to force upon the railroads, provided for five main systems in the east, exclusive of two systems in New England, which also are left out of the proposals announced today. The commission's plan provided for a fifth system with the Wabash railroad as its backbone and also including the Lehigh Valley, the Wheeling and Lake Erie, the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, the Western Maryland, the Toledo, Peoria and Western, the Seaboard Air Line and about 30 other minor roads.

Just what is to be done with the Wabash under the four-system plan is unknown. The Pennsylvania interests, which have controlled the Wabash, have been ordered to divest themselves of this road. The Baltimore and Ohio more than a year ago asked permission to acquire the Wabash. The Baltimore and Ohio, however, recently bought the Chicago and Alton, affording access to Kansas City, and this action may make it undesirable to link up the Wabash with the same system.

Lehigh Valley a Problem.

The Lehigh Valley, which also was in the proposed Wabash system, has similarly been under the control of the Pennsylvania. The interstate commerce commission held that it controlled it illegally. An arrangement was later made to turn this road over to the Chesapeake and Ohio, one of the Van Sweringen lines, and presumably it will be included in the new proposed Van Sweringen system.

The Hocking Valley and the Pere Marquette, two of the Van Sweringen lines, already are linked with the Chesapeake and Ohio. The Van Sweringens also would probably get the Wheeling and Lake Erie, which was in the Wabash system under the commission's plan.

It is understood that under the new plan the New York Central would acquire the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, which it already controls indirectly. This road was grouped with the Van Sweringen roads in the commission's plan. Another feature of the plan is believed to be to have the New York Central turn over to the Baltimore and Ohio its interest in the Reading company, which controls the Central railroad of New Jersey. The Baltimore and Ohio could obtain a permanent entrance into New York over the latter road.

One of the points of dispute remaining to be settled is the question of trackage rights for the Pennsylvania along the southern shore of Lake Erie into Buffalo. The Pennsylvania wants trackage rights over the Nickel Plate. This was opposed by the New York Central.

TREAT FIRE HAZARDS AS A PLAGUE

AS THE medical profession seeks to stamp out disease, so Stock Fire Insurance tries to do away with conditions that threaten life and property. The fire trap, like a contagious disease, is a threat to the safety and life of the public.

To protect communities against fire disasters is one of the services Stock Fire Insurance has performed so effectively that its average cost has steadily declined for many years.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

1—Formulation of correct building codes; nearly 300 American cities have followed the lead of Stock Fire Insurance engineers in this respect;

2—Recommending proper standards for waterworks systems — fire apparatus and departments—fire alarm systems;

3—Educational and advisory work with Chambers of Commerce, schools, hospitals, city governments and various organizations along fire prevention lines;

4—Maintenance of Underwriters' Laboratories, where materials and devices by the thousand are tested and, when approved, are so labelled;

5—Fighting the crime of arson through cooperation with police, fire departments, fire marshals and other officials.

Building safely and guarding against fire is primarily an individual problem. It becomes a community problem when groups of people are concerned. Stock fire insurance renders conspicuous public service in safeguarding life and property against loss by fire.

Besides Putting Out Fires...

the duty of men responding to alarms is to save property that the flames never touch.

The Fire Insurance Patrol—operated by the Chicago Board of Underwriters—is a special unit that minimizes the effects of fire; prevents as far as possible the damage that always accompanies the fighting of fire.

Quickly on the scene, the Patrol protects building contents with water-proof coverings; moves goods into places of safety; rescues merchandise and personal property while the men of the department are subduing the blaze and preventing its spread.

After the fire is out, the Patrol sees that the premises are left so that heating plant, water pipes and other equipment will cause no further damage, and restores the sprinkler system to working condition.

This is but one of many ways in which the Chicago Board of Underwriters has served Cook County for more than eighty years.

In the membership of the Chicago Board of Underwriters are many Representatives of Fire Insurance companies, well equipped to counsel with property owners concerning fire insurance problems, who will place your insurance in companies offering sound protection at a definite and clearly understood cost.

CHICAGO READY TO GIVE 1931 A NOISY WELCOME

Hotels and Cafes Report Many Reservations.

Snow for Revelers

Celebrators are likely to encounter snow in their New Year's eve revels tonight, according to last night's forecast by the weather bureau. Unsettled and slightly warmer weather, with snow by night, was the prediction. Tomorrow will be fair and colder.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Tonight's the night when 1930 takes its headlong dive into eternity. A cursory investigation yesterday at strategic points revealed strong indications that most of Chicago was getting ready to welcome the coming year and to speed the parting guest, even to the extent of giving the latter a bit of a shove over the brink. The eighteenth amendment to the contrary notwithstanding, there is undoubtedly going to be revelry of a right.

Maitres d'hotel at the various large hostelries in and out of the loop were enthusiastic about prospects for the evening's business, based on a comparison of the reservations with those for last year. Dolorous predictions that the depression was sure to diminish materially the number of the celebrators had been disproved to a considerable extent, although lower prices in numerous instances were held out as an inducement.

Eliminate Cover Charge.

Several of the largest and most popular rendezvous, the dining and dancing places of the hotels in or near the loop, have graded their prices for the occasion. Cover charges have been dispensed with, and a flat rate of from $10 to $15 per person will be levied. This sum will include dinner, cabaret entertainment, dancing, noisemakers and favors. It will not, of course, cover any ginger ale consumed by the festive crowds, which customarily swells up a check to painful proportions.

While reservations came in more slowly than last year, a last minute rush increased the total swiftly, it was reported yesterday. Four or five rooms, each with its own orchestra, will be thrown open to the merry-makers at the Sherman, the Congress, the Stevens, the La Salle, Edgewater Beach and other hotels, each of which is prepared to serve from 1,000 to 3,000 individuals. Most cafes reported good patronage. A large attendance at the Drake and the Blackstone parties is predicted.

Prepare to Greet 1931.

Serpentine crepe, tick-tacks, horns, whistles, cowbells, paper hats, rattles, and other paraphernalia for welcoming 1931 have been laid in by the ton. They will be used not only in the cafes and hotels but in hundreds of private parties, in dance halls, clubs, and even in the recreation rooms of churches, where watch parties will be in progress. The usual crowds are expected to invade loop streets to await the midnight hour.

Unusually large parties are in prospect for the Lake Shore Athletic club, where a supper dance will get under way about 10 o'clock, with orchestras on hand to keep the dancers moving; and at the Medinah Athletic club, where more than 1,200 members and their guests are expected for the annual dinner dance and celebration.

Churches Plan Services.

Churches which have scheduled special services for the last hours of 1930 include the First Methodist Episcopal church, 77 West Washington street, where a social service from 8:30 to 11 o'clock will be followed by a religious service; the Waveland Avenue Congregational, which will start its program at 10 o'clock, the 10 minutes before midnight to be spent in prayer; the Albany Park Methodist Episcopal, Wilson and Albany avenues, where candlelight service will begin at 10:30, and the Grace Evangelical Community church at Kimball and Wrightwood avenues, where the adult Bible class will have an evening of athletic, social and devotional exercises.

Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder announced yesterday that all postoffices will be closed tomorrow, and that there will be no mail deliveries. Partial service will be maintained at the central station, including general delivery and collection service.

Seeks Commutation for Martin Durkin in Murder

Attorney Eugene L. McGarry said yesterday he was seeking a commutation of sentence for Martin Durkin, serving thirty-five years for the murder of Federal Agent Edward C. Shanahan. The attorney said Durkin's former sweetheart, Betty Werner, was supporting the petition and she would inform the parole board she was coerced into giving testimony against Durkin. A hearing will be held in January, but even if Durkin were successful in getting an early release, another murder charge awaits him as well as a fifteen year federal sentence, according to Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin of the crime commission, who will oppose clemency for the killer.

Their Hopes for the Coming Year

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

American leaders and public figures vision bright things for the new year. They were asked: "What is your greatest hope for 1931?" They replied:

Frank B. Kellogg, world court judge—My interests lie in the sphere of peace and prosperity in all the world. I think the greatest hope for the new year is the revival of business from the depression all over the world. In Europe I found much unrest and agitation. I think this is due largely to the hard times.

Mary Pickford, motion picture actress—It is my hope that film entertainment in 1931 will be of a type to help banish the world's unrest. A sense of humor is nature's balance. I hope motion pictures will be one of the mediums through which joyous laughter will be restored to the world.

Sam H. Thompson, president American Farm Bureau federation—Continued development of agricultural organization is bringing the farmer into control of factors affecting his own business. Decreased agricultural production due to drought has resulted in a remarkably small carryover of agricultural commodities, except cotton. The return of normal business operation should result in improved prices for farm commodities. The income to agriculture should be substantially increased in 1931.

Lorado Taft, sculptor—That more of us open our eyes to the beauty around us—the beauty of nature; that more young Americans become interested in art; that every talented school child be given opportunity to develop his special gift. There is no end of ability in America.

W. T. Manning, Episcopal bishop of New York—Thinking people in great numbers all over our land are realizing afresh that a true religious faith is the one and only foundation for character, personal responsibility, moral ideas, and standards. It is my hope and belief that we are about to see a great reawakening of that personal faith in Almighty God and reverence for His law upon which the sanctity of our homes, the quality of our citizenship, the future of our nation, and the existence of all civilized life depend.

Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university—Economic depression is to be overcome by brains, not brawn. My hope for 1931 is that university trained men may justify their training by their contributions to the restoration of prosperity. This prosperity is psychological, ethical, political, and social quite as much as economic.

Ruth Nichols, transcontinental flier—To see the general public made fundamentally confident in the safety and practicability of flight by removing the last danger—fog flying.

Henry H. Curran, the Association Against Prohibition—That there will be willingness on the part of congress to allow the American people to vote on retention or repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

John N. Garner, Democratic leader of the house of representatives—My greatest hope is to see establishment of prosperity upon a normal basis; elimination of suffering and distress so far as is humanly possible; and enactment of legislation that will tend to prevent recurrence of such conditions as people of this country are now experiencing.

George Jean Nathan, drama critic—My optimism with regard to the theater is based on three grounds: Increasing intelligence of audiences as indicated by the quality of successful plays; increasing intelligence of a number of producers as indicated by the quality of plays they are willing to gamble on, and increasing intelligence of a number of our newspaper reviewers as indicated by the plays they are more frequently singling out for the object of their esteem.

Joan Lowell, author—I hope I never write a masterpiece because a masterpiece sells only after you're dead. My paramount hope is that some one will discover in 1931 a true line of demarcation between fact and fiction so I can do the right thing by critics. If I were telling all the truth now I'd have to add my real hope that some guy falls in love with me in 1931.

ROBBERS SEIZE $7,000 IN BAKERY COMPANY OFFICE

Four youthful bandits, all armed with revolvers except one who carried a sawed-off shotgun, raided the second floor offices of the Ward Baking company's plant at 2608 Lexington street yesterday afternoon and escaped with $7,000 in currency. They fled in an automobile which was parked at the curbing near the plant. A fifth man was at the wheel of the car.

Two of the bandits, who were masked, appeared before a small wicket in the office of Cashier Charles Sterrett, 20 years old, 2736 Lexington street, shoved pistols at him and told him to fall to the floor. Several women employes were told to do likewise. Then one of the men kicked away the small door leading into the offices and entered.

They ransacked the safe, gathered up several packages and then started to leave. The robber with the shotgun fired a charge of slugs into the ceiling to discourage pursuit as they departed.

Rose Colgrass, 770 South Kenneth avenue, a telephone operator; Jane Sykes, 4217 Jackson boulevard, and Marion Watson, 2130 South Homan avenue, ran to the window and saw the bandits speed away. Miss Colgrass then ran to a telephone and called Marquette police.

GOOD FELLOWS' FUNDS GUARDED FROM BEGGARS

All Your Donations Go to Save Families.

Social welfare leaders warn that perennial beggars and professional moochers have become active in Chicago and tramps and hobos have drifted into the city trying to impose themselves upon a community whose generosity has been aroused by the needs of the destitute. The Good Fellows may feel assured that none of their charity reaches these undesirables.

All of the Good Fellow fund, which now approaches $100,000, is used to assist families whose needs and worthiness have been carefully investigated by trained and experienced welfare workers of the United Charities, the Central Charity bureau [Catholic], the Jewish Social Service bureau, or the Salvation Army.

How Families Are Aided.

All necessities are furnished the adopted families, under a standard budget, as long as the family is making a sincere effort to become self-supporting. Social workers make periodic visits to the homes, offering advice in job hunting, and guiding the families toward rehabilitation.

The established charity agencies are contributing this service to the Good Fellows' wards in return for being relieved of the expense of paying the families' budgets. THE TRIBUNE pays the expenses of administrating the fund. For these reasons every penny donated to the Good Fellow fund reaches some worthy family.

Many More Need Help.

Thousands of Good Fellows are contributing to this family rescue fund. They are furnishing food, clothing, shelter, and fuel to 250 families with an average of over three children to a family. There are many others, cold and hungry, who need help, but for whom no Good Fellow has opened his purse. If you can spare a dollar, or hundreds of dollars, address the Good Fellow, THE TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Defense in Gary Girl's Death to Plead Accident

Attorneys for Virgil Kirkland of Gary, one of the five youths charged with the gang assault and murder of Kirkland's sweetheart, Arlene Draves, 18 years old, will offer a defense that the girl met accidental death, they indicated yesterday. The lawyers have engaged Dr. Orlando F. Scott of Chicago as a medical expert in the case. He has performed a postmortem examination upon Miss Draves' body.

TRY TWO "42" GANGSTERS FOR $3,000 ROBBERY

CRIMINAL COURT.

Clyde Miller, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Wilbur Todd, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; John Skorzekut, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary, by Judge Peter Schwaba.

Two members of the band of young west side hoodlums known as the "42 gang" were placed on trial yesterday in Judge Philip Finnegan's Criminal court on charges of robbing Justus Dietz, owner of a restaurant at 2558 Wentworth avenue, of $3,000. Alex Pope, 21 years old, one of the defendants, is now under a six months' Bridewell sentence as a vagrant. John Tossiello is the other defendant. The case will be given to the jury today.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Kate Bozdechova, 75 years old, was found dead yesterday, presumably of heart disease, in the flat she occupied alone at 326 West Erie street. Her bank book showed a balance of $75, although there was neither food nor a fire in the place.

DECEMBER JURY CLOSES INQUIRY INTO BONDSMEN

The December grand jury, which has spent most of its time investigating the bail bond scandal, will adjourn today and make a final report to Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court in the form of a letter. The jurors spent part of the day yesterday drafting the report.

It was announced that the jurors had abandoned the idea of recommending impeachment proceedings for two Municipal court judges whose bond signing activities came under scrutiny during the inquiry. The jurors, it was reported, decided that the evidence at hand was insufficient to justify the move. However, it was said that the jurors will recommend that the bond investigation be joined with the police department inquiry to be made by a special jury in January.

Assistant State's Attorney A. C. De Witt, in charge of the bond investigation, declared that many of the activities of professional bondsmen originate in the police stations, and that in many cases the police work in harmony with the bondsmen.

SALLY IS HAPPY AS MANY OFFER JOBS FOR MEN

Calls for Work Holiday Cheer for Her.

Holiday cheer piled in yesterday upon Sally Joy Brown in the shape of more and better jobs for men, for which she has been pleading with the public for many weeks. In response to her special appeals of the last few days, that some of the men workers who cluster in the offices of the Illinois free employment service at 116 North Dearborn street might be given positions, telephone calls reported business houses and private homes where such work was available.

One of the first to call in was F. S., who is located in the 600 block on South Michigan, and who told Sally that he had a job for an electrician at $8 per day. No doubt about it being a Happy New Year for the workman who gets that job.

Others Get Their Jobs.

Soon afterwards Mrs. L. W., in the 6100 block on Woodlawn, called and offered two jobs, one for a man to wash her windows at 50 cents an hour, the other for a girl to do housework.

G. S., who lives in the 3200 block on South Michigan, reported that he could use a janitor. P. F., who has a garage on North Western avenue, informed Sally he could give a colored man $15 a week and his room to take care of odd jobs about the place. Another garage, the R. Service company on West Diversey parkway, called for two other colored men to wash automobiles, permanent employment at 40 cents an hour.

The G. N. Furniture company on South Marshfield avenue provided a temporary job at piecework for a furniture decorator, at from 75 cents to $1 an hour.

More Jobs For Women.

Even yesterday, however, jobs for women came in faster than those for men, who numerically at least, need them more. The R. A. beauty shop on West 63d street telephoned to say they could pay a manicurist $5 a day to work during the holiday rush yesterday and today.

The proprietor of the barber shop in the N. M. A. building on South Michigan requested another manicurist, asserting that she could earn from $20 to $25 in salary and tips working yesterday and today.

"I want to wish a Happy New Year to everybody who has given us a hand on this work," Sally said last night. "So many people have been helpful to us. And as for the jobless, I hope 1931 will be more prosperous to each and every one of them than 1930 proved to be."

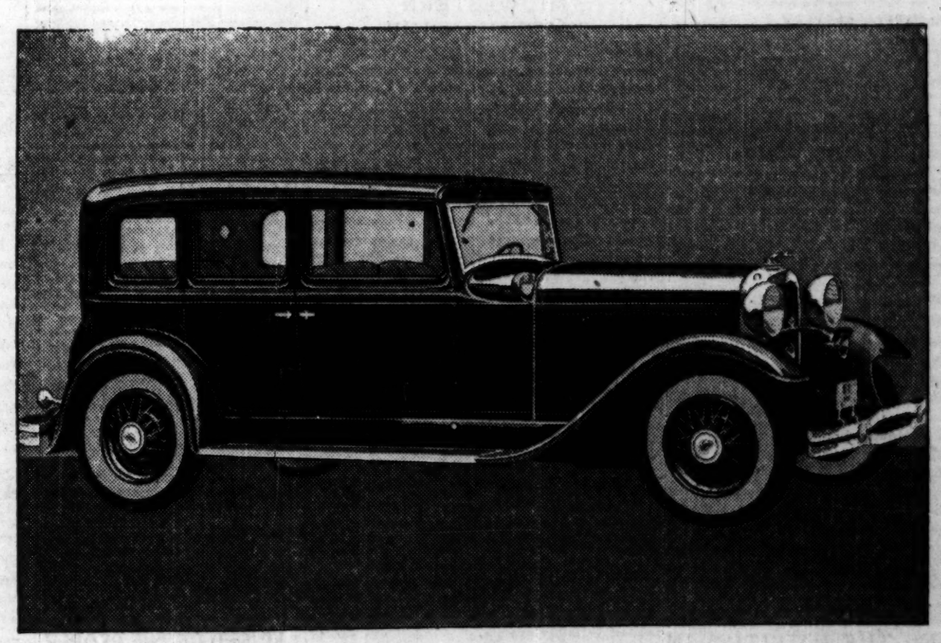
THE NEW LINCOLN

presents in a beautifully poised automobile
the new excellence of modern motoring



THE NEW LINCOLN FIVE-PASSENGER SEDAN

MORE than its smooth power, its free beauty of line, its almost air-borne ease of driving—the balanced excellence of the new Lincoln is the distinguishing mark of this motor car. The new Lincoln is a newly designed car throughout, adhering strictly to the policy of well-balanced excellence which is the Lincoln tradition.

More generous power is commanded by the owner of this car than any Lincoln has ever provided. The new engine develops 120 horsepower, demonstrated clearly in a marked gain in acceleration under all driving conditions. The new car is longer—with a wheelbase of 145 inches—lower in both chassis and roof line—more beautifully fleet and distinctive.

This new Lincoln is driven with a gliding sense of wind-blown power that is typical of the luxury of the whole car. Its new free-wheeling transmission allows easy, quiet and precise gear shifting. Between second and high speeds—back and forth—gears may be shifted without disengaging the clutch. And the engine can be automatically released at any moment merely by removing pressure from the accelerator pedal . . . so that the car glides smoothly and silently on momentum. Because the engine idles when gliding, less gasoline is used and engine wear is reduced. A quiet second gear also adds to the enjoyment of driving.

The luxury and safety which have always distinguished the Lincoln are heightened by the advanced engineering and design embodied in this car. And, immediately evident, the whole character of the car itself is reflected by the clean flow of its contours.

The new Lincoln is built as all the long-lived Lincolns that have gone before . . . in a plant famous for its precision craftsmanship. Behind it are the entire resources of the Ford organization. With such a background, its makers are able to give full expression to their ideal of making a motor car as perfect . . . in newly designed chassis and body . . . as it is possible to produce.

THE FORTHCOMING WICKERSHAM REPORT.

The forthcoming Wickersham commission report will indicate whether the federal government retains a closed mind on the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act or has accepted notice of the general conditions and the public feeling regarding them. It may be assumed that Mr. Wickersham will not put out a report to which the administration would have great objection. At least the commission, in spite of its distinguished membership, has not hitherto revealed any spirit of independent inquiry or skepticism. Its first outgivings rather indicated a biddable mood with the congressional and supercongressional zealots at the controls.

If the government has opened its mind this may be the beginning of an orderly restudy of the conditions which federal prohibition has imposed on the country. If not, then people who are now much concerned by the disturbed state of the nation will be more distressed to perceive that things must get worse before there is chance for better.

It will be astonishing if all the members of this commission, some of them highly regarded for their profound knowledge of law, remain in a complacent attitude toward the effect of prohibition on the country. What had been expected of the commission when it was engaged for the work was an uncompromising study of the question, taking it in its relation to the theories of government underlying the federal Union, to the political instincts and probable destiny of the people, to the required balancing of individual rights and government control and tracing consequences to causes.

The phenomenon the American nation has presented under prohibition is not a thing produced by incidental lawlessness, by vicious forces or by people of malignant purposes. It has been produced by causes which are inherent in the social order in which the American form of government is possible. Even the great criminal rings are not preying on the people, but serving them, and the conflict with government is actually at the behest of the people served.

It is apparent that American government has brought forth law in this case not consistent with its own purposes and that the troubles it has with its own citizens arise from the essential error. So long as it is contended that the defect is in enforcement there will be no remedy. The defect is in the intent of the law.

PUTTING THE UTILITIES IN THEIR PLACE.

Changes in the subway plans have been forced by the pressure of public opinion and the threat of the property owners. The original plans, which were prepared under the wing of Mike Faherty and his board of local improvements and were hulled through the city council by the city administration, would have provided a subway admirable for the purposes of the utility companies. The utilities were given more space than they needed, while arrangements for the comfort of the passengers using the subway were slighted.

The revision of the plans has righted the balance. The subway is not being built for the convenience of the electric power, gas, telephone, and telegraph companies; it is being built for the service of the car riders who, together with the property owners, are paying for it. It would have been a monstrous injustice to have permitted the subway to be designed with only secondary consideration for those who will pay for it and for whom it is being built. Fortunately, public opinion and the property owners were rallied in time to prevent the city administration's plan from being carried out unchanged.

It is evident that watchfulness in this matter cannot be relaxed. The utility companies have undertaken to pay the cost of moving their equipment into the subway chambers reserved for them and they must be held strictly to their word. More than that, the amount of rent to be paid by the utilities to the city for the use of subway space has still to be determined. The transfer of the wires, pipes, and conduits will be of great value to the utilities, for their costs of maintenance and repairs will be reduced. The city is giving something of great value and it should be compensated accordingly.

KEYSERLING AS A YOGI.

America's favorite pundit, Count Herman Keyserling, tells Berlin interviewers that South America has what North America lacks—"heart, soul." The count said he had spoken freely in the United States and "I told them things they certainly did not hear with pleasure." The yogi may be, as usual, right, but if any doubt is admissible it might be as to the lack of pleasure him as a boy.

Why should that be assumed? The count is amusing. Any combination of continental European appetites with Hindu mysticism would be it incorporated in a complacent bulk and decorated with Mongolian whiskers.

The hybrid qualities of what passes for philosophy in the Teutonic yogi do not need to be explicable to be entertaining. American audiences have been very indulgent with the count. He has not been required to do any of the simpler fakir tricks and probably would make a great mess of them if he did try, and he has been given a good press and a good gate without even bringing rabbits out of a silk hat. He has been allowed second rate imitations of old occidental criticisms of the United States without being asked to give tenth rate imitations of oriental mysticism.

It is possible, however, that some novelties will be needed if he is to have another successful American season. Even this whimsical country will tire eventually of a dull mind tricked out with fantastic gewgaws. Its people have reconciled themselves to the lack of a soul and the anatomical phenomenon of no heart has been observed and is no longer worth the price of a ticket.

The heart and soul performers must soon get some fresh copy or they'll be walking the railroad tracks. Keyserling might do another season if he can materialize a soul and let us have a look at it or if he can do a good metamorphosis in a half hour turn. It is now as if Tagore said he was good at riding to hounds and refused to prove it. If Keyserling has any good oriental magic as a yogi he'd better be prepared to prove it. He won't do any more merely squatting and looking at a vest button.

SACRED PATRONAGE.

The finance committee of the city council is considering the appropriation of some $300,000 for the license department. This department is supposed to justify its existence by collecting the various city license fees. As a matter of fact, it owes its continued existence to the fact that it provides jobs for political henchmen. The aldermen are reluctant to abolish the department because to do so would abolish most of the jobs, and the aldermen share in the patronage.

That is all there is to it. Mr. Douglas Sutherland of the Civic federation has presented the pertinent figures. Corporate fund licenses collected in 1929 were $223,000 less than the collections in 1921. License bureau appropriations were $80,000 in 1921 and $371,000 in 1929. It cost $291,000 more to collect $223,000 less.

The need for some checking up on licenses is admitted. The police used to handle the work as part of their routine and might do it again. Otherwise, the creation of a small bureau within the city collector's office would serve every purpose now served by the license department with a considerable gain in efficiency and with a great saving in cost. The continuance of the license department as at present organized is a plain advertisement to the voters and taxpayers of Chicago that efficiency and economy in government are things the aldermen are not interested in. The heat engendered in aldermanic breasts by the proposal to eliminate the department is more evidence to the same effect.

MIDWESTERN STATESMANSHIP.

Senator Schall of Minnesota is chairman of the senate's committee on interoceanic canals. In a recent interview he announced that he would introduce legislation for the construction of the Nicaraguan canal to supplement the Panama canal as soon as the army engineering board now surveying the Nicaraguan route reports on it. He is confident that the report will be favorable.

This is midwestern statesmanship at its typical worst. The construction of the Nicaraguan canal will be of unquestioned value to the port cities on the Atlantic and Pacific, but it will disadvantage the inland states, one of which Mr. Schall is supposed to represent at Washington. Cheap intercoastal rates by way of the canal have cost the central states some of their most profitable markets on the Pacific slope. Our manufacturers and merchants can no longer compete on equal terms in the western markets with the manufacturers of the eastern seaboard, though we are a thousand miles nearer the west coast as the crow flies.

Mr. Schall proposes to make matters worse by building another canal. The last report of the governor of the Panama canal states that no decrease in tolls is justified because the income from the canal is not more than sufficient to retire the debt incurred in building it. Nevertheless, Mr. Schall would ask additional hundreds of millions from the taxpayers of his region to build another shipway which for many years to come must almost certainly operate at a heavy loss and in any event must work injury to agriculture and industry in the central states.

If Mr. Schall were a realist he would know that the waterways in which his state is interested are the internal waterways. He would do all in his power to prevent the expenditure of a penny on the Nicaraguan route at least until the Mississippi system is completed, and even then he would examine the Nicaraguan project with a good deal of justified suspicion. It may have value for naval defense, but commercially it has none for the great central valleys of our country which Mr. Schall should speak for.

Editorial of the Day

A STATUE IN GASCONY.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger].

To the reader who knows his Dumas there is no need for a statue to the memory of D'Artagnan. There are even those who believe that no statue could do justice to the swashbuckling, roistering Gascon. And until now not even the French, fellow countrymen of both Dumas and D'Artagnan, have attempted to immortalize the Dumas swordsman in bronze or marble. Words have been enough, the words of Dumas.

But now Gascony has decided it needs another statue. And at the town of Auch preparations are being made for the erection of a heroic figure. Gascons are contributing centimes toward its cost. D'Artagnan is to stand in bronze.

But what sort of figure is this to be? Is it to be the wild-eyed youth who challenged and defeated the crack swordsmen of France when he first went to Paris? Is it to be the D'Artagnan who repeatedly led gigantic Porthos, clever Aramis and melancholy Athos to victory against impossible odds? Is it to be D'Artagnan the gentle lover? Or is it to be the mature D'Artagnan, a bit sedate, a bit settled, captain of the musketeers? To be a true D'Artagnan it must be all these. And it cannot be all these in one bronze figure.

No, D'Artagnan never will be put on a pedestal at Auch. There will be a figure, true, and it will be so labeled; but D'Artagnan's only real statue always will be a flitting figure swaggering through the imagination, a figure that even Alexandre Dumas could not completely capture. For D'Artagnan is a myth and an ideal and a dream, and half his colorful self exists only in the mind of the man who knew

COLICKY BABY.

THE mother of a colicky baby wants a doctor who cures colic. Such a doctor she would not swap for the greatest research artist or the most profound scientist the world has ever known. With her, colic is a condition and not a theory. It may be simple, as they say, and devoid of danger, but to her it means yells and discomfort on the one hand, and floor walking and emotional misery on the other. Let us introduce her to a method of cure advocated by a physician who has had experience.

There are various kinds of colics and for some, mothers have about as much method as they need. Some babies get mild attacks, caused by swallowing air with their food. Probably they nurse too rapidly, or overdistend the stomach. About all the cure needed for such cases is to hold the sufferer against the chest, with his head somewhere over her shoulder, and pat him on the back. Presently some air comes up, or some air and milk, and no further treatment is required.

For more severe cases Dr. E. J. Barrett proposes the following plan: A small fraction of a grain of phenobarbital is given with the milk two or three times a day. This drug is sometimes put up in one-quarter grain doses. Not more than one such tablet is given as a dose. Preferably, a tablet should be divided into two, or even four, and a fraction of a tablet is given as a dose. Phenobarbital is a drug which is akin to bromide and it is used for soothing nervousness and inducing sleep. It should not be used recklessly.

This brings us to the next proposal. The bulk of milk and other baby food is a factor in colic. If an evaporated milk be used and, instead of diluting it according to directions, it be made into a paste and fed from a spoon, or if it be diluted to only one-half the volume usually given, it is less liable to cause colic. One cure for colic is feeding of evaporated milk in the form of a paste. Or, the feeding of thick cereal can be done.

Pylorospasm is a cousin to colic. In this condition there is a spasmodic stretching of the stomach. It is characterized by profound vomiting and loss of weight. Feeding thick cereal without drugs will cure many cases of pylorospasm. Feeding it with the addition of phenobarbital will cure more. There are still other drugs that are useful in this disorder. Seldom is an operation done for pylorospasm in these days. Physicians now cure pylorospasm, and they prevent and cure colic, and mothers need no longer be tempted to swap doctors, sight unseen.

BUZZING IN THE EARS.

C. W. writes: I am a man, 53 years old, in good health, and smart and active in every way except that two years ago my hearing became impaired. I can carry on conversations with persons near me, but I cannot hear a conversation going on around me. Lately a troublesome ear buzzing attacks, especially when I go to bed at night. I find it hard to get to sleep. Will this buzzing make my hearing worse? Is there anything I can do to stop it?

REPLY.

It is possible a physician would find your ear canals full of wax. If so, have it removed or have any other simple trouble attended to. Buzzing and deafness may result from such simple causes. Otherwise you may expect some further impairment of your hearing.

TREATING A BAD BUMP.

A Subscriber writes: Recently I noticed an inquiry asking how to reduce a bump and dissolve blood clots caused from a severe bruise.

Apply hot boric acid packs continuously six to eight hours daily until lump disappears, which will be in about ten days. Also gently massage bump. As bump sticks out prominently, it burns easily. Place a thin piece of gauze over face, put some adhesive tape over this and bump will be protected. Be sure the packs are hot.

PROPERTY OWNERS' O. K.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—[Friend of the People.]—A large factory is being erected at 43d street and Shields avenue. I would like to know as would the property owners in this neighborhood how this factory can be built on a public alley and also on Stewart avenue without the consent of any one in this district.

Is a factory like this permitted to be built so close to a public school?

T. F. J.

The building under construction is to be used by the Pullman company for laundry purposes.

Before the permit was issued the written consent of a majority of the property owners according to frontage on the street was obtained and placed on file in this office. There is no violation of the city ordinances.

CHRISTIAN P. PASCHEN,
Commissioner of Building.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A Chicago woman says from a legal standpoint her husband cannot prevent her entertaining in their home (which said husband continues to fully support, while said husband is confined indefinitely in a hospital) any male visitor she chooses to entertain even though said husband has forbidden her to do so, so long as there is a third person in the house.

Is this woman correct on this point?

S. M.

We see no way for him to stop it on the bare facts stated.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WATER SHUT OFF.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—[Friend of the People.]—An old building has been wrecked in the 700 block, West Congress street, and the water has not been properly shut off. Water runs in the street, practically covering the whole surface, making it almost impossible to cross the street.

Have called the water department, city of Chicago, on three different occasions, but nothing has been done. What would you advise?

A. C. T.

The central district water pipe extension shut off a service pipe at West Congress street where building was wrecked. This has apparently stopped all leakage.

LORAN D. GAYTON,
City Engineer.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AS THE RADIO SEES IT.

Hello, folks, L-I-N-E broadcasting the big news for tonight. Yessir, we're all ready here now to see the departure of the old year and the arrival of the new. It is now just a few minutes before 12 o'clock, midnight, which is the time set for the big event to take place. We are up here, folks, on top of the grand stand, where we have a fine view of the field and can see about everything. Of course, it being around midnight makes it a little dark, but the flood lights will be turned on so that the center of the field will be as light as day; well, as light as day, say, in Pittsburgh. Anyhow, I hope to see well enough to tell you of everything that happens. Well, here comes old 1930 hobbling along on a crutch and his long gray whiskers waving in the wind. Wait a minute! Wait a minute! I told you it was a little dark here, being midnight, and I was mistaken about that being old 1930. That's Father Time; he's the master of ceremonies here tonight. Father Time takes off his hat and stands his hoe against the ropes. Oh, all right, folks. Guess you heard what Bill Snipes just said to me. Bill said, "That hain't a hoe, you fat head, that's a scythe." Sure enough, it is a scythe, but I told you how dark it was out here. Hey, folks, do you hear that noise? And there's a sort of big mob down there running and yelling. They're trying to catch an old man running in front of them. That must be 1930. Everybody hates that guy and they're after him with bricks and guns and everything. I can see a lot of people who have been buying stocks on margin down there chasing 1930 around, and a lot of people who lost their jobs this past year, and a lot of tired business men, 'though they hain't acting very tired right now, and a lot o' Republicans. Gee! Them Republicans are certainly sore at 1930! He put 'em on the bum right! Look, they're shooting at old 1930, THEY'RE GOING TO KILL 'IM—THEY'RE GOING TO KILL 'IM! No! They missed him. Father Time jumped right in and saved 1930 from the mob—but there goes the clerk striking the hour. Hear it? And, bless my heart, there he is, LITTLE 1931 HIMSELF. The mob is cheering him, the bands are playing, the whistles tooting, and bells ringing, and guns firing. Wish you were up here with me, folks, to enjoy it. And there he is! There he is—folks, there's little 1931 himself!

REUNION.

(FOR NEW YEAR'S.)

Now that you're living alone
You gather colored tile,
To make a strange mosaic
On a table top the while
You choose a careful pattern
To enfold the tinted gleams
That tell the charming stories
In your treasure chest of dreams!

Now that you're through with dancing,
And the piper has been paid,
Could we not hold reunion
With your tile-top table laid
For tea, or something chosen
To compose a toast for two
To pledge a stronger friendship
As the old year greets the new?

COLORADO PETE.

HURRAH! HOOROO! HOORAY! Let us all breathe easier! Sinclair Lewis announces that if for any reason America goes to war with England, France, or Germany ("which are countries that I love quite as much as I do America"), he would take the side of America. Oh, wonderful news! The thought of having to lick not only England, France, or Germany in the next year, but also Sinclair Lewis, was enough to keep every patriot in this broad land awake at night. Now we can all go to sleep.

A Typical New Yorker.

R. H. L.: The first day Albert Barrett came to rehearse in Lysistrata I said to me, "Here is the legitimate son of Father Knickerbocker!" In all my peregrinations I had never met the genuine New York aristocrat we read about. But here he was at last! A direct descendant of the Stuyvesants—tailored by Shotland—a university man with more degrees than a thermometer—the grand manner, without being pontifical—perfect diction, without English-aping, and the easy grace that springs only from generations of old New York culture. The man seemed to know everything. A few weeks after our arrival from New York he and I attended the stock show. I was amazed at the facility with which he discussed Holsteins, Clydesdales, Buff Cochins, Low Flat Dutch, et al.

Shortly afterward blushing rustics began coming back stage to be greeted by Al as long lost cousins, aunts, and assorted relatives and friends. NOW it comes out that the big stiff was born and raised on a prairie farm and that he left the tall grass down near the center of this state about six years after I did! All of which goes to prove that there ain't no such animal as the "real New Yorker." And if there is, the very best specimen comes from an Illinois farm!

JOHN CONNERY.

VALE.

The whole world halts to mourn with you,
Abe Martin, and your kindly crew
Of neighbors, standing mute before
Kin Hubbard's silent, crape-hung door.

The whole world halts to drop a tear,
Here in the twilight of the year,
For him whose pungent paragraph
Each morning made the whole world laugh.

We must go home and do our chores,
Turn to our offices and stores,
Consigning to the shadows, dim,
Ez Pash, Tell Blinkley—you—and Him.

We must go home; and so, adieu,
Abe Martin and your kindly crew,
Last of your race of Hoosier sons,
Of Riley's folks and Eggleston's.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 31, 1914.

LONDON.—Four German airplanes, avenging the British raid on Cuxhaven, flew over Dunkirk, on the French coast, and for more than half an hour dropped bombs on the town. A fifth German airship performed sentry duty outside the city, holding itself in readiness to attack any allies' airplane seeking a fight. Fifteen citizens of Dunkirk were killed and thirty-two injured.

CHICAGO.—According to custom, nothing but wine will be served in the places where one really can afford to be seen when empty 1914 is carried away and Maitre d'Hôtel Time pulls the cork from 1915. Seven hundred patrons are expected at Rector's. Twelve hundred diners will be taken care of by Hotel La Salle. The Blackstone management has made provisions for 550 guests. Such a crowd is expected at the College Inn that the ice skating will be eliminated. Dinner will be $5 a plate.

EL PASO, Tex.—In Gen. Villa's gambling casino in Juarez today Jack Curley signed an agreement with Hypolite Villa, brother of the famous general, for the staging of the Johnson-Willard prize fight for the heavyweight championship.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

LONDON.—Once more has Lord Kitchener a disaster to report, and the closing day of the century finds the English people in no more cheerful mood than they were a year ago. This time it is the British garrison at Helvetia that suffered, and according to the official advices fifty of the town's defenders were killed, besides forty-six wounded and 200 taken prisoners by the Boers.

CHICAGO.—The last day of the century is here, and the world will wait tonight for the coming of the next. Chicago, the commercial wonder of the age, has prepared to do the occasion justice. Joseph Kipley, superintendent of police, in an official bulletin said: "I will issue no order to the police to control the volume of pandemonium which will greet the birth of the new century. A great many people have been blowing their horns lately and the additional noise will scarcely be noticeable."

CHICAGO.—Chicago Methodists inaugurated yesterday at the First church the twentieth century revival which it is hoped will add 2,000,000 converts to the faith before the close of the new year.

OMAHA, Neb.—It developed today that the threat of the abductors, contained in the last letter received by Edward A. Cudahy, was even more severe than was stated yesterday. It says: "Cudahy: If you value the boy's life at the price of a bullet you will withdraw the reward at once and let well enough alone. If you don't do this we will finish the job with a bullet. If any man, whether guilty or innocent, is ever arrested a bullet will close the boy's mouth." Mr. Cudahy said today that in spite of this warning he will not abandon the search.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

NEW YORK.—The funeral of the Rev. Dr. Edwin Hubbell Chapin, pastor of the Church of the Divine Fraternity, who died on Dec. 26, was held today. An immense crowd attended the services. The following clergymen officiated and delivered addresses: The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, the Rev. Dr. Thomas Armitage, the Rev Dr. Robert Collyer, the Rev. Dr. James M. Pullman, the Rev. Dr. Casper, and the Rev. C. H. Fay.

BERLIN.—The Dutch government is about to appeal to the British nation in favor of the independence of the Boers in the Transvaal.

CHICAGO.—Mayor Harrison was unusually happy yesterday. A printing firm presented him with a copy of a calendar for 1881, dedicated to his honor. Such is fame.

CHICAGO.—Mr. and Mrs. George T. Potter celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Potter, 93 Drexel boulevard Hyde Park. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Byron Schemmerhorn, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Willing, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Warner, Arthur R. Clark, Wallace G. Clark, Mrs. M. A. Otis, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Richardson, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burchell.

ORPHAN ANNIE.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—I am an older sister of a 7 year old child who listens regularly to Orphan Annie over the radio. As a result, and it is very obvious, this child is losing respect for his elders. I get scolded by every one else in the house if I dare shut the radio off or get another station when it is time for the Orphan Annie program.

Here is why I object: Most children do things by imitation; Annie is a haughty, saucy child. The author creates for her the mentality of a grown up person. If the author had to live in our house with my 7 year old brother now I am sure he would make Orphan Annie act more her own age.

GANDHI.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—We ridicule the Hindus who expect to gain independence by nonviolent methods. Yet is it not in our own Christian Bible that it is said that "those who fight with a sword shall perish from the sword"? And is it not true that it so happened in the past history of empires, including that of Russia, Germany, and Austria, that they have built their greatness by the use of might and not that of right? Evidently Gandhi's effort for independence without the use of a sword is to create an enduring state that will not perish from the sword as others have. Instead of ridiculing his methods, may the nations of the world take heed from Gandhi and "do unto others as they would like to be done by," or suffer the consequences of endless wars; there seems to be no other remedy against future wars.

VAPOR OF SMOKE.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 28.—I am much interested in the accounts of the recent death fog in Belgium. It may interest your readers, in view of the fact that no scientific explanation has been found, to know that one of the signs of the returns of Jesus and the "end of the times of the gentile nations" is just such a fog. In the Bible, second chapter of Acts, verse 19, we read, "And I will show wonders in heaven, and in the earth beneath, blood and fire (war!) and vapor of smoke (fog)." In view of the opinion of Ludendorf and other European diplomats that the coming war of Armageddon will open with hostilities between France and Italy, in which the French army will immediately occupy Germany to join forces with Poland, is it not strange that this sign should occur at the most strategic point for such a maneuver?

REFLECTIONS OF A NONMILKMAN.

Des Plaines, Ill., Dec. 26.—I read with deep sympathy of the troubles of Walter Larsen, the milkman. However, I feel sure that if he will quit his job somebody can be prevailed upon to do his work. This country is still free in that respect. If your job is too hard you may quit without breaking any law. I understand the wages run from $40 to $70 a week and you do not have to know any more than to make a delivery wherever the horse stops.

It was the newsboy I felt sorry for, who does exactly the same work, for which I doubt he receives more than a dollar a day, but then he has the privilege of walking, while the milkman rides behind a horse. Of course the newsboy gets through earlier, but then the paper is delivered 4 or 5 hours before the milk shows up.

ALDERMEN SLASH LICENSE BUREAU, BUT LET IT LIVE

$200,000 Is All It Will Get Next Year.

Members of the council finance committee last night decided what they wanted done with the city department of license. By a unanimous vote the aldermen agreed to retain the 93 civil service employés in the department but to eliminate from the 1931 budget approximately 62 temporary appointees. The appropriation for 1931 will be approximately $200,000 as compared with $212,000 for 1930.

"I think that criticisms are directed at the administration of this department rather than at its functions," said Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th]. "For that reason I believe that we should retain the civil service men."

Stop Loading of Pay Rolls.

At the suggestion of Ald. James B. Bowler [25th] a safeguard was placed in the budget against the practice of loading the license department pay rolls at election time. By changing the method of appropriating for the department the aldermen arranged the expenditures so that an equal force would be kept on at all times of the year.

The fight against retention of the department in 1931 was led by Douglas Sutherland of the Civic Federation. In a hearing before the committee on two occasions he contended that the city probably would lose little in the collection of license fees if the entire bureau was abolished.

Before settling the license department appropriation the aldermen adopted a policy of not granting salary increases to city employés for 1931 and requests for raises totaling thousands of dollars were placed on file.

The action was taken after the aldermen were informed that in the course of the evening session they had added approximately $500,000 to the budget and now must cut nearly $2,000,000 from the 1931 appropriations to make the budget balance with the estimated revenues.

City Court Gets a Boost.

Additions totaling $271,000 were made to the Municipal court appropriations. Chief Justice Sonsteby obtained an increase of $34,000 over the 1930 amount for his office, Clerk Gill was given $126,000 additional, and Bailiff Horan received $111,000. The increases will create three new jobs in the chief justice's office, 35 new jobs in the clerk's office, and 30 new jobs in the bailiff's office.

The committee also increased the appropriations of the police department by $214,600, which is the sum needed to pay the salaries in 1931 of the 130 men that Acting Police Commissioner Alcock added to the force on Monday.

An additional sum of $20,000 was given to Alcock to establish a bureau of criminal investigation. Alcock requested $40,000 for his new bureau. The personnel of the bureau, he wrote, will consist of a psychiatrist at $7,500 a year and a pathologist, a chemist, and a criminologist each at $6,000 a year.

Faherty Asks $13,952,000.

Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, tossed in the committee's lap a revised estimate of the money he wants in 1931 for the State street subway. The total request for money to be taken out of the traction fund was set at $13,952,000, besides fees for attorneys which might add another $150,000.

The largest item in the Faherty setup is for $7,506,000 to pay the public benefits for whatever actual construction of the subway that may be done in 1931.

Husband Gets Six Months for Slashing Wife's Face

James Quinn, 40 years old, 6800 Normal avenue, an engineer, was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell and fined $100 on charges of assault and carrying a concealed weapon when he appeared yesterday before Judge William E. Helander. Quinn was accused of slashing the face of his wife with a razor in the office of Dr. E. S. Brown, a dentist, at 204 West 63d street, where she was employed as a nurse.

School Children Fund $98,016 for Thanksgiving

The final check for the School Children's Aid society fund was received yesterday by Mrs. George Koester, treasurer of the society, from William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, treasurer of the collection of the Thanksgiving fund, making a total of $98,016.43 for 1930.

LUCAS TURNS ON WALSH IN CLASH OVER SEN. NORRIS

Replies to Statement by Montanan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Just to keep the pot simmering Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, turned his attention to Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.] today.

Senator Walsh, a Democrat with radical leanings, had assailed Lucas and the national committee's campaign against Gov. Al Smith. With Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rep., N. D.], chairman of the senatorial campaign committee, he went to Florida on a subcommittee at government expense to investigate the everglades as the possible site of a national park. Like Senator Nye's recent statements, his came not from the everglades but from Miami Beach.

Senator Walsh termed Mr. Lucas campaign against Senator George W. Norris, radical Republican of Nebraska, "reprehensible" and "contemptible" and declared it had been calculated to arouse religious bigotry against Senator Norris because of his support of Gov. Smith.

Again, Mr. Lucas called Senator Norris, though nominally a Republican, a Democrat in reality.

"It is not at all surprising that Senator Walsh, a Democrat, would come to the aid of his fellow Democrat, Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, as he did in a statement last night at Miami Beach, Fla., concerning the Nye 'investigation' of the recent senatorial contest in Nebraska," he said.

"I venture to say that Senator Walsh has not read the literature which I personally at my own expense furnished to the anti-Norris Republicans of Nebraska in the last campaign. As I have repeatedly stated, this literature made no reference to any religious question nor was it calculated even by inference to arouse prejudice of any kind."

BEGINS MAILING OF INCOME TAX RETURN BLANKS

The job of mailing 450,000 income tax blanks was begun yesterday by Robert E. Neely, chief deputy collector of internal revenue. March 15, 1931, is the last day for filing returns on incomes for 1930.

Collections by the internal revenue bureau from all sources totaled $227,555,597 in the first Illinois district during 1930, as compared with $269,694,906 during 1929, Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, collector, announced.

The decrease was due mainly to the falling off in income tax collections, which totaled $207,948,387 during 1930 and $229,304,346 during 1929. Miscellaneous collections, including entertainment and inheritance taxes, totaled $19,607,209.95 in 1930 as against $20,390,560.30 during 1929.

SEARCH IN VAIN FOR FEUDIST BROTHERS WHO STORMED JAIL

Salem, Ind., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Several groups of officers tramped over the hills of Washington county again today seeking the Gibson brothers, Dan and Alonzo. They and two other brothers are alleged to have attempted the lynching of two men held in jail here for the slaying of their father.

Charles Moore, deputy sheriff, and Lieut. John C. Weir of the state police, directing the search, divided their possemen into small squads this morning and sent them out to cover a wide territory.

The squads were instructed to bring in persons who may have given aid to the fugitives. Many inhabitants of Washington county once lived in Tennessee and Kentucky where the Gibsons formerly made their home.

There was slight improvement today in the condition of Elmer Gerald, Salem, town marshal, who was wounded by the youngest Gibson brother, Otis, in the exchange of shots with the town marshal. Otis was killed. A fourth brother, Gilfred, was captured and is in jail here.

Aurora to Put Veterans' Memorial on New Bridge

The Aurora city council yesterday voted to place a veterans' memorial on a new bridge being built across the Fox river at New York street, the Aurora extension of the Ogden avenue road. The memorial has been designed by Emory Seidel, Chicago sculptor. He will do the statuary and have charge of the general work.

EXPLAIN HEAVY LAW FUND FOR SANITARY BOARD

$967,000 in '31 Budget for Contingencies.

Walter E. Beebe, attorney for the sanitary district, and Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee, gave an explanation yesterday of the proposed $1,327,138 appropriation for the law department of the district.

In comparison with the appropriations for the corporation counsel's office of the city the district's appropriation for its law department appeared large.

Attorney Beebe said that of the total of $1,327,138 only $360,138 is a flat appropriation for the law department, while $967,000 is a "contingent appropriation."

$600,000 to Settle Flood Claims.

"In the contingent appropriation is one item of $600,000," continued Mr. Beebe, "to be used so far as necessary in compromising and settling suits and claims for damages to property in the Illinois river valley, of which there are 720 undisposed of, aggregating approximately $15,000,000 in the amount of damages claimed."

Such an item in the city budget is not placed in the appropriation for the law department. It is segregated under a separate heading.

Regarding the other $367,000 of contingent appropriations Mr. Beebe said: "This is a total of sums set up which may or may not be needed, depending on whether the necessity arises. These sums include services of attorneys and investigators and expenditures in connection with litigation relating to water diversion, activated sludge patents, special assessments, condemnation proceedings, and trade wastes. Other contingent items are for witness fees, court reporting, master in chancery fees, opinions on bonds and anticipation warrants, appraisers' fees, title searches, and the like."

Law Definite, Woodhull Says.

Trustee Woodhull added: "There is no budget law applying to any municipality in the state that is as definite, restrictive, and confining in all phases of expenditure as is the budget law applying to the sanitary district. It provides that every requirement of the district, even contingencies upon anticipated development, must be embodied in the budget when the appropriation is passed.

"As explained to me, we must set up allowances to pay damages when and if claims are deemed of sufficient merit and an actual legal obligation of the district. The appropriation for the law department last year was $1,742,769, but only $710,506 was spent. And of that expenditure $221,062 was actually paid for damages to property in the Illinois valley.

"The trustees are especially responsive to constructive criticism. They have been unanimous thus far in every decision on the budget, but it is still subject to change and amendment. If it can be shown that any appropriations in the budget are not justified, they will be eliminated. Some items in the law department's allowance are contingent upon future developments; but we have been advised these contingent items must be appropriated to meet the requirements of the budget law."

U. S. ENGINEERS READY TO TAKE OVER WATERWAY

Hurley Speeds Work on Illinois Project.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Arrangements for transfer of the Illinois waterway between Joliet and Utica to the federal government have been completed and the water route will be taken over by government engineers within the next few days.

As soon as bids for construction of the completed units of the waterway are sent out to bidders the government engineers will move on to the property and take charge of the construction work. So far as could be learned here the change of jurisdiction will take place when the government engineers begin supervision of federal construction.

Col. William C. Weeks, district engineer, left for Chicago late today after conferring with Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley and Maj. Gen. Brown. The Weeks plans for advertising the federal construction work and for beginning operations were approved yesterday, as disclosed in today's CHICAGO TRIBUNE. A war department announcement stated today that Secretary Hurley has ordered that construction of the Illinois waterway project should be "vigorously prosecuted."

Plans call for the opening of bids on the Dresden island project on Jan. 30 and on the Brandon road unit Feb. 2. A total of $1,200,000 is now available for work on this important link of the lakes to the gulf waterway. As soon as the annual war department appropriation bill is enacted additional funds will be available for this work.

WINTERBOTHAM FUNERAL RITE TO BE HELD TODAY

Civic and Business Chief Is Heart Victim.

Funeral services for John H. Winterbotham, whose death at St. Luke's hospital occurred early yesterday morning, will be held for friends of the family at 4 o'clock this afternoon at St. James's Episcopal church, Huron and Cass streets. The body is to be cremated, and on the arrival here of Joseph Winterbotham, his brother, who is now on the ocean en route home from Europe, the ashes will be taken to Michigan City, Ind., for burial. The interment will take place Saturday or Sunday, it was said yesterday. Mr. Winterbotham had suffered for several months from heart disease which caused his death.

Born in Joliet.

Mr. Winterbotham, who was 55 years old, was born in Joliet, Ill., the son of Joseph Winterbotham. He was educated at Yale, from which he was graduated in 1897, and came back to Chicago to reside. In 1900 he married Anne Reynolds of East Orange, N. J., who survives him, together with their two daughters, Mrs. Shreve Badger and Miss Rue Winterbotham, and his sister, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter.

Mr. Winterbotham's friends recall his loyalty, his kindness, his sound sense, his wit and brave gayety of spirit, and his services in war and peace.

Mr. Winterbotham was known as a valued supporter and counsellor of the Chicago crime commission, and to the charitable work of the community he brought his natural kindness and his practical ability, notably as vice president and later president of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society.

Head of Cooperage Company.

In business Mr. Winterbotham was president of J. H. Winterbotham & Sons, cooperage manufacturers; was vice president of the J. C. Pennoyer company, cooperage stock, and the Pennoyer Merchants Transfer company.

For many years the family resided at 40 East Huron street and the home was the center of social activities. Recently the family moved to the new cooperative apartment at 1301 Astor street which Mr. Winterbotham himself was active in building.

Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank of 1244 North State street, who are among Mr. Winterbotham's closest friends, have withdrawn invitations and canceled their large New Year's afternoon reception because of his death.

PROPOSES STATE POLICE RADIO TO AID CRIME WAR

A state police radio system, whereby cruising highway policemen and municipal police stations may be made immediately aware of crimes in their area, is the plan of State Representative Richard J. Lyons [Rep., 8th] of Mundelein, who will attempt to interest the legislature in it at the session convening on Jan. 7.

Mr. Lyons is investigating to determine the best type of short wave radio adaptable to this sort of broadcasting and is studying the Chicago police radio which he believes would serve as a model for the larger system.

Although he has not progressed to the point of deciding whether a bill should be introduced to legalize the system or whether it could be set in operation by the use of highway funds, Mr. Lyons is in daily consultation with state officials on his plan. He said last night that he believed Springfield might be the best location for the broadcasting station of the system.

FOUR MISSISSIPPI BANKS CLOSED BY ORDER OF STATE

No Reasons Given for Failure to Open.

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Deposits totaling $1,730,103 were involved in six bank closures in Mississippi today.

The banks closed were:

The Planters National bank, Clarksdale, with deposits of $700,000, and its savings division, the Planters Trust and Savings bank, a state bank, with savings of $503,103.

The Progressive State bank, Tutwiler, deposits of $200,000, and the Peoples Bank of Jonestown, deposits $50,000.

The Bank of Walnut Grove, deposits $100,000, and the Bank of Lena, deposits $75,000, both in Lake county.

Two Suspend, One Closes.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The state banking department today announced the closing of one small bank for liquidation and the suspension of two others for five days.

The Bank of Stephens, at Stephens, was placed in charge of the banking department for liquidation.

The suspended banks were the Citizens Bank and Trust company, at England, with capital and surplus of $140,000 and deposits of $229,777, and the Bank of Chidester, at Chidester, with capital and surplus of $14,000 and deposits of $51,114.

Operates at Loss, Suspends.

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Closing of the College State bank, Manhattan, patronized by Kansas State Agricultural college students, was announced today by the state banking department. The action was ordered by the bank's board of directors, it was announced, because the institution was being operated at a loss.

State Takes Over Indiana Bank.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Citizens State bank, a neighborhood bank on the west side here, was placed in the hands of the state banking department today following heavy withdrawals.

Cashier Disappears; Bank Shuts.

Center Point, Ia., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Linn County Savings bank of Center Point was closed temporarily today pending an investigation of its affairs.

John H. Stauffer, cashier, disappeared yesterday and a state bank examiner has been summoned. It was said that no irregularities had been found.

Withdrawals Close Ohio Bank.

HYDE'S POSTAGE FREE YULE CARDS ROUSES CARAWAY'S WRATH

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Secretary Hyde and Senator Caraway of Arkansas came to words today about Christmas cards.

The senator said he had been informed the secretary sent his greetings under the free mailing privilege given cabinet members for official business.

The secretary replied that they were not personal cards but the official holiday greetings customarily sent by the department to the various officials of organizations and agencies that cooperate with the department.

Caraway opined that:

"He was opposed to using government money to succor starving babies in drought ridden states, but I understand he used it to send out Christmas cards."

Hyde felt that:

"Sufficient proof of the fact that they are official and not personal can be adduced from the fact that Senator Caraway received one. The number of these cards sent out this year was about 900. The postage would have been about $18. The senator's interest in starving babies is very touching.

"It is hard to see how the payment of $18 to the postoffice department by this department would have changed the status of any babies—whether starving or otherwise. The senator's interest in such babies is, I am inclined to believe, both academic and political."

Caraway said he understood the postoffice department had required Hyde to pay postage on some personal greeting cards.

An official of the postoffice department said that through an office error some cards had been sent which did not fit under the franking privilege, but as soon as it was discovered the secretary paid the small amount of postage due.

Hyde said:

"I have not been required by postal inspectors to pay back a lot of postage or a cent of postage."

RETIRED BANKER BURIED BESIDE WIFE OF 63 YEARS

Charles W. Bullard, retired Maywood banker, who died Sunday four days after the death of his wife, to whom he had been married 63 years, was buried beside her yesterday in the family lot at Forest Home cemetery.

In deference to his memory, business houses of the suburb closed for an hour during the funeral services.

The funeral was held from the chapel at 201 Lake street, Maywood. The Rev. Jesse Kolmon of the First Congregational church, who had also officiated at the services for Mrs. Bullard, spoke of "the beauty of their companionship," and said that almost the last words of Mr. Bullard were, "I had hoped to die first."

JOHN F. BRAUN SR., 72 years old, a drapery cutter employed by the John M. Smyth Furniture company for the last thirty years, collapsed and died a few minutes after arriving for work yesterday. A heart attack aggravated by the cold is believed to have caused his death. He lived at 1349 North Campbell avenue. A son, John F. Braun Jr., is in the insurance business at 3121 North California avenue.

U. S. WILL TURN CHANUTE FIELD INTO A PRISON

Air Equipment to Be Moved to Dayton.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—A hospital for defective and delinquent federal prisoners ultimately will replace the flying equipment now maintained by the war department at Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill. Only temporary buildings to house prisoners from northern Illinois will be erected within the next few years, as the war department will not turn over all of the air corps buildings for some time.

Reports that the war department had decided to abandon the flying field and transfer the equipment to Dayton, O., were confirmed today by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley. The secretary said that efficiency and economy had prompted transfer of the field to the department of justice and the removal of government personnel and equipment to Wright field at Dayton.

Only 280 acres will be turned over at this time, the other 300 acres will be retained under war department control until arrangements can be made to remove all military equipment.

Chanute is one of the oldest government flying fields. The buildings in recent years have been permitted to deteriorate and none of them, it was said at the war department, will be available for use by the justice department. The buildings at Chanute field were built in 1917 and many army flyers who later won fame in aerial combat were trained there. For the last few years it has been the home of the air corps technical school, a training center for enlisted personnel. About 900 men are stationed there at present.

LAW PROFESSOR COUNSELS MORE SCIENTIFIC STUDY

Students of criminal law should devote less attention to technical points, as exemplified in leading cases, and study specific problems arising in the administration of the law. This recommendation was made yesterday at a round table meeting of the Association of American Law Schools at the Stevens hotel by Prof. A. M. Kidd, member of the faculty of the University of California.

"Prosecutors and defense attorneys should acquaint themselves with the latest scientific methods of crime detection," Prof. Kidd asserted. "Going into court thus equipped they can make an intelligent defense or criticism of the scientific testimony involved. Prosecutors should also know more of the methods of dealing with criminals when caught—how to extract confessions, for example, and make them stand up."

FATHER MULLALY DEAD; FOUNDER OF CHURCH HERE

Funeral services for the Rev. James J. Mullaly, pastor of Our Lady of Grace church, Ridgeway avenue and Altgeld street, who died yesterday, will be conducted Friday morning, with a solemn requiem high mass at the church and interment in Calvary cemetery. Father Mullaly founded the church in 1909 and had been with it ever since. He was a brother of Mrs. Bridget Maher and Mrs. Mattie Hennessy and the late Sister Mary Aloysia of the Order of St. Dominick. The remains are lying in state at the rectory, 2456 North Ridgeway avenue.

JUDGE CAN'T FREE 25 GAMBLERS, FOR HE'S THE 26TH

Police Chief and Cops Also Land in Jail.

BY ROBERT SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, Dec. 30.—The greatest gambling raid in the history of the Philippine constabulary has just taken place in the town of Sanchez Miri, province of Cagayan, in the northern part of Luzon. After 26 culprits, caught red-handed at the illegal game of "monte," were lodged in the town jail, it was discovered that they could not be bailed out.

The dealer, nabbed by the raiding squad first, turned out to be the justice of the peace and, in his capacity as magistrate, was the only one who could fix bail.

Chief of Police in Cell.

The chief of police might have ordered the release of the prisoners on his own responsibility, but the chief, with two of his patrolmen, was also behind the bars. An appeal to the city council was planned, but the leading councilman had also been arrested. Others seized in the raid were the municipal treasurer and the teacher of the municipal school.

Even the power of money was of no avail. The town's two leading capitalists, both Chinese merchants, were also in custody.

Consequently the 26 prisoners stayed behind bars until the provincial governor appointed a new justice of the peace and a new chief of police. He took his time.

Great Exhibit for Trial.

The display of exhibits gathered by the police for the trial was singular. In addition to the confiscated cards, money, table, pencil, and lamp, the constabulary listed the following objects: a policeman's whistle, belonging to Patrolman Dana; a .32 caliber revolver, belonging to the chief of police; two police helmets, one belonging to a patrolman, and one to the chief; a policeman's badge; two belts of ammunition containing 52 rounds each; one night stick.

The amount of money involved in the gambling game was 32 pesos, or about $16.

SYNOPSIS.

Roland Chandos and his wife, Leonie, former grand duchess of Reichtenburg, are held at their estate near Littai, in Austria, by George Hanbury, companion of Chandos in many adventures. Marya Salm, countess of Dresden, an expected guest, wires that she does not come.

Prince Paul, ruler of Reichtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and swore revenge. Fearing for Marya's safety, because of her friendship for Leonie, Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants Bell and Rowley, go secretly to Vigil, capital city of Reichtenburg, where Marya resides. A peasant, named Ramon, whom they befriend, leads them through a secret border passage.

Marya tells them that she sent no message. Realizing the telegram was a ruse to lure her to Vigil, they are preparing to flee with Marya when the prince appears. The plan to hold the prince and his servants at point of gun and escape in the royal car. The matter is so closely guarded that crossing is impossible.

Ramon is sought and he hides Marya and Carol, her trusted servant, in his house. Chandos and Rowley join a traveling circus. Marya sends them a message saying she is waiting for them in Bariche, across the border, where Carol is to take them in a car she has waiting. They recognize the car as Grieg's, the chief of police. Arrived at the circus in Bariche they receive another message from Marya stating that she is to be followed, but she must remain in Reichtenburg and not communicate with them.

Knowing that Marya, endeavoring to save them, has made some impossible arrangement with Grieg, they return to the border. Hanbury and Rowley pass, but Chandos is arrested. He proves to the inspector that Grieg has betrayed his trust. Grieg, who has learned of the arrest, arrives and leaves with the prisoner for Vigil. Hanbury and Rowley, knowing their friend's plight, hold up and capture the chief's car. They drive into the estate of Baron Sabre, where they find Marya. Grieg they left tied to a post along the roadside.

Marya tells them that she was married that morning to Grieg—her price for their freedom. Hanbury, who is in love with Marya, is stunned at this news. Chandos sets out to find Grieg and kill him, to free Marya—but Grieg has escaped. Chandos returns to Baron Sabre's and sees Prince Paul arrive. Hiding nearby, Chandos hears the prince and Grieg arguing. Grieg is forgiven when he tells the prince he has a trap set to catch his prey that evening at the secret border pass, as well as Leonie, who is to meet them there. The prince departs. Chandos escapes with Rowley, after narrowly missing a bullet fired by Grieg. He meets a young peasant girl, Lelia, who tells him she will lead him to his friends. He intercepts a telegram to Grieg, from Littai—one of many which the girl has delivered. Lelia leaves Chandos at a mill where his friends are hiding. Rowley to finds asleep. Marya implores him not to kill Grieg. When Chandos returns from bathing in the mill pond there is no trace of Marya. He starts out to search for her, but a bridge he is crossing gives way and he is saved from drowning by Lelia's rescuers. She rouses George and Rowley. Chandos sends the two men to follow Marya.

INSTALLMENT XXXIII.

LOVE'S LABOR.

"I suppose you are set," said Lelia, "on taking the bridle path."

"I must," said I. "I am going to start at 6."

"You will fall by the way," says she. "And, so far from saving her highness, you will not be able to save yourself."

"There will be no to-do so long as I manage to get there before the police. I have only to cross the water and wait on the farther side: and then, if Leonie comes, I can send her back."

It sounded simple, but I did not deceive myself. If Grieg in truth believed that Leonie was to arrive he would himself cross the water and lie in wait. And then, if she came, there would be the deuce of a fight.

Lelia said nothing, but when I had finished my meal she took my right hand and set it upon her knee. Then she stuffed a little cushion between my wrist and the ring and took a file from beside her and fell to work.

"Who taught you to free prisoners?" I said.

"Do not laugh at me," she answered. "I know—"

"Laugh? I can think of no man that would do it so well."

"But I am not a man," said Lelia softly.

After a little I asked what story she had told the smith.

"I used Grieg's name," she said. "I said that he had told me to ask the smith for a file."

It occurred to me that Lelia had little to learn.

Now filing through a steel band is very slow work, and before she had worked for 10 minutes Lelia began to fret.

"I am doing so badly," she wailed. "I had thought to free you in no time, and look at that stupid scratch."

"Who taught you to free prisoners?" I said.

"Believe me or not," said I, "no smith could go any faster. The steel is too hard."

"O, my dear," says she, "I shall never have done by 6."

"You'll have freed this hand," said I. "And the other can wait."

"Till when?" says she. "Till tomorrow? Till this day week?"

"You know," I said, "that I hope to return at dawn."

"I know," said she, "that you have no seven league boots."

Her thrust was cogent.

From where we sat to the fall was 13 miles—at the least. If I did nothing else, to walk there and back would take me at least nine hours. Such a march in my present state was beyond my power. I simply could not do it. What was far worse, by leaving at 6 I never should make the water before it was dark; and unless I was there before Grieg . . . My own words came into my mind—"the odds are on him who comes first to a place like that."

To this day I cannot account for my making so bad a mistake. But for Lelia's observation I believe that I should have set out on surely as wanton a journey as ever an idiot made, and I can only suppose that the blow on my head was to blame for my oversight.

Be that as it may, I now saw that unless I used Grieg's car I might as well stay where I was. The thing stood out. Even if I could do it—and, seeing the distance in the face I was not at all sure that I could—I must arrive late and jaded, unfit to keep any tryst, must less frustrate the ambition of such an enemy. There was nothing for it. I had the key to the car, and I must be thankful for that: but the thought of returning to the spinney and going alone about my business to get the car under way made me sit very silent, and when Lelia began to chatter I scarcely heard what she said.

"You are not listening to me."

"I know," I said. "I am more dull than usual this afternoon. Of course I cannot walk to the path."

"Your reason is returning," Lelia said. "Do you think you can do as you have and keep a clear brain? When the wheel stopped running old Agen, the miller, drowned himself in that race. It took six men to get his body out, and the water had broken his neck and both of his legs."

"God forgive me," said I. "I am very lucky."

"You are very strong," said she. "If I told them the truth in the village they would laugh me to scorn. I am glad you see that you cannot—"

"I am going by car and I want you to teach me the way."

It will be remembered that Grieg had so bestowed the car as to be able to drive away without being seen from the house. But the car was beside the drive which led to Vigil, while the drive which led to Vardar was now in my way. Since I could not gain the latter without driving up to the house and no choice but to make towards Vigil until I was out of the park and then turn south and east as soon as I could. But remembering how we had wandered the night before I was very shy of the country and fearful of losing my way; so I asked Lelia to tell me how to fetch the compass which would bring me around the park to some road that I knew.

Here I confess that, though we both tried our best, Lelia and I were often speaking different tongues. Corners and crossroads meant nothing at all to her. She had no eyes for the highway, but only for the lie of the land and the look of the neighboring farms. Hog's back and bluff and pasture—she knew them all; but I could not absorb such directions, and when I brought her back to the road she could not tell me its turnings or how it ran.

"Never mind. I shall get there somehow," I said at last. "The first farm you spoke of, Bremma's—is that on my right or left?"

"I do not know," said Lelia, "which side of the road it stands. But you will see the roof of the homestead rising like a grey haystack amid the trees of the trees. And if it is on your left you must go straight on."

"And if it is on my right?"

"Then you must bear to your right till you see the gap I spoke of with the sugar loaf hill beyond."

I suppose my manner betrayed me, for after a little silence she spoke again.

"You cannot learn your lesson, and I am not surprised. I will come with you, instead, to show you the way."

"Indeed, you will not," said I.

Lelia regarded the heaven. Then she bent again to her filing.

It was past a quarter to 6 before the steel ring parted and fell away.

"Let me cut the other," said Lelia. "You need not leave so early, now you are taking your car."

"Tomorrow," said I, "You have done enough for today. And thank you very much Lelia. Be sure I shall never forget."

She looked at me sharply.

"That is how people speak that are going away."

"I am not going tonight," I said. "But you know I am going tomorrow—I possibly can."

"I know that but for your friends you would go tonight."

"But not without telling you, Lelia."

"And thanking me for what I have done." She leapt to her feet and stood, breathing fast and hard, with her eyes on my face. "What I have done I have done because I love you, and then you—you thank me and throw my love in my face."

'Perfect Fool' Sets Pace in 'Follow Leader'

Do you like Ed Wynn?

If you do, you'll have a fine time during the last half of this picture and probably will not find the first part too boring. If Mr. Wynn is NOT one of your weaknesses, "Follow the Leader" will be just so much poison to you, for he's ever present, looking as he looks, gesturing as he gestures, and spilling over with the dumb brand of nonsense that has won for him the nickname of "The Perfect Fool."

"Follow the Leader" is the screenization of a musical show called "Manhattan Mary." The movie producers deleted song numbers and chorines, with the result that the spotlight plays practically continuously on the capering Mr. Wynn. He bumbles about, exuding lengthy, pointless wise cracks which, assuredly, COULDN'T be funny coming from anybody else; displaying a galaxy of peculiar inventions provided for every possible contingency and doing the wrong thing at all times. He is the "leader." He's been made head of a gang of hard boiled yahoos—as how the picture will reveal to you.

A bit of romance filters through the nutty proceedings. The love interest is pleasantly enough contributed by Stanley Smith and Ginger Rogers. Minor portrayals are handled as well as they need to be and from a technical standpoint the production is okay.

As you have guessed I find myself unable to go for Mr. Wynn in a big way. But if you do, why lift up your voices and rejoice, for there's plenty of him in town right now. Shadow's at the Palace and substance is over at the Grand Opera house in "Simple Simon."

See you tomorrow.

Muriel McCormick's Palm Beach Theater Will Open on Jan. 13

Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Palm Beach Playhouse, built amid the flower splotched grandeur of this fashionable playground and endowed by Muriel McCormick in the theory that it is an integral part of quiet community life here, will open Jan. 13 for an inaugural season of eleven weeks.

While the winter's early arrivals disported themselves today in the surf a few blocks away, Miss McCormick scurried through the countless duties to be accomplished before the curtain rises for "Mr. Pim Passes By," the first of eleven plays to be presented this season. The tickets are $1 to $5.50.

The star system is taboo for the ten members of the cast who will arrive here shortly for rehearsals. None is to be headlined.

Hay's Pledges Not to Cut the Pay of Film Jobs

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Will Hays, czar of the movies, marked his arrival in Hollywood today by a suggestion that state legislatures "refrain from meddling with motion pictures for the next four months," and promised in return that the film industry would weather the depression without slicing jobs, salaries or money put in circulation.

"There are no bonanzas on the motion picture horizon," Hays said. "But there is promise of the continuance of profitable employment for a great number of people if the industry is allowed to progress unharried."

Hays was accompanied by his bride, the former Mrs. Jessie Stutesman, on his first visit to the film capital since their wedding on Nov. 27.

More than Million Persons Visit Museum of Natural History

During 1930 the Field Museum of Natural History, with twelve expeditions searching in various parts of the world for specimens, attracted more than 1,320,000 persons, according to the annual report of the institute made public yesterday. The year was the fourth consecutive one during which visitors exceeded 1,000,000. In addition, 300,000 persons attended special programs given in the James Simpson Memorial theater in the museum building.

Visualization of the development of life from its earliest beginnings until the present day will be a reality at the museum when three large exhibition halls, set aside for that purpose, have been filled with special exhibits.

A large group restoration of six specimens of the Mesohippus, or the tiny three toed horse, which roamed America thirty million years ago, was recently installed, this being the gift of Ernest R. Graham and the work of the sculptor, Frederick A. Blaschke. Many additions have also been made by Mr. Graham to the series of large mural paintings restoring prehistoric scenes.

In the department of geology there was recently received the 745 pound meteorite from Paragould, Ark., which was presented to Stanley Field, president of the museum. A 1,000 pound beryl crystal was presented by William J. Chalmers.

Mrs. E. S. Harkness Gives $175,000 for New Oxford Buildings

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Edward S. Harkness of New York, wife of the founder of the Pilgrim trust, has presented Lady Margaret hall at Oxford university with $175,000 for a new block of buildings for students' rooms.

Mrs. Harkness, who founded a scholarship at Lady Margaret hall in 1928, became acquainted with the hall's needs through American visits of the choir master, Miss Margaret Denke, who has just completed the fourth of her tours of the United States, wherein she gave a series of pianoforte lectures and recitals in order to raise funds for endowment of the hall.

Public Funds May Reprint Rare Old Books

Library Association Talks of Such Project.

There is a plan "to preserve for libraries vital literature essential to American education and culture" through the entrance of the American Library association into the field of book production. That idea was outlined yesterday before that association in the Drake hotel.

It was said publishers are abandoning literary classics, which belong perpetually in every library, or allowing them to lapse into cheap editions unfitted for library use. It was proposed also that the American Library association secure subsidies for the reprinting of valuable scholarly works for use in college, university, and other research libraries. Prices asked for these editions, now rare, are said to be prohibitive.

"The wreckage of our libraries is heartbreaking," declared Edward F. Stevens, librarian of Pratt Institute Free library, Brooklyn, who as chairman of the association's book production committee, presented the proposal. "We build beautiful library buildings and provide them with trained librarians. Then we hand out well known standard authors in contemptible editions.

"The librarians must have books they can perpetuate. The publisher will produce books as long as they pay or else degrade them into cheap editions. This is particularly true of the classics, authors who no longer popular, but whose work is literature.

"We propose that these works be reproduced in editions worthy of libraries, printed on a good quality of paper, in legible type with appropriate margins and substantial sewings. We are fighting for a book of good quality apart from the quality of its literary contents. These books would be also available to any one desiring them at a nominal price to cover the cost of production."

The second plan advocated by the American library committee following its investigation, is the reproduction of the out of print works of scholars. These works, Mr. Stevens explained, may now sometimes be found second hand in a fragile condition, and at exhorbitant prices.

"The Carnegie corporation of New York has extended recently its interest to include American college and university libraries," Mr. Stevens continued. "A list of books for college libraries under this grant is about to be published by the American Library association, and includes many out of print books. Although essential to the list, libraries will be unable to secure them because of their extravagant prices.

"We propose that college and university libraries be guaranteed by some foundation responsible and authentic books by reproduction of these rare out of print books through the library association. An example of the present high prices of these scholarly books is Fisher's 'Medieaval Empire,' offered second hand for $75, if it can be had at all."

Discussing the modern trends in reading, Milton J. Ferguson, librarian of the Brooklyn Public library, called attention to the increasing demand for novelized biography and history and the presentation in a palatable form of scientific writings.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Williams Married 50 Years Today

John B. Williams and his wife, Margaret, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary in their home at 4819 Gladys avenue this evening. Five daughters, a son and eleven grandchildren will be among those present. Mr. and Mrs. Williams are 73 years old. They were married Dec. 31, 1880, in Scotland and came to Chicago forty-six years ago.

STATE LINE BRIDGE AT NEW HARMONY OPENED WITH FETE

New Harmony, Ind., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Historic New Harmony today welcomed thousands of visitors from Southern Illinois and Indiana who came to attend formal opening of a new Wabash river bridge here which links the two states. This was the greatest celebration here since George Rapp, the community's founder, brought his band of followers to settle here in 1814 and since the town of Harmony was sold to Robert Owen in 1824 for $150,000 for his communistic experiment.

Congress granted the bridge company the right to construct the bridge May 1, 1928. The structure was opened for traffic a few days ago.

Besides the formal dedication there was a pageant parade which depicted evolution of methods of travel, with considerable lore of the region. There were traders and trappers intermingled with Indians and ponies. Following the marshal on horseback, was the flag. In line of parade were pioneer and dog on foot, itinerants on horseback, an ox drawn covered wagon, an old Rappite wagon, one of the town's museum pieces, three team mule drawn wagon, Irish chaise spring wagon, old time bicycle with large wheel in front and small rear wheel.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THOMAS W. ROSS, veteran comedian of straightforward American character, is back at the Playhouse, where "Your Uncle Dudley" found him last spring, in a simple-hearted frolic of small city home life called "Jonesy." It deals with the well known tribe of Jones—father, mother, son, daughter, and a few of their neighbors, allies and enemies; and it sends them through one wild day of mixups, worries and embarrassments, all tending to keep the performance in the key of plausible farce.

Mr. Ross, as paterfamilias—a lawyer whose clients are becoming few and far between—is not, however, the occupant of the title rôle. That honor and responsibility falls to the actor of Master Jones, home from college for the summer holidays. He is the Jonesy, about [and by] whom most of the shouting is done. For this is a farcical comedy of adolescence, deriving plainly enough from Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen." Percy Helton is the interpreter of Mr. and Mrs. Jones's only son—a brisk, impetuous lad who frequently behaves like a case of dementia praecox—and Mr. Helton darts and roars through the show with vigor and determination.

Jonesy is in love with a girl who acts with the town's stock company, and of course his folks try to blight the romance. Mama Jones is especially pernicious in her activity along this line; but when she discovers that the brazen hussy of her imagination and insults is the niece of an industrial magnate who might employ Papa Jones as his general counsel, she changes her tune. The fat is fairly on the fire then, however, and the Joneses sizzle in it merrily through three acts.

But why try to tell the story? It's just a lively, unambitious little play, farced up for laughs, and as crazy in its deportment as any well directed farce should be. The Jonesy boy comes out well in the end, you may be sure; his cheek saves the day for the family. Papa gets the job he needed while the son gets his pretty soubrette, who promises to retire from the stage and be a Jones forevermore.

The cast satisfies the demands of the play. Mr. Ross rings true even when the farce is wildest; Mr. Helton is as loud and lively as a college cheer leader; Miss Cunningham is expert in her treatment of the light-headed, garrulous mother, and Miss Battista is pretty enough to justify the romance that boils in the heart of young Jonesy. Last night's audience at the Playhouse seemed to be getting its money's worth of laughter.

Mrs. Fiske will begin an engagement at the Blackstone theater Jan. 12 in "Ladies of the Jury." This première will mark the start of a new régime of management for the Blackstone. Tracy C. Drake, president of the company which owns the theater and is about to assume its direction, promises bookings in line with its traditional policy, and also creative activity in the staging of new plays.

"Mendel, Inc." will end its run at the Adelphi theater Jan. 10. No immediate successor has been announced. . . . Vilma Banky and Rod La Roque, screen stars in an adventure on the stage, are listed among the impending attractions at the Erlanger theater. They have a comedy called "Cherries Are Ripe."

"Tomorrow and Tomorrow" is the new title of Philip Barry's latest play, first announced as "Hail and Farewell." It will have a première at Henry Miller's theater, New York, Jan. 13.

Charles Hackett Gets Ovation at Civic Opera

'Stops Show' as Hundreds Rise to Applaud.

BY HAZEL MOORE.

Charles Hackett "stole the show" at the Civic opera performance of Mozart's "Don Giovanni" last night. After his first aria he received more than six curtain calls, and after the second, the famous "Il Mio Tesoro," a whirlwind of applause followed, hundreds of persons in the audience rising to their feet to acclaim him. After the curtain fell he was recalled more than ten times. Another who scored a hit was Vanni-Marcoux.

The former virtues of the deft compression of the opera's ten scenes into two acts and the fine sense of continuity made possible by the stable proscenium turrets and the quickly changed back sets remained as of yore.

Vanni-Marcoux still is the famous Don to stir the heart of any maid. Incidentally, his splendid rhythmic sense and stage surety stood him in good stead in at least one ticklish point last night. His is a splendid performance, beautifully foiled by the sly roguery of Lazzari's Leporello, whose boss foolery made a distinct hit.

Frida Leider was again an excellent Donna Anna, to whom falls some of the most difficult singing of an opera replete with difficulty. Hilda Burke, as the Donna Elvira, showed a decided advance in the art of Mozart singing over last year, and acted charmingly.

Hackett appeared as Don Ottavio. Chase Baromeo, dignified and short lived, completed the list of the known quantities of the performance.

New to the production were the conductor, Egon Pollak, who wielded a sprightly baton, giving a musical reading of the score that had peace and brightness to commend it and a real Mozartian feeling; and the stage director, Dr. Otto Erhardt, who chose to stress the comedy elements of the play to the obvious delight of the audience at large and the question of the purists. His elision of the chorus at the end of the first act disturbed our custom, and we are creatures of custom.

Two other newcomers were Maria Rajdl as Zerlina and Salvatore Baccaloni as Masetto. Miss Rajdl made a delightful Zerlina. Hers is a neat performance. Both her knowledge of how Mozart should be sung and her personal charm make her a good choice for this winsome rôle. Mr. Baccaloni was both fat and funny as Masetto with rather an extra dose of buffoonery, but still very funny and full voiced.

Florence Austral, soprano of ample voice and dimensions, assisted by John Amadio, who ranks as great among the flautists, gave the program for the Kinsolving Musical at the Blackstone hotel yesterday morning.

Miss Austral's beautiful voice was unfortunately not in its best condition. A recent tonsil operation undoubtedly explains the more than occasional sagging of pitch, never before noted in this artist, but it does not explain her temerity in essaying the trying "cry" of Bruenhilde with a throat not fully conditioned.

Certain of the less exacting numbers of her program were excellently done. The dramatic Ballad [after Pushkin's "Gypsies"] was a fine example of good English and good singing. So was the "Hymne au Soleil," by Georges and the "Alleluia," by O'Connor Morris.

Mr. Amadio and his flute, or rather flutes, for he changed occasionally, need no apologies for the morning hour, or throats. He does amazing things with the flute and it sounds absurdly easy, but we knew it isn't. Frank Bridge's "Moto Perpetuo" is a case in point, not to be tried lightmindedly by any flautist excepting Mr. Amadio at eleven o'clock in the morning.

New Fashions for Greeting New Year, '31

BY THALIA ——.

WELCOMING 1931 when it makes its theoretical appearance at midnight tonight will not be the indiscriminate affair of former years with the populace spilling out into the streets in glorious conviviality.

Most Chicagoans are convening in comparatively small parties, the largest groups being the Dutch treat parties at hotels and clubs. The modern feeling about New York's eve as expressed by one young matron is "why try to cram everything into one evening? It's much too much effort, and too frightfully expensive."

The clubs and downtown hotels all have lots of reservations, and in almost all the suburbs, there are country club parties at which old and young in the community will go in groups of a dozen or so. Everybody is planning to have a good time, but in a more restrained way than was customary a few years ago.

Insull's' Party, Ashcraft Debut, and the Others.

In town, the New Year's eve parties are the one Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull are to give, and the debut ball Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Ashcraft are giving at the Blackstone for their daughter, Ann, with breakfast to be served at 4 o'clock in the morning, long after the New Year has been properly greeted. Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, his son-in-law, and daughter, the Clifford Templetons, and Mansfield Schmidts are having an old fashioned New Year's eve open house, and Consul General and Mrs. Berthold Singer are to have an old time watch party at the Belden-Stratford.

The largest out of town jubilee at which Chicagoans will be present will be the Hanford MacNiders' party in Ottawa. Among others who will be there are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Seaverns, the Junior Ameses, Peter Conger, Ferren MacMahon, and the Henry Hoopers, who left on the Canadian Pacific last night; the W. Scott Linns, who are going from New York where they have been with Mrs. Linn's mother, and the Columbus Healys from Buffalo where they have been Christmasing.

Miss Emily Otis, daughter of the Joseph E. Otises, is taking 15 of her friends on her annual New Year's winter party at the Otises' Birchwood farm at Harbor Springs in northern Michigan, and Fred and Vera Stock Wolfe are having a winter house party of about 5 or 6 couples besides themselves at Ephraim, Wis., where the Stocks go in the summer.

Kellogg Fairbanks Recall Invitations to Luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank have recalled the invitations for the New Year's day luncheon they were to give because of the death of Mr. John H. Winterbotham.

The fashionable young Lake Foresters will, most of them, be at the Onwentsia celebration to welcome in the New Year. The Farwell Winstons have arranged for a party of 60; the John H. McIlvaines are to have 30 with them; the Luther S. Hammonds, jr., 20, and the Henry N. Rowleys, 20 also.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander R. Carqueville are to give a costume supper dance at their residence to be attended by a hundred of their Highland Park neighbors and Chicago friends. This is for Mrs. George M. Stevens and Jeffery Carqueville. There is a young people's party at Exmoor. Coming on down the north shore many of the Winnetka grownups and near grownups will go to the Indian Hill party, and at the Vista del Lago there are reservations for several Dutch treat parties of Winnetka, Wilmette and Evanston people. There are parties at the Evanston Country club and at the new and lovely Shawnee Country club in Wilmette.

Still Other Festivities, Largely at Country Clubs.

There is to be a supper-dance at the Riverside Country club, and before that some of the Riverside people have been invited to stop in at the Henry Faurot residence to greet the William Faurots, who are just arriving today from their honeymoon in Europe. In Hinsdale, there is a dinner-dance at the Hinsdale club, and several people are having private parties and going on to join the club party later in the evening. The John Holcombs are having 32 for dinner.

There are hundreds of reservations for the South Shore Country club, which is always exceptionally gala and festive for New Year's eve, and the John Logans are having one of the numerous small parties at home, theirs being for the Bartlett Cormacks, who are here from Hollywood for the holiday.

At the Tavern, Lowell Chapin, Cyrus McCormick jr., Frederick Corley, Aude Rebori, Maj. Gen. Milton Foreman, and the H. J. Cunninghams are having parties, and Preston Boyden and Ted Shaw are entertaining jointly. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims, the Lloyd Maxwells, the Eugene Clarks, the Alexander Moores, the Walter Willetts, Charles Fernald, and Maj. Robert A. Widdicombe are among those having parties at the Opera club.

New Year's eve gayety for the subdebs and the prep school boys will be provided at the Junior assembly at the Casino, and there will be still more parties at the Saddle and Cycle club, and at the Cliff-Dwellers.

Mr. and Mrs. Harve Gordon Badgerow of Winnetka announce the engagement of their daughter, Louise Knott Badgerow, to Scott Johnathan Dow Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Johnathan Dow of Hinsdale. Miss Badgerow attended school at Dobbs Ferry, and Mlle. Le Boucher's in Neuilly, France, and made her debut on New Year's day in 1929. She has appeared in several of the Junior league children's plays. Mr. Dow attended prep school at Exeter, and was graduated from Yale in 1929. He was a member of Delta Psi, St. Anthony hall, and the Aurelian Honor society. No wedding date has been decided upon.

Notes . . . . Mrs. Chauncey Borland is one of those who are having guests at the Vassar house tea dance this afternoon. . . . Mrs. William J. Chalmers and a group of other prominent women are interested in a private view of the paintings of Charles Sneed Williams at Ackerman's galleries a week from tomorrow. . . . Alan C. Dixon, Orville Taylor, and Paul Walker gave a stag party on Saturday afternoon, an in-between Christmas and New Year's affair.

Two Angels Rescued from Dirt Clouds in Westminster Abbey

[Copyright: 1930; By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Two remarkable pieces of thirteenth century work were discovered during a cleaning of the inside roof at Westminster abbey. Two marble figures of angels, one in each corner of the south transept window, and hitherto hidden beneath an inch of London's grime, now appear in all their pristine beauty, exquisitely enameled in color, even to rosy complexions.

The north transept window also has marble figures covered with the dirt of centuries, and it is thought that when these are cleaned similar discoveries may be made. Other specimens of ancient art recovered by abbey workers recently include a glowing bronze work of the tomb of Henry VII. and his queen, a series of wall paintings in the chapter house. The processes employed are similar to those used in cleaning old masters.

"How I cured my cold in a hurry"

"I drank lots of water all day long to wash the poisons out of my system. I put a little Mentholatum in each nostril to clear my head. At night I rubbed my chest with Mentholatum and covered it with a flannel cloth. Mentholatum does not stain and the extra warmth of the flannel increases its action.

"As the pleasant vapor rose, I inhaled it with every breath. The sore surfaces in my nose and throat were cooled and soothed and my breathing became much easier. I woke up this morning feeling fine."

Thousands are using the Mentholatum treatment. It is a faster, surer way to get rid of colds. TRY IT YOURSELF. Order now—at your favorite drug store. 30c for handy tube or familiar jar. (60c for large size jar.) Free sample and booklet "How to Get Rid of Colds" are yours for the asking. Just send your name and address. The Mentholatum Co., Wichita, Kansas.

Art Institute Uses Movies as Help in Its Art Teaching

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

ONE of the most interesting and useful departments of the Chicago Art institute is the department of museum instruction. The winter schedule of work opens in this department next Monday to continue to March 28.

Monday is the fullest single day in the week, for there are the sketch class conducted by Anita Burnham from 10 to 12 in the morning; talks illustrated with moving pictures, demonstrating the techniques of various arts, by Miss Parker and Miss Upton, at 11 o'clock; practical talks on interior decorating by Miss Clark at 2:30 o'clock, in which she will discuss "what you can do with what you have"; and, in the evening at 6:30, Miss Parker and Miss Upton will repeat the morning talks on the various crafts.

A survey of the history of art, which starts with the Gothic and continues through the months to end in June with the art of the Renaissance, will be given Tuesdays from 6:30 to 8 o'clock in the evening by Miss Parker and Miss Mackenzie. Thursday at 11 o'clock the architecture, painting and sculpture which enriches Italy will be presented by Miss Parker and Miss Mackenzie so as to form a background for travel in Italy. For those who have been abroad these lectures will afford a pleasant retrospect.

The history of art as a means to esthetic enjoyment and a course which engages the architecture and sculpture of modern France before turning to a survey of the architecture, sculpture and painting in the United States from colonial times to today, will be presented by Miss Parker and Miss Mackenzie on Friday mornings at 11 o'clock. Saturday is reserved for the children and Miss Mackenzie has planned a delightful series of moving picture films showing just how the various works of art are made. The sculptor, the potter, the etcher, each craftsman in turn, is shown at work. This Saturday morning series starts Jan. 3.

Society at the Opera

THOUGH many of the regular Tuesday night subscribers were absent, the boxes and main floor of the Civic Opera house were well filled last night for the season's first performance of "Don Giovanni." The audience was enthusiastic and seemed to relish highly the spectacle of Don Juan, sung by Vanni-Marcoux.

One of the most decorative boxes in the lower tier was that of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn, who were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Burnham and Mr. and Mrs. Kent Clow. Mrs. Linn wore a gold cloth gown with a Vionnet neckline, a double strand of large pearls, and diamond loop earrings. Play Filed as Brief.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—A brief without a single whereas, aforesaid or legal term was filed today in the Supreme court. It was the complete script of "Abie's Irish Rose," Ann Nichols' play which broke long run records for Broadway.

The comedy was filed as an appendix to Miss Nichols' suit asking damages from the Universal Pictures corporation and Carl Laemmle, movie producer, for alleged violation of copyright in producing "The Cohens and Kellys."

Holiday Season Is a Good Time for Forgiveness

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Here is a letter which I put aside last summer. This seems a fitting season of the year in which to use it.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I have just read your article in the paper on parents' loyalty to their children and it is especially interesting to me, as I am a victim of unloyalty.

"I am of Jewish parentage and three years ago was married to a Danish boy with whom I went to school for years. Although I live only a stone's throw from my parents, I have not seen them since I was married, they claiming that I brought disgrace on their heads by marrying out of my religion.

"Three months ago I gave birth to a darling little girl, but was very near death, and although my mother heard of it she did not come to see me and I am still waiting for her, as I was assured by many that if I had a baby she would forgive me.

"My husband is a fireman, which necessitates my being alone very often. With parents and brothers and sisters only a few blocks away I sit here all alone because they do not know the meaning of the word loyalty!

"Your articles are always interesting, Mrs. Bevans, but this one has hit the mark in this case. It makes me feel I am more sinned against than sinning.

"What do you think of parents that are acting as mine are? I am beginning to think they do not deserve the tears I am wasting on them. . . ."

Regardless of creed, Christmas is a season that is celebrated by every one these days. It means good will to all, for those of every faith.

If the many parents in this world who have cast off their children, who are grieving themselves by building up a barrier of anger and silence against a son or daughter, would only soften and bury the past—if they would only begin the year anew, how many happy grown children there would be in this old world, and how many tiny grandsons and granddaughters would learn to know the grandparents who live "just around the corner"—or who should live there in spirit.

Helpful Wife Called Key to Pastor's Future

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The success or failure of the present day clergyman is at least half due to his wife—if he has one.

That's what a conference of Western Theological seminary students—nearly all of whom are unmarried as yet—decided. The conference of the Evanston students was led by Prof. Daniel A. McGregor of the seminary.

But the problem of picking wives appeared particularly difficult to the students. All were agreed that many a pastor's work was ruined by the poor judgment used in selecting a life partner. The students' conclusions laid great stress on the care that should be used in this regard, especially by ministers of religion.

A pastor's wife, the students declared, must give up any idea of a career separate from that of her husband. She must subordinate her own interests and efforts to her husband's in the old fashioned way. Pastors' wives, they asserted, should not be ensnared by today's tendency for wives to demand independence in avocations. It is next to impossible, the conference contended, for the wife of a pastor to continue in any profession and at the same time be hostess and keeper of a rectory.

It also was decided that pastors' wives, if possible should encourage others to lead in parish activities, but not assume direct leadership themselves. The students declared that if the rectors' wives should do too much leading, directly, they would discourage leadership that should be developed out from the members of the congregations. This, they concluded, is very detrimental to the development of strong parish organizations.

Dr McGregor said the students' discussions sought answers to many acute questions that face pastors. He said the main reason the churches frequently fail to make progress in communities is because the pastor neither knows his place in the community nor how he should seek to fill it. Some other questions the students sought to answer were: Relation of religious and emotional experience; personal immorality; relationship of the church to economic problems and unemployment; marriage and divorce; relationship of ministers of various faiths and characteristic faults of clergymen.

Angelic Pose May Be Pretty, But It's Hardly Sociable

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Wonder if it is true that some girls adopt a too angelic pose to differentiate them from the type that is popularly supposed to be swift and gay, and without a moral working code? Perhaps with so much stress laid on the loose and free manners of the younger crowd, the other group wants to draw the line sharply so that there'll be no mistake about their characters.

Something of the sort must be stirring in the minds of girls who are attractive, young and eligible for escorts, but who fail to attract them. They buckle on a defense armor, as it were, with the result that the boys are kind of "skeered" of them. Because the defense armor does not get them anywhere, they become embittered and often are heard attacking the theory of virtue having a reward.

The theme is so common in my mail that you cannot dismiss it as only an occasional mental gesture. It's a frequent state of young girl mind, and a regrettable one. The belligerency it inspires is not conductive to popularity. Then, the superlative air of "goodness" is pretty trying.

We have brought the subject up before in this column. Now, as then, let it be understood that we are for more and higher ideals. We're for them because they bring greater happiness to girls than the cheap and vulgar substitutes practised by some of the not-yet-world-ripened. Appreciation of attractive woman qualities varies little with men, no matter what the times may seem to sanction. But as one nice girl correspondent says: "I think these good girls who insist on letting every one know that they are angels could have good times if they would only act natural and be sociable. Their constant defense of their goodness isn't necessary. Let it be taken for granted, as it should be.

"If they run into a rotter, it's time enough to wave their flags, but why take that stand with boys who will appreciate you for all you are if you're only humanly sociable? I know. I have a swell time and I don't have to keep anything from my mother."

Food Talk.

Farm gardeners believe there is real merit in the old theory that frost must touch the parsnip before it reaches full perfection. They think freezing makes parsnips sweeter. Maybe they are right, but I doubt that there is much of a change brought about in the sugar content. I've eaten parsnips that have been frozen and those that haven't and I can't see any difference.

Parsnips are one of the sweetest vegetables and a considerable part of their food value is in the form of sugar. And let me emphasize that sugar in the parsnip is the source of most of the trouble in cooking. Care should be taken to conserve the sugar. If it is allowed to dissolve in the cooking water and this water is thrown away much of the good flavor is lost. The best way to conserve the sugar is to steam the parsnips. If the vegetable must be boiled it should be cooked in a minimum amount of water and at the end of the boiling period the water should be evaporated rather than being poured off.

In addition to the sweet flavor there are other flavoring and aromatic substances present in parsnips that make them pleasing to many people, but it is a flavor and aroma which some never learn to enjoy. Fortunately the most of us can learn to like parsnips and they are worth eating. They contain 20 per cent of cellulose, which is essential in supplying bulk to the diet. Seven pieces of parsnip 3½ inches long, 1½ inches wide, and 1-3 inch thick, furnish a total of 100 calories, of which 10 are protein, 7 fat, and 83 carbohydrates.

If the usual baked or glazed parsnips haven't appealed to you here are some recipes that will increase your interest in this vegetable.

PARSNIPS AND MUSHROOM CROQUETTES.

1 cup mashed white potato

Combine the ingredients in the order given, chill, shape, and fry as any other croquette. Serve with tomato, egg or celery sauce or with creamed eggs, oysters or chicken.

PARSNIPS ESCALLOPED WITH TOMATOES.

Combine 3 cups diced cooked parsnips with 1¾ cups tomato sauce. Cover with a half cup fine dry bread crumbs mixed with a quarter cup grated cheese, and dot with butter. Brown in a quick oven [375 degrees Fahrenheit].

PARSNIPS ROASTED WITH MEAT.

Peel or scrape and cut the parsnips lengthwise and crosswise if large. Place in a pan with roasting meat; baste with gravy, turning them once or twice to brown well. Allow 45 minutes for young parsnips, an hour or a little longer for older ones. Old parsnips should be parboiled 15 minutes before roasting.

MINT SPONGE.

1½ cups boiling water.
Juice of 1 lemon.
Few grains salt.

Chop mint, add orange rind and pour the boiling water over. Cover and stand in warm place 30 minutes. Strain. Soak the gelatin in ¼ cup cold water and allow to stand 5 minutes. Bring mint-orange liquid to boiling point and add the gelatin, fruit juices, and sugar. Chill until it begins to congeal. Whip until frothy, add salt, and beat in egg whites, whipped light. Chill until it holds its shape. Serve with whipped cream or soft custard. Yield: Six servings. One serving: Total, 101 calories; protein, 12 calories; fat, 0 calories; carbohydrates, 89 calories.

Bolero Lends Charm to Youthful Frock.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Boleros absolutely refuse to do a disappearing act from smart circles, for which many women should be truly thankful, because they turn many a figure saving trick for the silhouette. But the new boleros are quite different from th old ones. They are attached in new ways or they follow new lines to chic and so they do not bore us by that familiarity which breeds sartorial contempt. And how!

Some of the cutest new boleros slip on over the head, so that if they weren't so extremely abbreviated I'd call them jumpers.

An unusual bolero lends a great deal of its charm to the youthful, new frock from Irene Dana, sketched above. The dress, or suit, itself, is in Scotmaya, that grand material invented by Brion, that is wool, with a rough, matte surface, but is soft and extremely transparent. It is in black. The original overskirt effect is achieved by two side panels that meet under an oval of the underskirt, front and back, and fall in a cascade that makes you look as slim as a young willow tree.

The slender slipon bolero of the transparent wool is worn over a blouse of bright red crêpe de chine printed in a small pattern in black and white. Yes, prints are coming back for spring! The bolero is cut in irregular scallops so as to show as much of the silk as possible.

The blouse also slips over the head. It is fitted into the figure by a soft draped and tied arrangement in front and it is edged with a tiny plaited ruffle of itself. A triangular scarf to match has a similar ruffle along the edge. It's worn cowboy fashion, as you see, and combines chic with a dash of local color.

JUNIOR GIRLS' FROCK.

Woolen frocks are as smart for girls as for the older women this season, and this dress was made of a soft woolen having a hunter's green ground, plaided in a darker shade. The collar and cuffs are detachable and are made of white cotton pique—so they can be laundered. The pert bow is of grosgrain ribbon, and the belt is of dark green patent leather.

There is a two piece circular skirt. This is seamed and joined to the two piece bodice, made to close at the side and shoulder.

The pattern, 2807, comes in sizes 6, 8, 10, and 12 years. Size 8 requires 1¼ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 32 inch contrasting and 1 yard of ribbon

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

PINEX for Coughs

It's a Wise Idea to Keep Yourself Looking Your Best

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Some one suggests that the popularity of the chewing gum stands and the weight and fortune machines may be attributed to the mirrors placed at just the right height for a rapid survey.

The statement may be slightly exaggerated because women are interested in their weight, more in their fortune, and some of them buy chewing gum and chew it.

But the idea does suggest the advisability of being able to face any of these machines any day with a face that says: "You're looking first rate today, girl!"

It's a terrible feeling to have the weight ticket pop out with bad news—five or more pounds of it—and to have the face look as if it could stand a couple of good home facials. That's the moment when a lady feels that her cause is lost.

It is more likely to happen in the neighborhood centers than on the elevated and substations. When you are on the latter you are usually going somewhere, and it is a dull one indeed who is not prepared for the chance meeting of friend or enemy and his or her appraising eye. The neighborhood shopping tours are frequently done in an "as is" facial and dress condition.

While it is not to be expected that one is going to put on her best bib and tucker to run around the corner and order Johnny's spinach or his castor oil, still the job of running around the corner getting in the daily supply is made less arduous if one is in that cheerful frame of mind that only knowing you are looking pretty good imparts.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The other day my 4 year old cousin's mother heard him sighing. She of course asked him what the trouble was.

"O, nothing," he replied. "I'm just unbreathing." N. J. H.

"O, you are?" questioned Robert. "Well, you fibbed then, for I didn't get my sled that you promised me last year." M. H.

THREE BIG TEN BASKETBALL TEAMS DEFEATED

N. Y. RING BOARD ORDERS MAX TO FIGHT SHARKEY

Must Decide in Week or Lose Title.

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The blast that may blow Max Schmeling right out from under the heavyweight championship crown was touched off today in the offices of the New York state athletic commission.

Like a spark drifting into a curtain of black damp in some coal mine, Joe Jacobs, spokesman for the German boxer, strolled into the den of the solons and the charged atmosphere flashed lightning. Jacobs wandered out dizzily a few minutes later, faced with the problem of accepting within seven days the ultimatum of the commission that Schmeling fight Jack Sharkey here in June or find himself bereft of recognition in this state as the heavyweight king.

Must Keep Promise, Farley Says.

James A. Farley, chairman of the commission, told Jacobs that Schmeling must keep the promise he made the commission shortly after he won recognition as the titleholder by the simple process of claiming foul in his match with Sharkey here last June. That promise for an immediate return bout with the Boston sailor, was not kept and later was amended to read "next June."

The stand of the commission, opposed by promoters who would have to stage the match without popular support, and by critics who believe that Young Stribling deserves consideration as the challenger, may wipe out definitely all plans for an elimination tournament with the winner fighting Schmeling in the spring.

Carey's Proposal Turned Down.

Bill Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, sought approval for a bout between Stribling and Sharkey for Miami, Fla., this winter, but this was frowned down.

The developments of the day increased the probability that Sharkey will not get another title chance at all. Schmeling has a $500,000 offer for a championship defense against Stribling in Chicago next June and his refusal to kneel to the dictates of the local commission probably would be accomplished by acceptance of the bid from the midwest. Stribling already has agreed to terms for the Chicago match.

Charity Decided Permission.

"We've been very kind to Schmeling," Farley said, "although he was under suspension here last June we permitted him to fight Sharkey for the championship because the bout was for charity. Otherwise he never would have been permitted in the ring until he had fulfilled other contracts, particularly the one to box Phil Scott and had straightened out his managerial troubles with Arthur Buelow.

"At Schmeling's request we removed the clause calling for payment on a round basis in case of a foul from the contracts made for that match. We promised that the winner would be recognized by us as the heavyweight champion and even though the bout ended in a foul we were good sports and kept our promise.

"Not until after we recognized him as champion did we sugges' to Schmeling that his bout with Sharkey was an unfinished contest, and unsatisfactory to every one concerned. We asked him to meet Sharkey again and settle the question once and for all. He agreed to do it within 30 days, then contracted an injured hand, promised to meet Sharkey in September, and went home to Germany. We are holding him now to that promise."

Shires, Once Voluble, Is Now "Silent Arthur"

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Arthur "the Great" Shires, former Washington first baseman with double action vocal cords, who almost made good in the fight racket and now is trying his luck in the talkies, wants to be called "Silent Arthur."

Arthur the Great talked his way into jail yesterday and spent twelve hours trying to talk his way out. When released on $520 bond last night pending trial on charges of drunkenness and of carrying weapons, a pair of brass knuckles, he said, "No more promiscuous talking for me. I knew I talked a lot, but never thought I'd talk myself into this. From now on call me 'Silent Arthur.'"

The district attorney refused to issue a felony complaint against "Whataman," contending he was not an accomplished criminal and therefore did not come under the state law making a felony of carrying concealed weapons. The charge was reduced to misdemeanor.

After he had made his speech in favor of silence, Shires undertook to explain the brass knuckles.

"I just carried them for the fun of it," he said. "You know I don't need them. When I hit them with my bare fist they go out cold."

GETTING SET FOR TRIBUNE MEET

Like Mystery Stories? Well, Here's One About Big Fight

BY ARCH WARD.

Not that it makes any particular difference, but it looks more and more as if Chicago will be the scene of the next heavyweight championship prize fight.

The New York commission yesterday helped things along by demanding that Max Schmeling, the champion, accept a match with Jack Sharkey within seven days or forfeit his title. We have the word of Nate Lewis, matchmaker at Chicago Stadium, and Leonard Sacks, public relations man for Jack Dempsey, that Schmeling will ignore the ultimatum.

The Stadium has offered Schmeling $500,000 to pass up New York for a bout with Young Stribling at Soldiers' field next June. That may influence the champion's attitude toward the New York ring board. In fact, Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, told Lewis over the phone last night that it would.

Then, too, there is evidence that Dempsey is interested in promoting a title fight in Chicago. He was in town last week looking things over. He despatched Sacks to Chicago from New York yesterday. There may be nothing to all this maneuvering, and again maybe there is.

* *

If you keep your ear close to the ground you will hear rumblings of a Schmeling-Dempsey bout. But who would promote it? Schmeling as champion naturally would demand the titleholder's end of the gate. Dempsey, the man who would lure the multitudes, rightfully would insist on the big dough. So it seems the only interest Dempsey can have in a title fight is the promotional end.

The pieces leading up to big boxfights are our favorite form of fiction. They are good mystery stories.

We became purple with excitement when we read last summer that Mique Malloy sneaked into New York and snatched a bout between Sharkey and Carnera away from Madison Square Garden. It made no difference that Mique never had explained where the money to finance the match was coming from. We could hardly wait for Primo, the vagabond shover, to step out there at Soldiers' field and belt Sharkey for a row of peace treaties.

We were surprised and chagrined when we heard that it was all a mistake, and that Sharkey was going to fight in New York instead of Chicago.

"The next time we fall for one of those things we hope somebody drops a skyscraper on our bean," we muttered to ourselves.

But here we are back for more, with high hopes, tingling ambitions, and a sucker's optimism that this time it is going to be different.

By the way, what has become of Malloy?

SPEED ON GRIDIRON.

George Halas, the big grid and cage man, wants to know where we get the idea that Joe Savoldi hasn't been so hot as a pro football player.

"He's one of the best prospects that has come into the game in years," Halas said yesterday.

"Next year Savoldi will play half back instead of full back and watch him go," Halas advises. "He's the fastest man on the club. We used to think Red Grange was speedy. Then Bill Senn came along and beat him in a 50 yard race. Garland Grange regained the family sprint honors by outlegging Senn. And Savoldi can beat Garland."

A STEP FORWARD.

Paterson, N. J., has withdrawn from the American Basketball league because of lack of patronage. It might be a good thing for pro basketball out this way if some of the other small eastern cities would drop out. There is little interest when Chicago plays Paterson or Rochester.

A more compact organization, with teams in Chicago, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Toledo, St. Louis, Detroit, and other cities which have some natural rivalry, would fare better financially.

Stribling Says Chicago to Get Schmeling Bout

Macon, Ga., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Macon Telegraph says Pa Stribling tonight announced W. L. [Young] Stribling will fight Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion, in Chicago next June "if nothing goes wrong in the meantime."

He would not give the name of the New York party, but declared he was "a man of authority."

ENTRANTS IN SKI TOURNEY REACH DEADLINE TODAY

This is the last day entries will be received for THE TRIBUNE'S ski tournament Sunday at Riis park. All letters postmarked today will be accepted even if they are not delivered until tomorrow.

The list of contestants will be prepared tomorrow and numbers assigned. More than two-thirds of the boys will jump in the senior division, although there is a sizable entry in the junior division for boys under 14 years of age. Medals will be awarded for four places in each division.

Commissioners Alter Slide.

Preparations are completed for the meet, although the park and slide will not be decorated until Saturday afternoon. Through the cooperation of Joseph Gubbins, president of the northwest park district, and his fellow commissioners, the slide has been altered to make it a more thorough test of ski jumping. A corps of workmen has been engaged this week for these preparations.

Many of the contestants, those who have not visited the Riis park slide, have wondered if there is sufficient snow for the tournament. Commissioner Frank Kalteux reported last night that the tournament will be held even if there is no snowfall before Sunday. Snow has been hauled from the country side and stored so that unless the temperature rises far above freezing there will be no difficulty in holding the meet.

Adapted for Amateurs.

It is not anticipated, of course, that there will be any injuries during Sunday's ski jumping. The slide is adapted for amateurs, although it is high enough to thrill not only the contestants but the spectators as well. However, Dr. Lewis K. Eastman and a group of physicians, who always have assisted THE TRIBUNE Athletic association in its sports promotionals, will attend. Neither the northwest park district nor THE TRIBUNE will be responsible for injuries.

The entry of Robert Carlstone, who will compete in the junior division, was received yesterday. He will represent the Forest Preserve Ski club. Robert won second place in the tournament conducted last year by the northwest park district.

TILDEN'S TURNING PRO TO BEREAVE SPORTS WRITERS

His Amateurism Supplied Many a Story.

Bill Turns Pro

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—William T. Tilden II., veteran Davis cup star, today announced his retirement from amateur tennis competition to enter the movies.

The tall Philadelphian, for years a storm center in the tennis world, announced his retirement in a letter to Holcomb Ward, chairman of the amateur rules committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

Tilden said he had signed a contract to appear in short films on tennis subjects, since the films will be devoted to tennis, Tilden automatically is disqualified from competing under the rules governing amateurs.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 30.—William T. Tilden II. has turned square at last and from now on will commercialize the remnant of his prestige and talent in tennis, not only in the moving-talking pictures but also as a member of a barnstorming troupe of tennis stars under the management of Jack Curley.

Mr. Curley is the round, moist, restless adventurer who from a beginning as a waiter in a beer cellar in St. Louis in his early days in this country became a promoter of prizefights and wrestling bouts and presently settled down to a life of suburban domesticity on Long Island, with only a small herd of beefy Bulgarians, Greeks and Turks in his stables to remind him of his more active career.

Crowd of 20,000 Surprises.

Last night he presented a championship bout in Madison Square Garden between Jim Londos and Ference Holuban, and to his own astonishment and that of the Garden corporation, drew 20,000 customers who rioted in the corridors.

Now Mr. Curley says he has made a deal with Mr. Tilden and expects to enlist Vincent Richards, Karel Kozeluh, Jean Borotra, and Henri Cochet and possibly Suzanne Lenglen for a tour of the United States and foreign parts.

Mr. Tilden's amateurism has been a matter of controversy for several years and in the last few seasons he has been an amateur only in the finest technical interpretation of the term, but all that is past now. He has decided, like Bobby Jones in golf, to turn in his amateur card and make no further claim to classification as one who derives no profit from sport. This decision was communicated to Holcomb Ward of the United States Lawn Tennis association in a letter announcing his betrothal to the moving picture business.

Movies Not New to Bill.

Of course, the moving picture business is no new field for Mr. Tilden, but hitherto he always insisted that he was an actor in the movies and a tennis athlete only on the tennis courts, contending that his artistic qualifications alone were responsible for his employment in the drama. In literature, also, Mr. Tilden spurned insinuations that his revenues were due in any degree to his distinction as an amateur athlete and, altogether, his contributions to the commercial success of the Lawn Tennis

In the WAKE of the NEWS

1930 EXIT, 1931 SALUTAMUS.

FRIEND ARCH: Well, Arch, old 1930 passes out tonight and I wish you the same after you put the sports pages to press—you know what I mean. If ever there was a year whose sorrows one would like to drown, wasn't this one it?

You see, we didn't win any National league pennant and the Sox had farther to go for a comeback than we anticipated, and the big heavyweight fights ended in fouls, and our Davis cup team was handsomely licked, and our personal golf games didn't improve even if Bobby Jones did win four championships, and the ponies were more perverse than usual in finding the winning post, and even football in these parts, except for Notre Dame and Northwestern, didn't carry the usual kick.

But why go on about that, Arch, because you know it anyway, and besides it will pass out tonight. A lot of folks who feel the same way as I do about it will "pass out" too, but not in the same way.

So if it's all over, what about 1931? Well, I haven't made any resolutions I really expect to keep except not to have any trouble with you about expense accounts, and that will be easy if you don't get fussy about strange items which seem hard to understand but really are not.

Now, 1931, Arch, ought to be better than 1930. I don't know whether the Cubs will win the pennant. Neither does Bill Veeck or he would tell me, because we once roomed together when we both were baseball reporters. But, anyway, Rog and Hack and Gabby and the old bunch will be out there again and we'll see some good playing. Donie Bush, I think, will do better with the Sox, especially if he can get some more material or develop some. I like that chap.

Pugilism cannot get much worse. Ergo, it should be better. There are Schmeling, Stribling, Sharkey, and Carnera in the heavyweight field, and there should be a good bout somewhere along the line between members of that quartet. Never mind how high you rate any of them; the public wants a champion determined, or, rather, want Schmeling to determine his right to the title he now holds. Chicago may secure at least one of the bouts.

Tennis, with George Lott retiring to enter the brokerage business, if there is any brokerage business, promises nothing internationally. Except for the experience of competition, there is not much use of even challenging for the Davis cup.

Now for the things that concern us both more personally. I do not see how our golf can do anything other than improve. You know my club handicap is 30. That is the club limit. So certainly this estimate of my skill will not get worse. Then there's the new ball. They say it is easier to hit. That's fine, but what I need is a ball one will have to hit less often to travel 6,500 yards. Again, they say the new ball putts more easily. If I could get my putting down to 36 for 18 holes instead of 42, that would reduce my score from about 120 to 114. And again I wish you the same.

Of course, there's always the horses. I figure this will be an unusually good year for me. You know I've been interested for 32 years, and the law of averages surely ought to work in my favor some time. Probably this is the year. Let's you and I and French go out on the opening day here [with return railroad tickets, of course] and see if I am not right.

Then football in the fall. There were so many good sophomores in the Big Ten this past season, I look for a big year in our territory. Of course, they haven't taken away that point after touchdown yet, but they're discussing it more and more. It's like the Volstead act—some time there'll be a change, but I don't know when. Anyway, 1931 looks better than 1930 turned out to be. Happy New Year! See you tomorrow.

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

P. S.—Left my December expense account on your desk.

SHAMROCKS' ICE SEXTET DEFEATS BUFFALO, 3 TO 2

Chicago Goalie Fined $10 for Talking Back.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Chicago Shamrocks scored a 3 to 2 victory over the Buffalo sextet, the second victory in its present series, in a rough American league hockey game here tonight.

Although Buffalo scored the first goal after little more than two minutes of play, the Shamrocks came back to score three goals in the first period.

Penalties marred play in the second period and no scoring was done, although Buffalo had numerous shots on goal. Shortly before the close of the game Constant scored his second unassisted goal for Buffalo. Timmins, Chicago goal tender, was fined $10 for talking back to the referee.

BLACKHAWKS WORRY

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago Blackhawks have had just about enough of this rising up of the lowly and are taking no chances on miserable statistics tagged on any of their hockey opponents.

They have been practicing for the New Year's game against the tail end Philadelphia Quakers with about the same intensity that would characterize preparation for Stanley cup matches, and well they may continue, in the light of sad incidents of the recent past.

When the Hawks went against the Quakers for the first time, in Philadelphia a week ago, it looked like a nice respite from arduous play. But the Quakers gave them the roughest game of the year and the Hawks had to use a goal kicked in by a Quaker to accomplish victory.

The Worm Turneth.

After this rather startling experience the battle scarred Hawks returned home to face the Toronto Maple Leafs last Sunday night on Stadium ice. The Maple Leafs long had been respected foes, but on Christmas night they had taken an amazing 10 to 1 licking from the Detroit Falcons, losing their prestige for the nonce. But they gained it all back when they gave the Hawks a fine blistering in the Sunday game.

The Hawks now are proceeding on the theory that you can't count on any team behaving according to statistics. Moreover, though this is not an official announcement from the Hawks, the Chicagoans are reported to be drilling in fencing and other modes of self defense against the Quakers.

BRIGHAM YOUNG WHIPS MAROONS; PURDUE LOSES

Marquette Upsets Wisconsin, 16-14.

Three Big Ten basketball teams last night lost to nonconference fives. Marquette defeated Wisconsin, 16 to 14; Pittsburgh whipped Purdue, 24 to 22, and Brigham Young won from Chicago, 38 to 35.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The University of Chicago basketball team lost its first game of the season last night to Brigham Young university, 38 to 35, but the Maroons were a better team in defeat than they have been in victory.

The Utah tourists took the lead after the first minutes of play, and occasionally threatened to pull far in front. Each time, however, Chicago rallied to cling within striking distance.

Just before the final whistle, with the Maroons trailing eight points, Jim Porter and Keith Parsons put on a five point rally in less than a minute.

Brigham Young Tires.

Perhaps Chicago might have won if time had permited, for Brigham Young's stalwarts were tiring rapidly. Victory, however, was immaterial compared to the deeds of Parsons, Scott Rexinger, and Porter. The latter two substituted for Sid Yates and Capt. Marshall Fish.

Parsons is considered the weak link in the team Coach Norgren is fashioning because of inexperience but he scored four field goals and five free throws, more than one-third of his team's total. Rexinger, substituted in the second half after four personal fouls had eliminated Yates, equaled the latter's score of two field goals in half the time. More particularly, Rexinger played a splendid floor game. Porter was on the floor only a minute and a half, but he counted two of the three long shots he attempted.

Brigham Young was, as the score indicates, the best opponent Chicago has met this year. Accurate passers and above average in long distance shooting, the forwards and center had superior height which gave them many follow up shots under the basket, five of which dropped through the ring in the second period.

Brinley Leads Scoring.

Eldon Brinley paced his mates with six field goals and two free throws, but Jim Hunter, at center, had five field goals and the same number of free throws.

Brigham Young used a long passing game, repeatedly leaving one or two men near the basket as pivots for these tactics. While Chicago frequently penetrated for close shots, its dribblers lost possession of the ball and provided certain points for their opponents.

Scoring alternated until tied at six all in the opening half. Parsons' free throw, his fifth point of the game thus far, gave Chicago its last advantage, for Brigham Young spurted to a 12 to 7 lead, which was maintained until the intermission with the score of 17 to 13.

Brigham Young played a defensive game in the last five minutes and coasted safely to victory. The visitors scored eight free throws in 12 attempts while the Maroons registered seven in 11 tries.

MARQUETTE WINS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 30.—Marquette university's basketball team tonight handed the University of Wisconsin its first defeat of the season. The score was 16 to 14. Marquette's attack, built around Whitey Budrunas, produced the Golden Avalanche's second victory in history over the Badgers and the first since 1923 when the locals squeezed out a 9 to 8 decision.

Budrunas' performance, worth three baskets and four free throws, was the highlight of the combat that lured 5,900 customers, who packed all parts of the spacious auditorium.

PURDUE LOSES, 24-22

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Pittsburgh tonight defeated the Purdue basketball team, 24 to 22. The Boilermakers, playing practically the entire contest without Johnny Wooden, staged a late rally which fell short by one field goal.

Purdue played a close defensive game and this led to its defeat, for the Panthers made 10 out of 13 foul tries. The Boilermakers counted only 4 out of 7.

The Panthers led, 12 to 6, at the end of the half, but the Boilermakers reduced the margin to two points. Then Pitt piled up a 17 to 11 score. From this point on Purdue abandoned its defensive tactics and tried long shots with the result that the Panther margin began to disappear.

2 CHICAGO PREP TEAMS ADVANCE IN STAGG MEET

Yesterday's Results

New Trier, 26; McKinley, 4.
Proviso, 24; Fenger, 18.
Lane Tech, 22; Bloom, 15.
Hyde Park, 23; Hinsdale, 12.
Morgan Park, 23; Austin, 19.

Hyde Park and Morgan Park won their first round games last night in the University of Chicago's Christmas week prep basketball tournament. Of 12 quintets which so far have qualified for the second round, eight are from Chicago.

Last night Hyde Park defeated Hinsdale, 23 to 12.

Play Careful Floor Games.

The city rivals played careful floor games, and for the main showed little passing ability, the winner being the more fortunate in long distance shooting. Morgan Park's zone defense worked effectively against the west side team. Morgan Park led, 20 to 13, at the end of the third quarter. Austin, however, pulled up to trail by only two points, 20 to 18. Morgan Park then stalled to connect on a set shot for victory.

A calm New Trier quintet swept to a 26 to 4 victory over McKinley High. Proviso and Lane Tech of the City league were other winners in afternoon's games.

McKinley was helpless before the coördinated attack of the north shore five and failed to score a field goal. New Trier played well enough to be listed among the favorites in the tournament. Crane, Evanston and Bowen are others to be favored.

Game Starts Slow.

The Proviso-Fenger game started slowly with Fenger holding a 4 to 0 lead at the end of the first quarter. Proviso rallied—largely through Sanda's efforts—to tie the count at 7 all at half time, and then forged ahead to a final count of 24 to 18. Sanda with four field goals and one free toss led the scoring.

Bloom, rated as the strongest team in the south suburban district, fumbled passes and refused to take set shots from the free throw circle only to lose the ball on an attempt to take it under the basket.

Lane, with Knez acting in the sharp shooting rôle, forged ahead, 3 to 1, at the end of the first quarter and increased its margin to 11 to 4 at half time. Knez's five baskets and two free throws doubled the count, 18 to 9, at three-quarter time and brought a 22 to 15 victory when the final gun popped.

Teams Relax as Rose Bowl Game Nears

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Alabama and Washington State took no chance today of losing their edge before the tournament of roses football game Thursday. Opposing warriors from the south and northwest indulged in light workouts and called it a day. Tomorrow the same program will be followed.

Before going to the practice field this afternoon the players relaxed. The Cougars went for a sightseeing trip while the Alabama boys lolled in the sun on the lawn of their hotel.

Unofficial observers have figured the big game will develop into a contest of forward passing, reasoning opposing lines are so powerful power attacks must fall to pieces.

"I would not be surprised to see the team receiving the kickoff pass on the first play," said a visiting coach today.

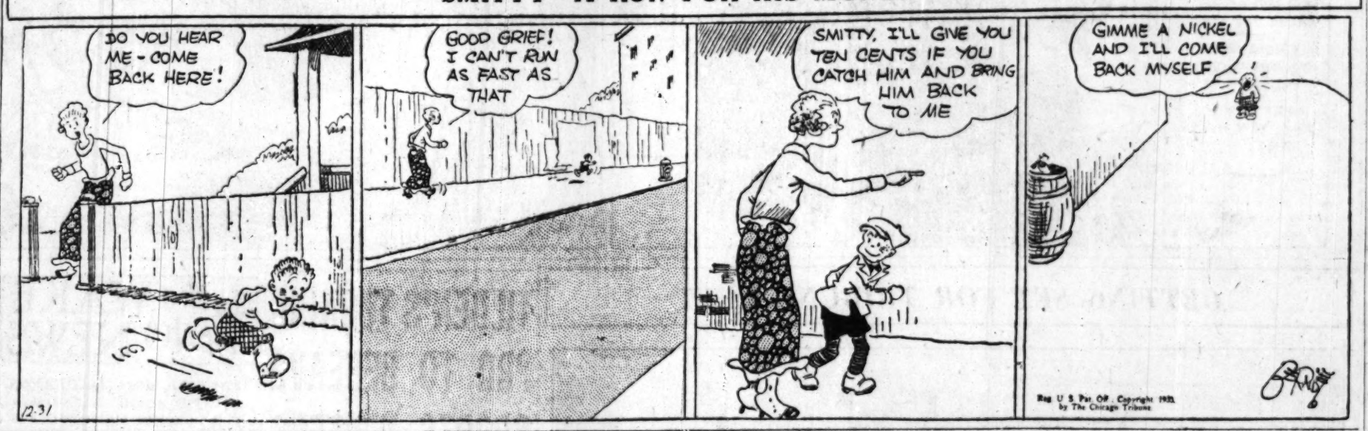
MOON MULLINS—VIRTUE'S OWN REWARD

SMITTY—A RUN FOR HIS MONEY



Rowland Gets Reading Club from Wrigley

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Clarence Rowland, who in 1917 experienced the pleasure of piloting the White Sox to a world championship, yesterday became a full fledged club owner. He took on this distinction yesterday afternoon in the office of Attorney Dave Stansbury when he signed an agreement by which he took the Reading International league club off the hands of the Chicago Cubs, who had operated it for several years.

The Cubs purchased the Reading franchise with the idea of using the spot as a farm for young talent, but the arrangement proved unsatisfactory, hence yesterday's sale. It now is the desire of the Chicago club to locate a farm in a minor league in this vicinity, the American association, for instance. However, nothing along such lines will be attempted until the present panic over the drafting of players subsides.

As Reading owner, Rowland plans on keeping for himself all the club ities available. He will be president, treasurer, and team manager, thus making it necessary to talk to himself in private conference, should any difficulties arise.

* *

Hack Wilson, the 1930 home run king, is going to have a day for himself at Wrigley field next season. When the recent campaign closed a committee of baseball writers elected to carry on the valuable player award, which the National league had discarded for no particular reason. Hack was given the honor, so William Veeck, Cub president, promptly decided to award the player $1,000, as was done when the affair was part of the National league's official business. The $1,000, in gold, will be formally presented to Hack at home plate on a day to be designated later.

* *

When the Cubs get around to playing their exhibition games in California next spring they will experience their baptism in night baseball. After supper Coast league affairs were so popular at Wrigley Field, Los Angeles, last season that the officials of the latter club believe the customers would turn out in great numbers to see major league athletes operate under artificial light. The present plan is for the Cubs to sneak up on the Los Angeles team after dark and also on the Pirates, with whom they are booked for three games.

Pitchers in the future will be forced to order their gloves by color. The joint committee on baseball rules, at its recent meetings, inserted a clause restricting the hurler's hand protectors to a stipulated color. The idea is that a batter is annoyed by having to look at a different colored glove every time there is a change in pitchers.

Another clause inserted in the rules prohibits the wearing by fielders of bright buckles or buttons which might reflect the sun rays into the batter's eyes. Nothing was mentioned about an infielder wearing a large diamond ring and using it for the same purpose, but the first time any player attempts it the rule probably will be changed accordingly.

Ernest S. Barnard, the American league president, is leaving tomorrow for an extended stay in Florida. The schedules for next season are all drawn up, so Barnard has nothing to do between now and the opening day except to have a rules talk with his umpires. The league will not hold a spring meeting.

ALABAMA CAGE TEAM INVADES PURPLE COURT

Northwestern university's basketball team will seek its fourth straight victory of the season at Patten gym tonight at the expense of the University of Alabama five. The Dixie team holds the Southern confefence championship, having won 20 consecutive games last season.

Coach Dutch Lonborg has been forced to make alterations in his battle front due to the injury of Bob Lockhart, star back guard. A ligament in Lockhart's knee was torn in the Carleton game and was aggravated further when he returned to practice the first of the week. He will be out for two weeks.

Rockne Leaves Rochester Today for Chicago, Home

Rochester, Minn., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, will leave for Chicago and South Bend tomorrow, he said today.

Departure had been planned for today but the condition of Mrs. Rockne caused the delay. Mrs. Rockne submitted to a minor operation but will leave with her husband.

Nate Punches Out Decision Over Tobias

Georgie Nate of South Bend, Ind., won an eight round decision over Phil Tobias of New York at the Coliseum last night. Nate weighed 119 pounds and Tobias 114½.

Jerry Debarbieux of Belgium won the other half of the double windup by taking an eight round decision from Baxter Calmes of Wichita, Kas. They are light heavyweights.

The card drew 1,000 customers.

The first three rounds of the Tobias-Nate fight were fairly even, with Nate displaying an effective left hook. The boys clinched frequently and Referee McNamara warned Nate in the fourth round when he attempted to throw Tobias to the mat.

Debarbieux carried the fight to Calmes from the start and continued forcing the issue for three rounds. In the fifth round Calmes began to use his left effectively and took the round easily. Calmes took the sixth round, but the Belgian came back to take the seventh and eighth.

Nick Clementi, Chicago, 115½ pounds, won the five round decision from Peewee Gale, Three Oaks, Mich., 116¾ pounds.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The boxing gloves which Jack Dempsey flattened Louis Firpo in their spectacular bout a few years back couldn't hurt a baby now.

The gloves, stored in a Belleville, N. J., leather factory, were shriveled to the size of an infant's mittens by fire yesterday.

Closing Threatened; Legge Makes Reply

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Further federal restrictions on grain speculation may cause the Chicago Board of Trade to close its doors, an eventuality which, according to Peter B. Carey, a vice president, the board of directors, has contemplated.

"We might as well; few traders are doing any business; the government agencies are doing most of the trading," Carey observed yesterday. Outside his door had died the day's tumult and uproar of the "pit," unchecked in three-quarters of a century.

During the world war free trading was suspended but the pit operated to acquire wheat for beleaguered Europe. The Board of Trade determined to close its doors during the depression of 1873, but Marshall Field and Levi Z. Leiter dramatically shouted against it from the trading floor and the doors remained open.

The present home of the Board of Trade, a $12,000,000 peak of 44 stories, crowned with a gigantic statue of Ceres, rising 608 feet above La Salle street, has been open only a year.

Time to Fight Back.

"It's time we fight back at those who have tried to make the Board of Trade the goat in this farm relief business," Carey said.

"We've gone along with the farm board; given them our support and kept still when Secretary of Agriculture Hyde introduced his Russian 'menace,' and Chairman Legge of the farm board found so much fault with our practices. I don't think we ought to keep still any longer; nor do most of the traders.

"Now they talk about further restrictions on grain trading, virtually turning the business over to the secretary of agriculture," said Carey.

"As if restrictions will help the farmer. He is better off when trading is unrestricted. The more active the bidding for his grain, the better the market for him. And, the more money the farmer receives, the more money the trader gets. What's good or bad for one is good or bad for the other."

Carey scoffed at Legge's suggested embargo on Canadian wheat, declaring, "None to speak of entered," only a "few fancy kinds not grown in the United States.

"Why there is a 42 cent tariff on wheat, and it can be run up to 63 cents by executive order. How can grain hurdle such a tariff wall?"

Cites Small Acreage Cut.

The Board of Trade executive believed reducing the wheat production to domestic consumption would give the farmer a better market.

"But," he continued, "the farm board has spent a year preaching reduced acreage, and the latest report shows a cut of only 1.1 per cent for next year. The reason is that farmers, realizing the Stabilization corporation is bound to 'peg' the price, will continue to grow as much wheat as they can. Their market is assured.

"What's the outcome? Well, the Stabilization corporation will go into the next wheat year, about May, loaded down with 100,000,000 to 200,000,000 bu of wheat and no place to market it. Unless some world catastrophe comes to drastically cut the world grain supply there'll be a repetition of this year's market."

Legge Is Pleased.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Chairman Legge of the farm board expressed pleasure tonight that Peter B. Carey, a vice president of the Chicago Board of Trade, has "come out in the open" against the farm board, and recommended further federal restriction of grain trading.

Only a little more opposition from men in Carey's position, the chairman said, was required "to insure the much needed congressional attention."

Despite farm board recommendations for wheat acreage reduction, Carey said, winter wheat acreage was reduced only 1.1 per cent this year because farmers realized the Stabilization corporation "is bound to peg the price" and they will "continue to grow as much wheat as they can."

"Mr. Carey overlooked the fact that stabilization operations were not started until after fall sowing was completed," Mr. Legge said.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, intent upon getting its spring road work under way as soon as weather conditions permit and also to aid in relieving unemployment, has placed an order with the Bethlehem Steel corporation covering the rolling of 3,000 tons of 130 pound rail and fittings at its Lackawanna plant in Buffalo, N. Y., for January delivery.

Pipe shipments during 1930 by the A. O. Smith corporation amounted to 472,000 tons, against 425,000 tons last year. C. C. Joys, manager of the pipe sales department, said that 1930 shipments consisted of about 3,000 miles, or 24,272 carloads.

The American Can company announced that earnings for the year 1930 will be slightly better than the $5.8[illegible] a common share reported for 1929.

Steel Industry Expects Pickup as 1931 Dawns

BY O. A. MATHER.

Not only has the steel industry done better than had been expected in this last week of the year but it is definitely assured of larger operations next month than has been thought possible. This testimony of the midweek trade reviews was one of the most cheerful developments yesterday and it enabled the big industry to enter the new year with added confidence.

"Current raw steel production is highly irregular, owing to the holiday interruptions, but may average 30 per cent for the week," the Iron Age says. "An unlooked-for post-Christmas pickup in specifications will probably prevent as general a suspension of mill operations this week-end as occured between Dec. 24 and Dec. 29.

"Steel business now definitely in sight points to an average ingot output of 50 per cent before the end of January. Improvement in operations is expected to continue well into the second quarter, although at this juncture few will venture a prophecy of the extent of the gain. There has been a steady gain in contracting for first quarter. December specifications, largely for January shipment, are well in excess of November releases.

Utility Projects Approach.

"An impressive volume of public and utility projects is approaching the contracting stage, delayed railroad tonnage is being placed and tin plate output promises to be large. One reason for expecting a gradual rather than a sharp recovery in activity is the uncertain outlook in the automobile industry. No impressive gain in motor car production is looked for until April or May, although Pittsburgh reports that the largest increases in January specifications have come from the automobile makers.

"Railroad buying this week has been heartening, with rail purchases totaling 210,000 tons. Governmental work is conspicuous in the large amount of structural steel work now in the market, with new projects calling for 65,000 tons. Pipe line programs will be launched sooner in 1931 than was the case in 1930."

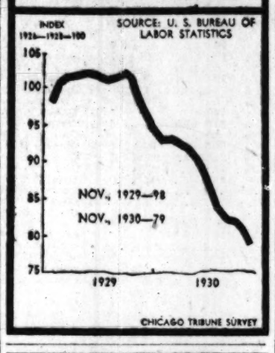
Almost as cheerful as the steel trade news was evidence that the petroleum industry is winning its long fight against overproduction. The putting into effect of new proration programs in California and other fields brought about the largest decline in production in many months.

Daily average gross crude oil production last week totaled 2,123,350 barrels, a decline of 75,450 barrels a day from the previous week, according to the American Petroleum institute.

Freight Car Loadings.

The usual slackening in trade toward a year end is reflected in the movement of commodities by the railroads. Loading of revenue freight for the week ended Dec. 20 totaled 713,810 cars, according to the weekly summary of the American Railway association. This marked a decline of 30,633 cars from the preceding week and also a decrease of 128,965 cars from th corresponding week in 1929. The largest declines, compared with a year ago, occurred in miscellaneous freight, coal, merchandise, and forest products.

DECLINE IN INDUSTRIAL EMPLOYMENT IN 1930 WAS SHARP AND PERSISTENT



CONSIDER APPEALING INJUNCTION AGAINST BIG STEEL COMBINE

Youngstown, O., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The question of appealing the injunction which restrains the merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company with the Bethlehem Steel corporation will be considered by officers and attorneys for the companies, probably this week.

Arrangements were being made today for the session, Frank Purnell, president of Sheet and Tube, said.

The real winner of the merger fight is the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company stockholder who sold his stock for cash during the proxy battle—and kept the proceeds in the bank.

A minimum price of $150 a share was paid during the proxy fight, which preceded the court suit ended Monday. The shareholder who sold at $150 last March and April today could buy three shares of Bethlehem and have a few dollars left for a New Year party, or he could buy two shares of Sheet and Tube for each one he originally owned.

It is estimated that about $3,000,000 worth of Youngstown stock was sold here in private sales, but few of those who sold are in position today to celebrate. Most of them invested in other stocks, and their new holdings have shrunk in the market declines.

Predicts Recovery First in U. S. Domestic Business

BY SCRUTATOR.

The cycle of international trade has swung low in the present year. There are schools of thought which hold that the return of prosperity in the United States depends on a betterment of the world conditions, and in the extreme that it cannot return without this betterment.

Only the first half of the year is yet subject to statistical analysis, and a scrutiny of the review of that period by the department of commerce fails to bear out either the theory that international trade is suffering more than domestic or the one that tariff regulations and other barriers erected by individual nations are halting it.

A conclusion—neither expressed nor implied by the department of commerce—is offered here. The same conditions govern international trade and domestic. The latter is the dog that wags the tail and domestic trade will recover its full vigor before the traffic over national borders becomes great again.

Down 14 Per Cent.

In volume of dollars the international trade of sixty-two countries was down 14 per cent in comparison with the first half of 1929. Estimates by the experts making the surveys showed that in tonnage the movement of commodities was off only 7 per cent. Probably the figures for the second half of this year will make a more unfavorable demonstration, but so will domestic trade in almost every country.

We have heard frequently in the last twelvemonth that the machine age and the competition of materials for favor have kept our own industries on restricted profits. It is held as a truism that we have too much plant capacity. The fallacy in that one is that the surplus is generally in high cost plants.

It is not apparent that foreigners up until last July took much interest in the idea that the way to keep their peoples contented and employed was to give up improved methods. Exports of machinery from the United States and other important industrial countries were actually larger than in early 1929. There has been a great deal of progress along the line of shipping shoe machinery rather than finished shoes to other countries.

The same is true of textiles and textile machinery. More and more countries are becoming more and more self-sufficient, and it can be mentioned at least as a suspicion that foreign trade is likely to grow less rather than more important in future. The far east is producing more of its own cloth.

Also Subject to Fashion.

International trade, also, is almost as much subject to fashion factors as the domestic. One of the Russian revolution's results was to make unfashionable or illegal the burning of wax candles in churches, and the Ethiopian trade in wax as a result has been destroyed.

The hat trade across the borders is suffering from the fad of men going bareheaded, which is spreading to Europe. Also, because men prefer light colored hats when they do wear any, the Australian trade in rabbit skins, which make hats, but only dark hats, was cut in 1930 to one-fourth what it was in 1929.

International trade is not quite on the hand to mouth basis that local trade is and it may come back more slowly. It appears to have dropped off with less speed. As for the argument that the United States is killing off world trade, it appears that it is still holding onto its relative shares of imports and exports.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 30.—Railroad shares got appropriately steamed up on the White House announcement of the eastern merger agreement today and led the market on an advance that resulted in net gains of 2 to 5 points over a wide area. Stocks of the lines most directly concerned in the consolidation plan were favorites in the buying, naturally, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, and New Haven being whirled up for 5 and 6 points each or more with Chesapeake and Ohio, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, Atchison, Missouri Pacific, Reading, Southern railway and others moving ahead vigorously and in some cases duplicating the gains of the acknowledged pacemakers.

Industrial leaders were consistently strong with United States Steel common, Corn Products and General Electric out in front. The utilities found ready buyers, their position being somewhat similar to that of the rails. The coppers stiffened, not only in response to the general forward urge of the list, but on reports of higher export prices for the red metal. Even the motors firmed up.

Profit Taking Cuts Gains.

Profit taking cut the gains somewhat in the later trading but the selling was well digested and final prices were within striking distance of the highs of the day.

Outside of the railroad merger announcement, the market had little in the way of outside developments to help it along. Steel trade journals were a little more optimistic in their forecasts for the early part of the year, looking forward to a material pickup in mill activities in the weeks immediately ahead. Their forecasts, however, have been largely discounted by the tenor of previous efforts to size up the situation in this important industry. Money renewed at 3½ per cent and the rate held at that figure for new accommodations all day. The street recognizes that the current stringency in money is only temporary

Charge Firms with Price Fixing.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—An equity petition under the Sherman anti-trust act, charging the Asphalt Shingle and Roofing institute of this city and its members, including the largest companies in this class of industry, with having formed a price fixing combination in restraint of trade was filed today in Federal court by the department of justice.

The action, brought after several months of investigation, is for the purpose of preventing further restraint of trade and commerce, according to the petition.

41 Firms, Individuals, Named.

The petition and complaint bear the names of Attorney General William D. Mitchell, John Lord O'Brien, assistant to the attorney general, and James Lawrence Fly, assistant to the attorney general, and asks that an injunction be issued against the many alleged practices in violation of the Sherman law.

Among the members of the institute for whom subpœnas were issued are Chester E. Rarh, president of the Asphalt Shingle Roofing and Institute; Herbert Abraham, president of the Ruberoid company; Jack S. Bryant, manager of the Asphalt Shingle and Roofing institute; Clark N. Brown, vice president of Certain-teed Products company, Chicago; Edward R. Litsinger, president Johns Manville corporation; Louis Hoff, vice president of the Johns-Manville corporation.

Charge Price Fixing.

Chicago firms and individuals named in the suit besides the Certain-teed Products company are the Amalgamated Roofing company, Beckman-Dawson Roofing company, Ford Roofing Products company, the Lehon company, and Edward R. Litsinger, A. G. Leonard, E. A. Leonard, and John Logan Sr.

The petition charged the existence of activities tending to fix uniform and noncompetitive prices in the sale of nonpatent asphalt shingles and roofing products manufactured by the defendant companies. It sets forth a copy of what it alleges is the plan of operation of the institute.

BY AL CHASE.

Contracts were signed yesterday whereby L. J. Sheridan & Co., managers and renting agents of the One La Salle Street building, have been placed in charge of the Builders' building as exclusive renting and managing agents of that structure. This twenty-two story erected at the southwest corner of Wacker drive building was and La Salle street during 1926 and 1927, and is reported to have cost $8,350,000, exclusive of land. It is the headquarters of the Chicago building industry, though it has a broad diversification of tenancy. It is reported to be 80 per cent occupied.

The contract signed yesterday was for a ten year period. Representing the Sheridan company, William Gallauer will be renting manager and Herbert E. Bach will be operating manager of the property. The remainder of the office personnel has not yet been announced.

Walgreen Leases Aurora Store.

The Walgreen company has just closed a fifteen year lease at a reported term rental of $200,000 at the southwest corner of Broadway and Main street, Aurora. The store will have a frontage of forty feet on Broadway and fifty feet on Main street. The entire building will be remodeled at a reported cost of $25,000.

This is the main intersection of Aurora, directly opposite the site recently acquired by Warner Brothers for a proposed cinema, and one block from the new Publix theater now under construction. There will be other stores in the building in addition to the Walgreen store. The lessor is the First National Bank of Aurora, trustee for the owners, Cerf & Ehrenhalt represented both parties.

Harry N. Jacobs sold the thirty apartment building at the northwest corner of Cortland street and Kimball avenue to Joseph Haraburda for an undisclosed consideration, subject to $103,500. Mr. Haraburda gave in exchange the thirty-one flat building at 7405-13 North Damen avenue. Tannenbaum, Pollikoff & Schmidt were attorneys for Mr. Jacobs. Ernest C. Reniff was attorney for Mr. Haraburda.

The Almar Café, Inc., has leased the first floor store at 51 East 18th street, 30x30, from Benjamin F. Mayer for ten years from January 1, 1931, to April 30, 1941, at an indicated term rental of $48,800. A restaurant will be operated by the lessees, opening about Jan. 10.

PLAN NEW CORP. FOR CANADIAN FARMERS' LOANS

Prices Firm in Anticipation of Relief.

REGINA, Sask., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Financial difficulties of the farmers of Canada will be met by the creation of a private corporation in which banks, transportation companies, industrial concerns, insurance and mortgage companies will be shareholders, Richard B. Bennett, prime minister of Canada, announced tonight.

The corporation will use its capital as a revolving loan fund from which money may be loaned to farmers to tide them over the present period of distress.

No steps have been taken or will be taken to fix the price of wheat, Bennett stated. The jurisdiction to fix prices rested with the provinces. But apart from legal considerations it would be unwise to fix a price in excess of the world price because Canada, unlike the United States, could not hope to absorb her surplus wheat by domestic consumption.

Two other announcements of vital interest to the wheat growers were made by the premier. Word has been received that France will guarantee to buy at least 7,000,000 to 9,500,000 bushels of the 1930 Canadian wheat crop. At the same time arrangements are being made with a view to marketing wheat in China.

AWAIT RELIEF POLICY

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The extremely pessimistic wheat sentiment of late gave way yesterday to a belief that perhaps Premier Bennett of Canada would outline a constructive government policy that would help farmers in the prairie provinces secure higher prices for their grain. Investment buying was in evidence at Winnipeg during the day based on this view, and had some effect on American markets. The result was that the July delivery here closed ¾c higher at 62⅝@62¾c.

Winnipeg was strong the greater part of the day, with wheat closing 1⅜@1¾c higher. July finished at 57¼c, or 5½c under Chicago, against 30¼c recently, and the Canadian market went to ¼c premium over Kansas City at the last, the first time this has occurred since Nov. 14 when the stabilization corporation resumed buying of old crop months this side of the international line.

Argentine Market Stronger.

The 1930 crop deliveries of wheat in Chicago closed practically unchanged with December at 76⅞c; March 79½@79¾c, and May 81@81⅛c.

There has been little attention paid by the world's wheat trade of late to the continued unfavorable weather conditions which have prevailed in the southern hemisphere. The greater part of the easiness in the Buenos Aires market of late has been due to a declining exchange rate. The latter was off ⅝c yesterday, but in the face of this wheat futures closed 1⅜c higher. Liverpool closed unchanged to ⅛d lower.

Strong Market in Corn.

Corn market showed a strong undertone the greater part of the day, and at no time were the nearby deliveries below the finish of the previous day. Reports that the country had stopped selling cash corn and that the south had come in as a buyer of cash grain for the first time this season had some effect on sentiment.

Shorts covered freely, and there was also buying attributed to a leading local professional. Final sales of corn futures were at net gains of 1⅜@1⅞c with December at 62¾@62⅞c; March, 66⅛@66¼c; May, 68@68¼c, and July, 69@69½c. Selling against bids checked the bulge.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Top score butter was off ½c, while fresh eggs were steady. Live turkeys declined 1@4c, heavy hens 2c, and spring chickens 1c. Receipts by freight, 6 cars. Poultry firm although demand was restricted somewhat by cold weather. Receipts, 73 cars, with 175 cars on team track.

COTTON AVERAGES LOWER

It was claimed by cotton traders that the market is showing the effects of absorption of cotton by co-operative associations and mills and that the market is gradually assuming a healthier tone. Speculation, however, remains light and the market runs into selling orders on all hard spots, while there is a good buying on breaks.

No change was presented in the weekly statistical reports. World consumption during November was 942,000 bales, compared with 1,161,000 bales last year, as given by the New York cotton exchange. Foreign mills are said to be barely holding their own. Prices follow:

LARGE HOLDERS SELL LARD

Leading holders of December lard were credited with liberal sales, which depressed the market price from $9.20 to $8.60, with the close on a rally to $8.90, a net loss for the day of 35c. Deliveries were the heaviest so far this month, 4,350,000 lbs. making 6,750,000 lbs in two days and a total of 16,000,000 lbs so far this month. Shorts were the principal buyers. Stocks at the beginning of the month were extremely low. Distant futures of lard were more firmly held and closed 7½@10c higher. Liverpool lard, however, was 6d lower to 9d higher. Exports were 2,623,810 lbs of lard and 660,500 lbs of bacon. Hog prices were 15@25c higher, with receipts larger than a week and a year ago. Stockyards interests are predicting a larger run of heavy hogs next month. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw, no sales were reported but the undertone was firmer due to the sharp advance in futures and higher prices were asked by holders. Early irregularity was followed by sharp advances in raw futures, due more to a scarcity of offerings than any aggressive buying, with final prices 6 to 10 points net higher. Approximate sales were only 28,700 tons. Closing prices follow:

Top yesterday, $8.35; average, $7.35.

The general market for hogs dipped to new low price levels yesterday, the average at $7.55 being 10c under the previous low mark since July, 1924. Losses of 25@40c were recorded, all classes sharing in the sharp break.

The range of prices widened again, the extreme top and general average being 75c apart. Few Decembers on record are credited with a wider range of prices. The "spread" between the top and average a year ago was 30c and in 1928, 1927, and 1926 the two prices were only 15@20c apart the usual "spread" at this season.

The extreme top yesterday at $8.30 was paid for a mere "handful" of underweights, which are still 30c above the low spot three weeks ago, due to scarcity. Bulk of the supply of 200@325 lb averages at $7.25@7.90 show losses of 10@25c compared with the previous low day, Dec. 11.

The hog futures market was a dull and weak to lower affair yesterday, following the Monday spurt in buying. January light weights were bid $7.75 and offered at $8.50. February bids were made at $7.75 and March light were bid $8.25.

Cattle offerings were slow to sell and ruled weak to unevenly lower, most sales showing losses of 50c to $1.00 since the middle of last week. Fancy yearling steers, averaging 1,136 lbs, held the top price at $14.25, while 1,438 lb beeves were sold at $12.25, and the bulk of sales held at $8.50@10.75. Cows and heifers were slow at the recent decline. Calves scored a sharp recovery, selected vealers soaring to $12.50. Stockers and feeders were weak to lower in sympathy with the break in fat stock.

Lamb supplies exceeded trade requirements again yesterday resulting in a 25c decline in prices, the extreme top at $8.35 being only 60c above the lowest point of the year. Most good handy weights sold at $8.00@8.25, while medium and heavy brought $7.50@7.75.

CHICAGO STOCKS MOVE UP A BIT AS SELLING EBBS

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Tax selling in active stocks lessened considerably on the Chicago exchange and the issues moved forward slightly in sympathy with the corresponding movement on the big board.

Liquidation in several of the inactive stocks resulted in quotations well under previous prices, which in many cases were established weeks or months ago. Price spreads of this sort were confined largely to preferred issues and less active common stocks.

The number of different issues traded in was larger than usual and the odd sizes of the transactions showed that many investors were dressing up their balance sheets and taking advantage of the opportunity to reduce income taxes.

Price Changes Narrow.

Among the active shares the gains were mostly confined within a one point margin. Included in the group of issues which closed fractionally above Monday's last prices were Middle West Utilities, Borg-Warner, Bendix, Insull Utility, and United States Gypsum. Noblitt-Sparks spurted over 3 points on fairly heavy turnover to finish above 40.

Suspension of trading in stocks of four companies was voted by governors of the exchange after the close of the market yesterday. The issues in which business was suspended are: H. O. Stone & Co. of Delaware common, Clarence Saunders Stores, Inc., 7 per cent preferred and class A common stock, Fabrics Finishing corporation common stock, and Electrical Research Laboratories common.

It was explained that action was taken because none of the companies have a Chicago transfer agent. Affairs of all of the firms are being handled by receivers. The cumulative preferred stock of Baumann & Co. and Gimbel Brothers common and preferred issues were removed from the list for the same reason.

Approve Listings.

Additional listings of securities of the Washington Gas and Electric company, North American Gas and Electric company, Houdaille-Hershey corporation, Insull Utility Investments, and Mickelberry's Food Products company were approved. The Mickelberry listing was made to carry out the stock dividend distributions authorized by the directors.

The refrigerator manufacturing unit of the Borg-Warner corporation will speed up production and increase employment after the first of the year. This was announced yesterday by H. E. Blood, president of the Norge corporation, the subsidiary firm. The working force at the Detroit and Muskegon plants will be doubled, adding several hundred men to the pay roll.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

Indiana—Fair in south, becoming unsettled in north portion, slightly warmer Wednesday, probably snow in north portion at night; Thursday generally fair and colder.

Lower Michigan—Unsettled, slightly warmer in south and central portions, probably snow Wednesday; fresh to strong southwest winds shifting to northwest at night; Thursday mostly cloudy, colder, probably snow in extreme west and extreme north portions.

PRIMEVAL FOREST OF THE DEVONIAN TIME, ABOUT 350,000,000 YEARS AGO, RESTORED IN FIELD MUSEUM MURAL PAINTING. A prominent place in the picture is taken by the oldest of all recorded trees, the Gilboa tree or Eospermatopteris. Most of the types of plants and trees are restorations resulting from study of actual fossil specimens, some collected in parts of New York state in the vicinity of the Catskill mountains.
